

CT is one of the most heavily taxed states to live in today. Every year, my family and I struggle with the idea of staying here. CT does not need any more creative revenue sources which are just more hidden taxes. CT needs to cut and control spending. No more programs to prop up dying cities – good money wasted. Let the cities fend for themselves. If they can't, they will evolve (probably into something better) like the rest of us.

Dan Griffin