

I have discussed an idea have with many of my friends, co-workers and family. They all seem to agree with my idea. In Connecticut we have volunteer ambulance services, volunteer fire companies and auxiliary police officers. My idea is this, let us form a volunteer school security force, armed or unarmed. It would be no different than the P.T.A., seeing as many parents could take turns in their town's schools. Being a father of 2 school age children I would gladly volunteer for this program. Seeing as the state is in a budget crisis this idea wouldn't cost the state any tax dollars except for background checks and training from local or state police. Please take this into consideration. Thank you in advance.
