

I fully oppose all of the bills proposed in the name of increasing safety with new gun laws. Have you considered the massive cost increase this would incur with law enforcement? If my dog barks and outside security light goes on I will no longer go to investigate myself. I will know that a potential criminal WILL be better armed than I am.

I will have no choice but to call 911 and request assistance. As we know in the best of circumstances it will take 10-15 minutes for police response so I wouldn't have time to delay in calling.

The FBI statistic is that in stressful situations LE officers only hit with 1 in 5 shots. With completely misguided taxes and restrictions on ammunition and magazines it would be suicidal for a citizen to protect their own property with diminished weaponry.

I do not need the government to choose a car or fire evacuation plan that best suits my family's safety. And I certainly do not need their restrictions in times of a life or death emergency. If you want to help with safety offer classes on home defense with a gun.
