To whom it may concern,

I, Dana Hebert, a Manchester resident and business owner support bill #7082. It is my belief that culture is very important. We are a melting pot of contributing cultures that allow America to be a great country. The lack of education of the contribution the African-American community has provided should be taught to our children. It will provide an understanding to other communities that otherwise may be unknown of these accomplishments. Having these proud moments of the African-Americans historical contributions be taught in the history classes may become an inspiration to others, possibly creating some sense of unity in a much divided climate in which we live in today.

Respectfully,

Dana Hebert
