

I'm in favor of enforcement of existing laws to the fullest rather than enactment of new "feel good" legislation.

In addition, I would like to see school teachers and officials exempt from the gun free zone laws. This would be regulated and perhaps enacted in a limited way allowing some sort of lethal force in the hands of selected teachers.

In addition, non-lethal deterrents, such as frangible bullets, mace, and electronic shock devices should be allowed, again with the proper training.

Training of teachers in reactionary tactics, such as escape routes, lockdowns of classrooms, ect. should be mandatory.

I want my grandchildren to enjoy a safe experience at school each day
