PREFACE.

Having been frequently requested by my friends to write and publish a History of Stonington, from its first settlement in 1649 to the present time, has induced me to undertake the task of its compilation and in so doing have spared no labor of research into all of the available sources of historical information, including the Connecticut Charters and records of the Town and Churches here and regret that from their imperfect records, I have not been able to produce a more perfect book.

There are but few of our early planters here whose lineal descendants can be accurately traced by our local records to the present time. For reasons not now generally understood the graves of many of our early settlers have no headstones to mark their last earthly resting places, and in many instances their names do not appear on our town or church records, which has greatly embarrassed me in my work and with all its imperfection, with grateful acknowledgements to all persons who have assisted me in its compilation, this book is now submitted to the public, with the hope that they will kindly excuse all errors that may appear therein.

HISTORY OF STONINGTON.

The territory embraced in the boundaries of the original Town of Stonington was included in the first patent of Connecticut, granted by Robert, Earl of Warwick, in 1631 to William, Viscount Say and Seal, the right honorable Robert, Lord Brook and others, acting therein by authority vested in him by Lord Charles, King of England, Scotland, France and Ireland. The colony of Massachusetts having furnished men and munitions of war for the conquest of the Pequot Indians in 1637, claimed an interest by right of conquest in all the lands held by the Pequots before their overthrow, and determined to occupy it in advance of any settlement on the part of the Connecticut authorities, though they had asserted jurisdiction as early as

1 "At a General Corte, at Boston, the 6th, 3rd mo, 1646, Whereas John Winthrope, Junior, & othrs have by allowance of this Corte, begun a plantation in ye Pequod country, wch appertaines to this jurisdiction, as pt of or pportion of ye conquered country, & whereas this Corte is informed yt some Indians, who are now planted upon ye place where this said plantation ls begun, are willing to remove from their planting ground for ye more quiet & convenient settleing of ye English there, so that they may have another convenient place appointed—It is therefore ordred, yt ye said Mr. Winthrop may appoint unto such Indians as are willing to remove to othr lands or ye othr side, yt is, or ye east side of ye great ryver of the Pequod country, or some othrs place for their convenient planting & subsistence, wch may be to ye good likeing and due satisfaction of ye said Indians, & likewise to such of ye Pequod Indians as shall desire to live there, submitting themselves to ye English governt, (reserving to ye commissionrs of ye United Colonies what pply belongs to their disposing concerning ye said Pequods), & also to set out ye place for ye said plantation, & to set out lots for such of ye English as are there already planted, or shall come to them, and to governe ye people according to lawe, as occasion shall require, untill this Corte shall take further ordr therein; & whereas Mr. Thom: Peter is intended to Inhabit in ye said plantation, this Corte doth think fit to joyne him to assist ye said Mr Winthrope, for ye better carling on ye worke of ye said plantation according to this ordr."—Records of the Governor and Company of the Massachusetts Bay, vol. 1, 160, 161." 1640-41-42 by granting lands thereof to Capt. John Mason and others. But notwithstanding all this, Mr. John Winthrop, Jr., located himself at Pequot as early as 1645. The next year the Massachusetts General Court gave Mr. Winthrop a commission to begin a plantation there in behalf of that colony. Connecticut resisted the claims of Massachusetts, and in order to reach a peaceable settlement of all questions in dispute relative to jurisdiction, both colonies united in referring the whole matter to the Commissioners of the United Colonies, who, after an exhaustive hearing in the premises decided in favor of Connecticut.2

2 "At a meeting of the Commissioners for the United Colonies of New England at New Haven, September 9, 1646.

"An English plantation being lately begun by Mr. John Winthrop junior at Pequat, a question grew to which Colony the jurisdiction should belong.
The Commissioners for the Massachusetts propounded an interest by conquest, the Commissioners for Connecticut by patent, purchase and conquest. It was remembered that in a treaty betwixt them at Cambridge 1638, not perfected, a proposition was made that Pequat River in reference to the conquest should be the bounds between them, but Mr. Fenwick was not then there to plead the patent, nor had Connecticut then any title to those lands by purchase or deed of gift from Uncas. But the plantation is on the west side of Pequat, and so within the bounds at first propounded for Connecticut. The Commissioners jointly agreed that an English plantation there being well ordered may in sundry respects be of good use to all the Colonies, and thought fit it should have all due encouragements, only they conceived unless hereafter the Massachusetts shew better title the jurisdiction should belong to Connecticut."—
C. J. Hoadley.

3 "At a Meeting of the Commissioners for the United Colonies of New England, held at Boston the 26th of July, 1647.

"The question concerning the jurisdiction of the English plantation lately settled on the east side of Pequat River was again taken into consideration by the Commissioners.

