

There is no need for a state government health care program. The marketplace can do the job efficiently and effectively.

A program run by the state would unfairly compete against companies in the private sector and likely result in job loss.

The worst effect would be that state tax payers would eventually pick up the tab when premiums failed to cover claims. The state would never run a business efficiently. Sooner or later, losses would emerge and taxpayers would be charged with the difference.

I urge you to say no to SB842

Ken Boudreau
Farmington, CT