I went into the store to look at the puppies and wanted to see two Siberian husky puppies. They were brother and sister, but the male was a lot smaller and less sturdy looking than the female, and he also had two different color eyes. A few people noticed this while I had them in the pen where the puppies are shown to people who buy them, commenting they thought he was the runt. He also threw up a lot of water when I picked him up, although in all fairness he had chewed the label off the back of the bench without my knowledge and swallowed it. Both of these dogs were on sale for 1300.00. The next time I went in he was gone and the female was still there.