"Mr. John Winthrop now present express himself as more indifferent but affirmed that some of the planters sat down there in reference to the government and in expectation of large privileges from the Massachusetts, and should be much disappointed if that plantation fall and be settled under any other jurisdiction.

"The Commissioners considering what passed at New Haven last year, and that in all the Colonies though the title to land may be several ways acquired, yet jurisdiction goeth constantly with the patent, they told Mr. John Winthrop that they doubted not but Connecticut would tenderly consider and afford such privileges as may suit a plantation so remote, but concluded that the jurisdiction of that plantation doth and ought to belong to Connecticut."—
C. J. Hoadley.
Mr. Winthrop's planting at Pequot, or Nameaug, now New London, was the first settlement in Eastern Connecticut, and after the last decision of the Commissioners he recognized the jurisdiction of this colony, who in 1649 established the boundaries of his new township at four miles wide on the east side of the river Thames, and six miles from the sea northwardly. During that time Mr. Winthrop was engaged in the settlement of New London he became acquainted with William Chesebrough, then a resident of Rehoboth, in the Plymouth Colony, and invited him to join in the settlement of his new plantation.

Mr. Chesebrough visited the place during the year 1645, but finding it unsuitable to his expectations, did not conclude to settle there. On his way home he examined our town and selected a place for his future residence, and on which he erected a dwelling-house, and removed his family there during the year 1649, supposing that his new home was within the jurisdiction of Massachusetts.

Connecticut having assumed jurisdiction and asserted authority over all the territory embraced within her chartered limits, summoned Mr. Chesebrough to appear before Capt. Mason at Saybrook, or some other magistrate upon Connecticut River, to give an account to him or them of what he was doing alone in the wilderness outside the limits of any recognized township. Mr. Chesebrough at first disregarded this order, claiming that his new home was within the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, but, subsequently, acting under the advice and assurance of Mr. Winthrop and other friends at Pequot, he so far yielded to the authority of the colony of Connecticut as to appear at the General Court at Hartford in March, 1651, and in answer to their summons said that he was not engaged in any unlawful trade with the Indians, and also assured them that his religious sentiments were in accordance with those of the General Court; that it was not his intention to remain alone and lead a solitary life in the wilderness, but that he should endeavor to induce a suitable number of his friends to join him and establish a new township.

On hearing his statement, the court so far changed its determination as to permit him to remain, on condition that he would give bonds not to engage in any unlawful trade with the Indians, and furnish to the court before the next winter the names of such persons as he might induce to settle with and around him at Wequetequock, as hereinafter more particularly described.

The planters at New London were friendly with Mr. Chesebrough, and did not want him to remove unless he went there to live, nor did they like the idea of a new township in this region. After repeated conferences with him, they engaged that if he would put himself on the footing of an inhabitant of that town, they would confirm to him the title to his lands at Wequetequock.

To this proposition he acceded, but the townsmen of New London soon discovered that they were making pledges that they had not the power to fulfill for the eastern boundary of their then township, did not extend but four miles east of the river Thames.

However, on request, the General Court extended the eastern boundary of New London to Pawcatuck River, and then New London gave to Mr. Chesebrough a home-lot over there, which he never occupied.

In January, 1652, the town of New London redeemed its promise to him, and gave a grant of confirmation to Mr. Chesebrough and his sons of all the land they claimed in Stonington. Previous to the agreement of the General Court with Mr. Chesebrough, and the confirmation of his land to him and his sons by the town, Thomas Stanton, in 1650, procured of the General Court a license to erect a trading-house at Pawcatuck, with the exclusive right of trade in that region for three years. He immediately built and occupied the trading-house, but did not bring his family to Stonington until 1658. Thomas Miner, a former resident of Charlestown, Mass., and then of Hingham, came to New London in 1645, received a home-lot there, and built a house on it the same year. He continued to reside there until 1652, when he came to this place, and took up a tract of land east of and adjoining Wequetequock Cove, and during that year and in the next erected a house thereon, which is more at large hereinafter described.

