

It is well past time that we discard the antiquated Electoral College and elect our president through a National Popular Vote. The president should be elected by the majority of voters. All votes should be weighed the same and given the same attention, not just those in the "swing" states. I urge all of Connecticut's legislators to support this measure.

Val Chamberlain