

As a Korean veteran I am speaking in favor of tight gun control legislation – including the banning of assault weapons. While serving in Korea I and my comrades were supplied with weapons which were far less lethal than the current .223 caliber weapons, and most of us survived. I find it hard to believe that this country is so violent that we must allow the use of weapons designed specifically for killing and maiming of human beings!

Guns, as is often said by advocates, do not kill people. However, people with guns do kill them! I believe it is imperative to stop the violence now – before another 26 (or more) are killed in a school somewhere.