On the 30th day of June, 1652, the town of New London granted a tract of three hundred acres of land to Governor Haynes for a farm lying together on the east side of Wequetequock Cove.
When Walter Palmer (yielding to the request of his old friend Chesebrough to join him, in settling the new township) came here and purchased this tract of land of Governor Haynes, but, before he took his deed he found it covered and embraced the house and lands of Thomas Miner. So he and the governor entered into a written agreement that Palmer should give a hundred pounds for the place and such cattle as Mr. Haynes should select out of Palmer's stock. If any disagreement should arise, as to the price of the stock, it should be decided by different persons. This contract recognized the title to the house and lands occupied by Mr. Miner and was dated July 15th, 1653. Mr. Miner was selected to put Mr. Palmer in possession of the land purchased of Governor Haynes and did so by a written instrument, embodying therein a conveyance of his own land and dwelling-house (included in the boundaries of the Haynes land) to Mr. Palmer, reserving the right, however, to occupy his said house until he could build another at Mistuxet, now Quiambaug. The western boundary of Governor Haynes' land sold to Walter Palmer, including the house and lot of Thomas Miner, rested on Wequetequock Cove and the rivulet that enters the cove. The other grants and purchases of land to and by Walter Palmer lay south of this purchase and on the eastern slope of Taugwonk or Togwonk, crossing Anguilla Brook, embracing the large farms of the late Col. William and Dudley Randall, in all, some twelve hundred acres. Mr. Thomas Miner built his new house at Mistuxet in 1652-3. Capt. George Denison and family joined the new settlement in 1654, erecting his house near Pequotsepos Brook. Capt. John Gallup and Robert Park, with their families, came the same year, and settled near Mystic River. The new settlement being composed of men of note, progressed as rapidly as could be expected under the circumstances. Mr. Chesebrough was now surrounded by a sufficient number of inhabitants to claim corporate powers from the General Court. The first local name that the settlement received was Mystic and Pawcatuck; Mystic embracing the territory between Mystic River on the west and Stony Brook on the east; Pawcatuck embracing the territory between Pawcatuck River on the east and Stony Brook on the west. It being understood by the planters here, as a condition precedent to the new settlement that as soon as a suitable number had joined them, they should be incorporated as a new town. So in 1654 they applied to the General Court for corporate powers. But no sooner made than it was opposed by New London, embracing Groton, and defeated. The planters did not rest satisfied with their defeat, and resolved to agitate the matter until they succeeded sooner or later. They were of the independent Puritan stamp, and ready to make any sacrifice in defense of the right to worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience. But to to be taxed for a minister at New London, some twelve miles away, with two rivers to cross to get there, and no ferry-boats, was a little too much for their Puritanism, so they were determined to have a town and a church of their own, and continued to ask for them of the General Court, but were denied as often as they applied. In the early part of 1657, the Rev. William Thompson came here to reside, and preached to the planters a part of the time, and the rest of the time to the Pequot Indians. He was employed by the Commissioners of the United Colonies, who were acting as the agents of the London Missionary Society. The first religious services were held at the dwelling-house of Walter Palmer, March 22, 1657. Services were subsequently held at the dwelling-houses of the planters, whose efforts were continued with unremitting determination to break loose from New London and organize for themselves a new town and church. They remembered that Massachusetts had previously claimed a part or all of the Pequot territory, embracing Groton, Stonington, and Westerly, so they sought the friendship of Massachusetts in their contests, and in October the planters, joined by the Rev. Mr. Thompson, prepared a memorial to the Massachusetts General Court, 4 complain-

Following out these suggestions, George Denison and his associate planters assembled on the 30th day of June, 1658, and formed a compact called by them "The Association of Pawcatuck People,” which was organized for municipal purposes only, and not in defiance of the laws of either colony, but was established by them with a firm purpose to maintain it until some provision adequate to their wants should be made for them. The question in dispute between the Massachusetts and Connecticut colonies as to jurisdiction was referred to the Commissioners of the United Colonies, who in 1658 rendered a decision that all the Pequot territory west of Mystic River belonged to Connecticut, and all the territory east of it, including Stonington, North Stonington and part of the town of Westerly, belonged to Massachusetts. "At the second session of the General Court held at Boston the 19th

Pawcatuck the Court judgeth it meet to grant that the English plantation between Mystic and Pawcatuck be named Southertown and to belong to the County of Suffolk and order that all the prudential affairs thereof be managed by Capt. George Denison, Robert Park, William Chesebrough, Thomas Stanton, Walter Palmer and John Meinot sen., till the court take further order and that Capt. George Denison, William Chesebrough and John Minot deal in criminal matters as one magistrate may do, and that Walter Palmer several reasons that the bounds of their plantation may extend into the country northward between Weacapauge and Mystic river eight miles from the mouth of Mystic River.

Trask.

At the next session of the Massachusetts General Court, after this decision was rendered, they passed an act that the English plantation between Mystic and Pawcatuck Rivers should be named Southerton, and belong to the county of Suffolk, Mass., and appointed Capt. George Denison and others to manage the prudential affairs thereof until the court take further orders.

