

To the CT Education Committee-

I am contacting you regarding the proposed regulation that directly violates parental rights and goes against existing law

Homeschooling parents have operated under just fine since the 1600s! The existing law protects parents and children.

"Senate Bill (SB) 874 was just raised on February 22nd and buried at the end contains proposals to change our current homeschool freedoms. The proposed bill seeks to directly undermine that right that has been honored for many years- the right of the parent to educate their children appropriately.

I don't trust my children to the poorly run public schools that exist In Connecticut. Those who oversee the schools and their budgets don't care about my child. Things that are proven round the globe to benefit children, improve learning comprehension, and make well-rounded citizens are being cut; art, music, sports, etc.

For a historic method of education, lawfully predating the Country, to be so assaulted by legislators who are too concerned with the dollars funneling their way is beyond disgust.

Stop raping our public schools and get your bullying selves out of homeschool education. It's disgusting.

Don't forget that you have your job for an elected term, you are called to represent the PEOPLE. The people think this is ridiculous.

Sincerely
Courtney Tyson
