Issue

In 2010-2016, what percent of each municipality's housing stock was affordable, as defined in CGS § 8-30g (i.e., the Affordable Housing Land Use Appeals Procedure)?

Summary

By law, the Department of Housing (DOH) must promulgate annually a list identifying the housing stock in each municipality that qualifies as affordable housing under the Affordable Housing Land Use Appeals Procedure (CGS §§ 8-30g\(k\) & 8-37qqq\(a\)\(2\)\(D\)). (For information on the procedure, see OLR Issue Brief 2017-R-0013.)

Based on these lists, Table 1 shows the percent of each municipality's housing stock that qualified as affordable in 2010-2016. The lists, which include a breakdown of affordable housing stock by housing type, are available on DOH's website. As the table shows, between 2010 and 2016, the percentage of housing stock that is affordable increased in 88 municipalities, decreased in 79, and remained unchanged in two (Eastford and West Hartford). Over this period, the three largest percentage point increases were in Canaan (5.55 percentage points ("pp")), Franklin (4.11 pp), and Somers (2.7 pp). The largest decreases were in East Windsor (2.4 pp), Winchester (2.13 pp), and Vernon (1.77 pp).

Under CGS § 8-30g, municipalities in which at least 10% of housing stock is deemed affordable are generally exempt from the law's appeals procedure. As the table shows, the same 31 municipalities were exempt in 2010 and 2016. These municipalities appear in boldface.