Walter Palmer was appointed constable, and the bounds of the plantation were extended into the country northward eight miles from the mouth of Mystic River.10

10 "We whose names are vender written being chosen by the Towne of Southertown to lay out the bounds according to the Courts grant, the which we did as followeth, first we began at Mistickes Rivers mouth, and from thence we run six miles to the north, northeast to the pond lying by Lanthorne Hill, where we marked a chestnut tree with six noches right against the middle of the pond, which pond we found to be seven chains and one pole wide, and from thence we run two miles due north to an ash tree which we marked fourer ways and set eight noches for the eight miles lying by a little still brooke, and we run from thence due east tenn miles and one quarter and twelve chains to white oake tree marked with X and SV. and from Thus, after a severe and protracted struggle, they succeeded in obtaining a local government. It should be borne in mind that the Massachusetts General Court did not create or even organize a new township, but simply declared that the English plantation between Mystic and Pawcatuck Rivers should be called Southertown. They recognized in part the local association of the people, and extended and confirmed their bounds.

During the years 1659, 1660 and 1661 several town-meetings were held for the purpose of building and locating a meeting-house, which was raised May 13, 1661, and was so far completed as to be ready for use in September of that year, when the Commissioners of the United Colonies being in town attended worship there, and were addressed by that stern old warrior statesman, Capt. John Mason. This, the first meeting-house of Stonington, stood a short distance southwest of the residence of Mr. Henry M. Palmer.

It is not known how large it was or what its shape or style, but from some facts that may be gleaned from the old town records, it is probable that it was a small building and but partially finished, for as early as 1667, six years after it was raised, a vote was passed in town meeting to repair it and make it more comfortable; and even after it was repaired the people did not use it in cold weather, but held their meetings at the house of Amos Richardson, which was situated a little way east of the meeting-house.

Rev. Mr. Thompson remained here until 1659 when he removed to New London, September 30th of that year. The Rev. Zachariah Brigden of Boston, Mass., preached here by invitation of the town, which subsequently held a meeting for the purpose of securing his services. Mr. Brigden labored here until his death, which took place April 24, 1662. After his death Mr. Chauncey and Fletcher preached for the town until the spring of 1664, when the town appointed a committee to go to the Bay (Massachusetts) and procure a minister for the town, who invited Mr. James Noyes of Newbury, to become their gospel-preaching minister. He accepted the invitation, and came here in the latter part of June, 1664, and continued his labors preaching as a licentiate until 1674, when he was ordained. In 1660-61 an old Pequot captain, known as Soche, laid claim to that part of Southertown called Misquamicut, and lying east of Pawcatuck River, and sold it to a number of planters from Newport, Middle-town and Portsmouth, R. I., who took possession and held it as part of Rhode Island Colony. The planters here were greatly vexed by the conflict of jurisdiction, and serious trouble grew out of it. In some instances the same territory was granted by each of the then colonies to different persons, and long years of litigation was the result.

Sorely pressed by these difficulties, and annoyed by the apprehension that the Connecticut Colony meditated their subjection, the selectmen, or townsmen, as they were then called, in behalf of the town, under January 19, 1662, again petitioned the Massachusetts General Court for redress of grievances,¹ to which no response seems to be made. On the 22d of April, 1662, Governor Winthrop succeeded in obtaining a new charter of Connecticut from King Charles II. The eastern boundary of the colony was therein fixed at Pawcatuck River, thus placing a large part of the town of Southererton under the jurisdiction of Connecticut, leaving that part east of Pawcatuck River under the control of Rhode Island.

Massachusetts gracefully yielded obedience to the new charter.

At the October session of the General Court for that year the charter was publicly read to the assembled freemen of Connecticut, and from that time forward became the recognized law of the land.

At the same session it was ordered that "ye inhabitants of Mystic, and Pawcatuck, not Southererton, shall from henceforth forbear to exercise authority by virtue of Commissioners from any other Colonies, and in case any differences that may arise, they repair to our Dept. Governor for help, and they choose a constable for the year ensuing, and ye said constable to repair to the Dept. Governor for his oath. And they are required to pay unto Mr. James Noyes, Lt. to the river called Pawcatuck. This Court doth pass an act of indemnity to Capt. George Denison upon the same grounds as was formerly granted to other inhabitants of Stonington.

