

To Whom It May Concern:

Please don't take it upon yourselves to determine local zoning laws when legislators can't possibly understand the nuances of each town and the various neighborhoods within them. This is clearly a case where blind, blanket policies will do more harm than good and destroy the fabric of countless communities. Too often legislators act without regard to public sentiment or the unintended consequences. Please allow local public policy makers to do their jobs and not take the all-too-common stance that big government knows best.

Thanks you.

Sincerely,

William Keating
