

Are not leaving Ct. for good, and as if the real estate market has not picked up because of New York people finding Ct. better (but barely) than New Jersey et al., NOW you want to cap it all by raising taxes to such a degree that you will actually lose the middle class as well as the "wealthy" (there are not enough wealthy and it ALWAYS filters down to the middle class in terms of taxing).

We have/are losing businesses and taxpayers but our real estate ,anklet will go so far south that ice won't be able to give our houses away.

Or maybe that is the plan? How can we leave when we can't sell our houses and when the taxes are moving sky high.

Lynn Bendett. New Canaan