Mr. Noyes did not at first make arrangements to remain for any given length of time, but subsequently, in 1668, the town passed a vote that they would freely contribute, or give towards his building a dwelling-house among them in order to his settling in the town, and carrying on the work of the ministry among them. They also voted to give him a salary of fifty pounds currency annually for seven years, and in 1671 the town added the use of the ministry land to Mr. Noyes’ salary, and subsequently raised it to one hundred pounds, with several grants of land and other donations. About this time a movement was set on foot to build a new and better meeting-house, to lay out public lands for the support of the gospel ministry, and to form a church in accordance with the established religion of the colony. In 1667 the planters convened in town-meeting and decided to set apart and lay out five hundred acres of land, to be styled the ministry land, the avails of which were to be applied to the support of the gospel ministry. In July of the same year the town established what they called a town plot, and appointed a committee to lay out as many lots as there were inhabitants then living in the town. Their home-lots contained twelve acres each, and were so arranged that each lot had a street front. Two hundred acres of this ministry-land was laid out around the place where the Road meeting-house now stands, the eastern line of which extended along a few feet east of said meeting-house, running nearly north and south. The western boundary was Mistuxet Brook. The northern and southern lines cannot now be traced, but the form of the plot can nearly be seen when we look at the distance between the east and west lines and the number of acres that were laid out. The home-lots were laid out around and upon each side of the ministry land. They extended as far east as Stony Brook, and south as far as Smith’s Mill; one tier was located north, and the remainder west and south of said land. In 1668, a census of the inhabitants of the town was ordered to be taken, embracing those only who were inhabitants or heads of families. February 2d there were found to be forty-three inhabitants, viz., Thomas Stanton, George Denison, Thomas Miner, John Gallup, Amos Richardson, Samuel Cheesebrough, James Noyes, Elisha Cheesebrough, Thomas Stanton, Jr., Ephraim Miner, Moses Palmer, James York, John Stanton, Thomas Wheeler, Samuel Mason, Joseph Miner, John Bennett, Isaac Wheeler, John Denison, Josiah Witter, Benjamin Palmer, Gershom Palmer, Thomas Bell, Joseph Stanton, John Fish, Thomas Shaw, John Gallup, Jr., John Frink, Edmund Fanning, James York, Jr., Nathaniel Beebe, John Reynolds, Robert Sterry, John Shaw, John Searls, Robert Fleming, Robert Holmes, Nathaniel Chesebrough, for Mrs. Anna Chesebrough, his mother, Gershom Palmer for Mrs. Rebecca Palmer, his mother, Henry Stevens, and Ezekiel Main. A home-lot was laid out for each inhabitant, and the title was obtained by lottery on the following conditions, namely: If built upon within six months and inhabited, the title would be complete, except that each proprietor must reside on his lot two years before he could sell it, and then he must first offer it to the town and be refused, before he could sell the same to any person and give good title. How many of these home-lots were built upon by the then inhabitants cannot now be ascertained.

Up to this time all religious services had been provided for and conducted by the authorities of the town. Ministers were employed by the selectmen, and paid from the town treasury. The town also appointed committees to examine candidates for the ministry, to see if they were sound in the fundamentals. "They did not by their acts recognize Councils, Assemblies, or ecclesiastical machinery in any way until 1669, when they preferred a petition to the General Court of the colony asking liberty to settle themselves in church order, which was granted at once;" but the church was not formed until 1674. During the time that these preliminary steps were moving for church organization, the inhabitants were worshipping at Pequot, in their dwelling-houses and the old meeting-house. They had repaired it several times in pursuance of town votes. It was also occupied by the town for holding town meetings.

At a meeting held therein in June, 1670, it was voted, with a joint consent, "That a bigger and better meeting-house should be built." Nothing appears to have been done about building a new house, for the reason that they could not agree upon a location. In April, 1671, another meeting was held, which voted, "That the meeting-house agreed upon shall stand upon the most convenient place of the ministry land," and the selectmen were directed "to view said land and approve the place where they find it most convenient, according to the order of the town, to set the meeting-house."

The selectmen could not agree upon a location, and called another town meeting, which was held Thursday, December 14, 1671. At this meeting, after spending most of the day in fruitless motions and discussions, it was voted, "That the meeting should continue until Friday night, and that all the inhabitants meet Friday morning by nine of the clock at the meeting-house, and to go from thence to view a place to set the new meeting-house on."

They met the next day, and looked over the ministry land, and unanimously agreed upon a location for their new house, and then went back to the old meeting-house and passed the following votes, viz.: "That the New Meeting-House shall for time to come be set up and stand without removing upon the hill called Agreement Hill, so named by the town at the same place."

The dimensions of this house were agreed upon at this meeting, and were as follows: "Forty feet long, twenty-two feet wide, and fourteen feet posts from joint to joint."

