I just moved to CT from NYC. Ironically, I have a deeper fear of gun violence now that I am in the suburbs than I did living in NYC. I am so dismayed that raising my two year old daughter here means having to ask "Do you have guns in the house?" every time she goes to another kids' house. In NYC, I know that everyone in my community shared my values. Now, the situation is murkier. I would feel safer and more secure if I knew lawmakers in CT were engaged in sensible gun ownership legislation. This is the state that will forever have Sandy Hook as its legacy - you can change this by turning this tragedy into good, Set an example for other states with rural constituents who fear being deprived of their guns. It's time to put the children of CT first.
