6 in Mohegan, Connecticut, a citizen of the Mohegan Tribe and the fourth 7 of seven children of John Tantaquidgeon and Harriet Fielding; and

8 WHEREAS, Harold's formal education ended with the completion of 9 eighth grade, but he learned a great many other skills, including how to 10 survive in the wilderness, from his father that would prove invaluable 11 later in his life; and

12 WHEREAS, Harold was too young to enlist when World War I broke 13 out so he joined the Home Guard in Norwich, but soon realized as he 14 observed the docks whenever he traveled through New London that his 15 future would be with the United States Coast Guard; and

16 WHEREAS, in 1921, when Harold was seventeen years of age, he 17 reported to the United States Customs House in New London and told 18 a recruiting officer that he wished to join the Coast Guard and serve 19 aboard Pequot, a ship his uncle had served aboard when it was used for 20 fishing and whaling purposes; and

21 WHEREAS, Pequot's new purposes were to lay and repair 22 underwater telegraph cables along the East and Gulf Coasts of the 23 United States and answer calls for assistance from lighthouses and 24 remote islands; and

25 WHEREAS, Harold advanced to seaman first class after two years on 26 Pequot and would shortly thereafter, while serving on Pequot II, advance 27 to quartermaster; and

28 WHEREAS, in 1927, when Harold was twenty-three years of age, he 29 was put in charge of the seventy-five-foot cutter, CG-289, becoming one 30 of the youngest chief petty officers in the history of the United States
31 Coast Guard and the first Native American to achieve the rank of chief 32 boatswain's mate; and

33 WHEREAS, CG-289's patrol of Long Island Sound and the coast of 34 New York helped enforce the country's liquor laws during Prohibition; 35 and

36 WHEREAS, Harold remained on CG-289 until he left the Coast
37 Guard, receiving an honorable discharge; and

38 WHEREAS, during World War II, Harold joined the United States
39 Army's 5th Air Force, becoming a gunner with the 418th Night Fighter 40 Squadron; and

41 WHEREAS, on July 27, 1944, Harold's plane was shot down and 42 crash-landed in New Guinea, but he and his crew of four survived the 43 twenty-three days they were missing due to his knowledge of 44 wilderness survival skills, and he was accordingly commended for 45 distinguished service; and

46 WHEREAS, on the completion of his military service, Harold 47 returned to Connecticut and resided on the Tantaquidgeon family farm 48 in Uncasville, next door to the Tantaquidgeon Museum, which Harold 49 had founded in 1931 with his father, John, and his sister, Gladys; and

50 WHEREAS, Harold was a pillar of the Tantaquidgeon Museum,

54 away at the age of eighty-four; and