It was also voted at this meeting, "That the present minister, Mr. James Noyes, for the time that he continues to be the minister of this place, shall have the use of all the ministry land to himself, besides his fifty pounds currency per annum, and at his death or departure to leave it wholly to the town." A committee of five were appointed to superintend the erection of the new meeting-house. It was built by subscriptions of timber, planking, shingles, ceiling, nails and labor of men and teams, etc. At the time the meeting-house was located upon Agreement Hill by the town, the hill was covered with heavy timber, which was removed by the inhabitants by voluntary labor, who then laid the foundations for the new house, and raised it Jan. 15, 1673. This house stood a few rods west of the present meeting-house at the road. It was not finished for several years. At first there were no slips or pews, except for the deacons, magistrates, and minister's family; benches were used by all people, and a committee was appointed to seat them according to their notions of propriety. This state of things did not last long, for the town voted the next year to have the floor of the house and of the gallery assigned to the inhabitants for pews. A committee was appointed to make the assignment, who encountered much opposition, but finally agreed upon a plan which was submitted to the town and accepted. Those who were dissatisfied with the section assigned them did not make their pews, and occupied the old benches. Some of them after a while reconsidered their determination and built them. The inside of the house was never lathed and plastered. After the pews were built the space between them and the gallery was ceiled, and this was done by sections, which had been assumed by some of the wealthier inhabitants. When this house was dedicated is not known. Religious meetings were held there in the summer of 1673, and ever after that until it was taken down to make way for a larger one, which was erected in 1729. Soon after this town was incorporated by the General Court of Massachusetts, the planters became apprehensive of trouble with the Narragansett and Wampanoag Indians, whose western limits bordered along on the eastern boundary of Southerton. The danger of the planters here had been increased by a union with the Massachusetts Colony, for the reasons that it was with that and the Plymouth Colony that the trouble originated that finally culminated in King Philip's war. Becoming a part of the Massachusetts Colony, they were regarded by the Indians as their enemies. Their isolated condition and the neutral position of Rhode Island marked them as an easy prey for savage vengeance. Nor did the new charter in 1662 and their annexation to the colony of Connecticut better their condition, for as the difficulties with the Indians increased the whole of New England became involved in the conflict.

King Philip's emissaries visited the remnant of the Pequot Indians, and besought them to join in the grand plan of exterminating the English.

They were partially successful at first in their endeavors, but the influence of Chesebrough, Stanton, Denison, Gallup and others prevailed with the Pequots and they remained friendly with the English and rendered them most important services when the war actually commenced. They participated in the great swamp-fight in Kingston, R. I., which took place Dec. 19, 1675. Capt. James Avery, of New London, commanded the Pequots and Mohegans, who, urged on by Oneko, fought with unyielding determination. Capt. John Gallup was among the slain, but how many of lesser grade, and of the rank and file of our town, were killed and wounded cannot now be ascertained. Almost all of the able-bodied men of Stonington were engaged in the Indian wars of their time. Capt. George Denison raised and mustered into service from the colony a large force of English and Indians. He was provost-marshal for New London County and Rhode Island. He had a stockade fort just west of his dwelling-house in Stonington, where his soldiers encamped previous to their forays into the Indian territory. During the year 1676, Capt. Denison organized three expeditions, which pursued with unrelenting vengeance the shattered remnants of King Philip's forces. It was during the third of these expeditions, which began March 28, 1676, and ended April 10, 1676, that the brave Narragansett chieftain, Canonchet, was taken prisoner. He was brought to Stonington, where a council of war was held at Anguilla, near the present residence of Gideon P. Chesebrough. He refused to negotiate for peace, or for the cessation of hostilities on any terms, so the council decided that he must die, and when told of his fate, replied "That he liked it well, and should die before his heart had grown soft, or he had said anything unworthy of himself." He was executed after the Indian mode, being shot by Oneko and two Pequot sachems, the nearest to his own rank among his conquerors. This was done by his captors without consulting, or advice from any one superior to them in authority. No list or roll of the Stonington men who participated in the early Indian wars has been preserved. The nearest approach to which may be found in "list of the English volunteers in the late Narragansett war," as prepared by a committee for that purpose in order to secure a grant of land for their services, as follows: Capt. George Denison, Sergt. John Frink, Capt. John Stanton, Capt. Samuel Mason, Rev. James Noyes, Lieut. Thomas Miner, Samuel Youmans, John Fish, George Denison, Jr., William Denison, Nathaniel Beebe, Henry Stevens, Edmund Fanning, Thomas Fanning, John Bennett, William Bennett, Ezekiel Main, William Wheeler, Gershom Palmer, Samuel Stanton, Daniel Stanton, Manasseth Miner, Joseph Stanton, James York, Henry Bennett, Capt. James Pendleton, Robert Holmes, Thomas Bell, Henry Elliott, Isaac Wheeler, John Gallup, Nathaniel Chesebrough, Ephraim Miner, Joseph Miner, Samuel Miner, John Ashcroft, Edmund Fanning, Jr., John Denison, William Billings and Samuel Fish.

