

§ 1-210. Access to public records. Exempt records

(b) Nothing in the Freedom of Information Act shall be construed to require disclosure of:

* * *

(3) Records of law enforcement agencies not otherwise available to the public which records were compiled in connection with the detection or investigation of crime, if the disclosure of said records would not be in the public interest because it would result in the disclosure of (A) the identity of informants not otherwise known or the identity of witnesses not otherwise known whose safety would be endangered or who would be subject to threat or intimidation if their identity was made known, (B) the identity of [minor] a witness[es] who is a minor as that term is defined in section 1-1d, (C) signed statements of witnesses, (D) information to be used in a prospective law enforcement action if prejudicial to such action, (E) investigatory techniques not otherwise known to the general public, (F) arrest records of a juvenile, which shall also include any investigatory files, concerning the arrest of such juvenile, compiled for law enforcement purposes, (G) the name and address of the victim of a sexual assault under section 53a-70, 53a-70a, 53a-71, 53a-72a, 53a-72b or 53a-73a, or injury or risk of injury, or impairing of morals under section 53-21, or of an attempt thereof, [or] (H) uncorroborated allegations subject to destruction pursuant to section 1-216 or (I) records the disclosure of which could reasonably be expected to constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. For the purposes of subsection (I), an invasion of privacy is warranted if the requestor produces sufficient evidence to warrant a belief by a reasonable person that (i) a government official acted negligently or otherwise improperly in the performance of his or her duties, and (ii) the record requested is likely to be probative of such negligence or impropriety. Nothing in subsection (I) shall prevent a defendant in a criminal case, or his or her legal representative, from obtaining access to law enforcement records to which they are otherwise entitled by law.
