

1. Let us end this insanity. Responsible gun owners are not responsible for Sandy Hook any more than they are for 9/11.

2. It has been said that the definition of insanity is doing the same thing over and over again and expecting different results each time. We pass more and more restrictive gun laws and each time we expect there to be no violence or no victims. When are law makers going to get it? Responsible legal gun owners are not the problem. There are over 20,000 gun laws on the books. Did those laws stop Sandy Hook? No. Will ten thousand more restrictive gun laws stop a future Sandy Hook? No. Criminals and wackos do not follow the law. When are law makers going to understand this very basic fact? Good guys don't break the law. Bad guys break the law.

3. When are law makers going to put career criminals behind bars for good? Break three serious laws and you go to jail. Three strikes and you're out. End of discussion.

4. Yes, we need more to be done about mental health. Help children in school who have emotional and mental problems. Don't forget the average citizen who needs help and may not know where to turn or may not even realize he/she needs help.

5. Please let me know that you received this email. Thank you for talking with me the other night. I really appreciate it. I voted for you the last time. I will vote for you again. I am a Democrat so please don't hold that against me. I want things to work and to work well. We're all in this together.