After the close of King Philip's war nothing occurred to interrupt the progress of the settlement. Some matters, however, connected with the contests between the colonies of Connecticut and Rhode Island, relative to the boundary line between them, lingered, to make trouble for the adjoining towns of Stonington and Westerly. The boundaries between Connecticut and Rhode Island as fixed by the new charter were not satisfactory to the Connecticut people, nor entirely so to the Rhode Island people, but after years of contention and litigation measures in the interest of peace prevailed, and the present boundary line was established. The attempted overthrow of the charter of the colony by Sir Edmund Andros, acting in pursuance of the policy of King James II., did not particularly affect the interest of the planters here, though they were bitterly opposed to the measures adopted by the king for the purpose of consolidating all of the New England colonies into one, shorn of the liberties granted them by the charter of 1662. The sudden collapse of King James, his abdication of the government of England in 1688, the arrest of Andros in Massachusetts, and his forced return to England gave great satisfaction to the inhabitants of this town, as well as to all of New England; and when William and Mary ascended the throne in 1689 they were hailed with universal respect and esteem. Their beneficent policy was felt on this side of the Atlantic, and with the restoration of the charter and the assurance of the protection of the mother-country, the planters here went on from year to year electing their town and colonial officers, levying and collecting taxes for church, town and state and furnishing without dissent their quota of men to resist the invasion of the French and Indians from the north. During the latter part of the Rev. Mr. James Noyes' pastorate his health began to fail him, and the people of his charge were anxious to afford him all the assistance in their power. By this time the northern part of Stonington, now North Stonington, had become settled, and the old place of worship at Agreement Hill was felt to be too remote for them to attend. So they began to take measures to divide the town into two societies for religious purposes, pending which the town held a meeting in 1715, and voted and agreed to call the Rev. Joseph Noyes to assist his father in the work of the ministry, one of whom was to preach to the people remote from the old meeting-house. Mr. Joseph Noyes did not accept of this call, anticipating one from New Haven, which he subsequently received and accepted. Another town meeting was held in 1717 and adopted measures for the division of the town, which was consummated by the General Assembly in 1720. The legal effect of these proceedings thus far was to divide the town into societies and leave them without authority to assemble and elect their officers, there being no general statutes at the time providing for calling the first society meeting for that purpose. Whereupon a petition was preferred to the Governor and Council in December, 1720, asking that a time might be same to all intents and purposes, for the holding of the said lands firm to them, their heirs, successors, and assigns forever."

The town of Stonington, for reasons not now understood, did not take out a patent under the act aforesaid until 1716, which is

HISTORY OF STONINGTON.

In 1726 the first and south society in Stonington decided to build a new meeting-house and to locate it at the Centre, at a place now known as Putnam’s Corners, about half mile east of the old meeting-house. The action of this meeting gave dissatisfaction to a large number of the members of the society, who preferred the old site at Agreement Hill. Other town-meetings followed relative to the location of the proposed new house, the result of which was that no definite action was reached for several years. Petition after petition was addressed to the General Assembly until 1731 when an agreement was reached to divide the society north and south. Previous to this, two new meeting-houses had been raised, one on Agreement Hill and the other at Putnam Corners, neither of which were completed for a number of years. After this the east and west societies acted wholly independent of each other. The meeting-house at the Putnam Corners was the largest, with two tiers of galleries, one above the other, with an immense sounding board. After the division of the old society, Mr. Rossiter, who was the second settled pastor here, continued his labors until his death, which took place in 1762. Previous to his death and during his pastorate, the town sold the old ministry land and divided the avails of the sale equally among the then three societies of the town. After the death of Mr. Rossiter some of the more prominent men in the two south societies favored a reunion, which was approved of by the pastors of the neighboring churches and was subsequently adopted.¹

"2nd. We agree that after ye sd. society's are united as aforesaid and by their legal vote think it convenient and best to build another meeting-house for public worship in ye room and stead of the sd. two meeting-houses now standing in said society for ye better accommodation of sd. society that ye said meeting-house shall be built on that acre of land that Nathan Chesebrough, Esq. has generously given to erect a meeting-house on, near ye dwelling house of Mr Nathaniel Hewitt's, sd. Nathan Chesebrough Esq. having first given a deed of sd. land for ye purpose aforesaid.

It is also agreed that the ministry and school money of both ministry land money in each society be made equal by each Society if either be wanting, and that ye school money, in ye sd. east society be improved in ye sd. east society on the east side of Stoney Brook, and that ye school money in ye sd. west society be improved in said society on ye west side of Stoney Brook, and this be a standing rule for said societies when made one, but to be so understood as to not hinder any that desire to take benefit of ye whole.

It is agreed ye two societies shall assemble at ye east meeting-house to worship six months each year and ye west meeting-house the other six months and when a meeting-house is erected on ye place agreed on, then said societies so united as aforesaid shall meet and worship in said house as aforesaid.

