Re: ST of CT Correctional Advisory Committee's job search for the Correctional Ombudsman position

I feel Ken Krayeske possesses the attributes of your ideal candidate. He has the experience and exceptional ability to effectively advocate for the rights and wellbeing of the incarcerated. He can work well with all levels, and his heart-felt care and leadership ability demonstrates he will have the best results for this population, and also has the skill sets, in addition to the personal attributes that has caused him to want to represent the incarcerated and knows how to translate that into effective results. I think, more than the other candidates. He would be able to stay on top of deadlines and prioritize and achieve meaningful difference for the persons who really need someone who can articulate their needs and drive important results. I think that he would be able to best manage complex situations always keeping in mind the people who need him the most.
