Efficiency, Scale, Accountability

Big cities and small towns have to provide comprehensive services

Empowered metropolitan regions can offer scale

Regional scale makes sense for strategic issues
  - Better transit
  - Better coordination of workforce development

COGs are not another layer of government
  - Instruments of local governments
  - Board comprised of elected officials
  - Answerable to local constituents
  - Track record of building relationships
Lack of Resources

COGs have no steady stream of revenue for shared services

No authority to levy taxes or issue bonds

Lack of stable funding undermines trust in shared services
Jon Colman

MEMBER OF CRCOG POLICY BOARD
COGs and Transportation

CRCOG is the Federally designated Metropolitan Planning Organization for the region

MPOs provide local leaders with a voice in the transportation planning and funding process
What Needs to be Done

Big picture priorities are largely known from previous reports.

Transportation investments are economic development investments.

Costs and potential funding sources are also largely known.

Track record of achievements and exciting prospects.
Transportation Vision

Big picture priorities for the Capitol Region:

- Finish the Hartford Rail Line
  - Convenient service to New Haven and New York City
- Pursue rail connection to Boston
  - Expand the reach of our economy
- Expand CTfastrak
  - Already increasing access to jobs
  - Increased development in the corridor

Stabilize Funding Sources

- Authorize and implement tolls
- Short-term gas tax fix

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF CRCOG
Revenues and Economic Development

Review the state revenue portfolio

- Current revenue portfolio is highly volatile
- Need to periodically assess revenues with a goal of increasing stability

Learn from peers

- Amazon HQ2 competition is illuminating
- Successful regions are investing in transit and workforce development
- Need to take a hard look at regional situation CEDS plan in process
- Need a structure for sustained implementation
Thank you!
