

Danielle M.
Norwalk

I am writing in regards to the raised bill prohibiting the sale of vaping products. As a 47 year old adult, I find it objectionable that the government should have a right to determine what products I choose to use. If your intent is to limit the accessibility of these products to minors, enforcing the laws already on the books would be a good start. Every year we see increasing overreach of the government into the lives of tax paying constituents. The end result will be more and more people leaving the state for places where choice is respected. Our tax dollars will follow.