Explanation

The bill bans importing, possessing, selling, offering for sale, or transporting certain specimens of African animals and creates a misdemeanor for violating the ban, and a felony for subsequent offenses. Violations of this provision may result in a potential cost for incarceration or probation and a potential revenue gain from fines assessed. On average, the marginal cost to the state for incarcerating an offender for the year is $2,200¹ while the average marginal cost for supervision in the community is less than $700² each year.

¹ Inmate marginal cost is based on increased consumables (e.g. food, clothing, water, sewage, living supplies, etc.) This does not include a change in staffing costs or utility expenses because these would only be realized if a unit or facility opened.

Senate "A" replaces the underlying bill which results in the impact described above.

The Out Years

The annualized ongoing impact described above would continue into the future subject to the number of violations that occur.

The preceding Fiscal Impact statement is prepared for the benefit of the members of the General Assembly, solely for the purposes of information, summarization and explanation and does not represent the intent of the General Assembly or either chamber thereof for any purpose. In general, fiscal impacts are based upon a variety of informational sources, including the analyst's professional knowledge. Whenever applicable, agency data is consulted as part of the analysis, however final products do not necessarily reflect an assessment from any specific department.

² Probation marginal cost is based on services provided by private providers and only includes costs that increase with each additional participant. This does not include a cost for additional supervision by a probation officer unless a new offense is anticipated to result in enough additional offenders to require additional probation officers.
