Municipal Impact: None

Explanation

There is a potential cost to the E-911 Fund within the Department of Emergency Services and Public Protection (DESPP) as a result of the bill, which requires that DESPP create financial incentives for the regionalization of public safety answering points. The bill does not specify the amount of incentives to be provided, or from which account they must be spent from. It is expected that any incentive provided would be funded through the E-911 fund, which is made up of telecommunications assessments.

The Out Years

The annualized ongoing fiscal impact identified above would continue into the future subject to inflation.
