

I see absolutely NO need for high powered military type weapons to be in the hands of any individual. For anyone having a desire to experience that type of shooting, let them go to a public range, set up for safety, to shoot, and the guns stay there; locked up in something that can't be broken into.

As for the safety of all of our citizens, gun control is only a partial answer. Turning around our society's lack of respect for life (all life) is first and foremost what needs to happen. In our language, treatment of others wherever we are and our own value system. Honesty, respect, modesty etc. are all values that served the community, not just an individual. As these have been treated as passé, the chaos in our society has grown.

And I might add that this valueless chaos is certainly present in the leadership of our country, state and towns. A good place to start.

Thank you.

Mary Beth Patterson
Administrative Assistant
845.278.6200 ext. 1154
mbpatterson@nerad.com