

First off I am a gun owner that strongly opposes any kind of weapon ban, or any increase in our national or state gun laws what so ever,the laws that we have need to be enforced and those who break those laws must be prosecuted to the full extent of existing laws.

Early release of convicted felons who commit violent crimes is a betrayal of our legal system that compounds the violence in our Nation with repeat offenders,

I have been a Register Nurse in Connecticut for 30 years, half of those years working in mental health, a good mandatory outpatient program would reign in some of the errors and loopholes in our mental health system.

A review of the probate court system which at this time is not helpful, to enable conservator ship of individuals who are gravely disabled and refuse to take medications would be another way of following those persons who refuse to comply with treatment.

The mental health system needs a re-evaluation since the closing down of major mental health institutions which were closed from the results of new medications to help with mental illness, But if those with mental illness will not take the medications, then the problem we face can have drastic consequences on our society.

as we have seen time and again with those disturbed people.
