

To whom it may Concern:

I am completely against any type of CT government health insurance. The state over the years has failed miserably at controlling spending, spending on what they say they will, or running any type of program. We have a huge deficit on state run pensions, the infrastructure of the state is crumbling (but new taxes proposed don't fix that, they build new things we won't have money to maintain), and I have no doubt the new taxes collected for employees to be able to take off for health reasons will be raided for other things and will run a deficit as well.

The state has no business getting involved in running an insurance program. There is no expertise, and we have many companies in CT who do have expertise. Let us not go down another rabbit hole that we cannot dig ourselves out of.
