

To the General Assembly,

I strongly support the availability of medical aid in dying. In states where it has been made available, there have been few if any abuses, and I think people should be able to choose a less frightening death, when they suffer from a terminal condition. Even if someone does not exercise the option, just knowing it is there, would help many who are facing their death. We do this for beloved pets, it's crazy that we won't allow people to.

Sincerely,

Mary Ferris
