

I have lived in Connecticut for over 38 years. I have always voted in elections. I believe it is of the utmost importance for everyone to be able to exercise their right to vote in the easiest and most convenient way. Having only one day (Election Day) to vote makes voting difficult for many people. If one works, if one is handicapped or if one has a new baby or needs to care for a sick or elderly person, having only one day to vote can be difficult. When I was a new parent, I had to make special arrangements for my children, so I could vote. When my elderly parents were sick, I had to make sure there was coverage for their care, in order for me to vote. Many other states have early voting arrangements. I believe that we should amend the Connecticut Constitution to make voting more flexible. Ideally, I feel that having the weekend before Election Day as additional days to vote, would be extremely helpful for many individuals.

Thank you for your consideration.

Respectfully,