D. 1765, Upon the memorial of the East and West Society's in Stonington, shewing to this Assembly that on the Death of the Revd Mr Ebenezer Rosseter, Pastor of the Church in said West Society being advised by the Revd. Benjamin Lord, Asher Rosseter, and Jonathan Barker Associations Committee again to unite into one Ecclesiastical Society, and the said East and West Society's having accordingly agreed thereupon, and made application to this Assembly for that purpose as pr. Memorial on file, &c. "Resolved by this assembly that the said East and West Society's in said Stonington, be again united and become one entire Ecclesiastical Society, to be for the future called and known by the name of the first Society, in said Stonington, and they are hereby united, created, and made one entire Ecclesiastical Society with all the Priviledges and Immunities by Law allowed to other Ecclesiastical Society's in this Colony, vested with and enjoyed the same Priviledges and Advantages which the said East and West Society's were necessary to enable the old societies to merge and hold their property, and then directed the mode of organizing the new society. After the reunion they called the Rev. Nathaniel Eells the pastor of the east society to become the pastor of the reunited societies, which he accepted, and for several years preached alternately for six months in the east house, and for six months in the west house. A majority were looking forward to the erection of a new meeting-house at the place designated by the terms of the union. But they were doomed to disappointment. Long Point, now Stonington Borough, was not settled until 1752, but the settlement increased so rapidly that they demanded and secured the afternoon service of Mr. Eells; this produced great dissatisfaction in the east and northern part of the society, and various society meetings were held, and petitions to the General Assembly were preferred without satisfactory results. Finally eighty-three of the inhabitants of the village in 1774 have heretofore severally had and enjoyed,— and that they the said East and West Society's be and they are hereby enabled and empowered as separate and distinct Society's to act and transact any society or Parish affairs to compleat the settlements referred to in said memorial until the first day of December next, and Joseph Denison Esqr. of said Stonington shall be, and he is hereby fully empowered, authorized by himself or other Person by him for that purpose appointed and directed after said first day of December next, and during said month of December to give legal warning to all the inhabitants of said first Society that are qualified by Law to vote in Society affairs to meet at such time and place as he the said Joseph shall for that purpose in said first society, appoint, and being so met, that he preside as Moderator of such meeting, in the forming of said Society, and choice of all officers, and other Prudentials of said society as Occasion may require."

The memorial of William Morgan, Benjamin Park, John Denison 4th, Joseph Denison 2d, Oliver Hilliard, Edward Hancox, Oliver Smith, and the rest of the subscribers hereto in behalf of themselves and the professors of the established Religion of the Colony, living at a place called Long Point in Stonington in the County of New London, humbly sheweth, that they are situate near four miles from any meeting-house and that the Inhabitants living at sd. Long Point are generally poor, they living principally by the whale and cod-fishery, there carried on, to the public advantage, by which means within a few years said place has increas'd to upwards of eighty families among which are twenty widows, seventeen of which have children as families there that the whole number of inhabitants are nigh to five hundred, that there is not among them more than one horse to ten families so that but very few are able to attend meeting at the meeting-house except those that are robust hardy and used to travel on foot, which are very few, the greater number of said inhabitants consisting of women and children, that thereupon the society have for several years consented to have one sermon preached at sd. point every sabbath by their Rev. Pastor which he has performed and is still willing to continue, but their number has so increased that it is very inconvenient for those that do attend public worship (as they have no where to convene but in a small school house or private houses) and many more than at present do attend, would there were room to accommodate them, that for the want of a proper place to meet in for celebrating divine service, many who means the sabbaths are misspent and may be more and more misspent and prophaned, that those who would be glad to build a house and maintain preaching and good order among them, have been and continue unable of themselves to bear the expense by which the cause of religion much suffers there, and the good people among them greatly fear the increase of vice and irreligion. That the town of which ye memorialists are a part, have lately paid and are liable to pay upwards of one thousand pounds for the deficiency of several collectors, that have lately failed that your memorialists from great necessity, by their being very remote from any constant grist mill, have lately contributed £70 as an incour-agement to an undertaker to build a wind mill at sd. Point, which, with about the same sum lately subscribed by sd. inhabitants for a school house, with the great labour and expense they have been at to make roads and Causeways to said point, all of which with the poor success that attended the last year’s fishery and the lowness of markets and the various and different sentiments in the religious denomination of Christians among them, viz: First day Baptists, Seven day Baptists, and the Quakers or those called Friends, are such real grief and great discouragement to your memorialists who are of the established Religion of this Colony that they can no longer think of obtaining a meeting-house by subscription or any other ways among themselves.

"Wherefore they humbly pray that liberty may be granted to build a meeting-house for public worship at said Long Point, and that your Honours would in your great goodness grant them a Lottery for raising a sum sufficient for the purpose aforesaid, or so much as your Honours shall think proper under such restrictions and regulations as your Honours shall think fit and your memorialist as in duty bound shall ever pray.

HISTORY OF STONINGTON.

The managers of the lottery did not at once inaugurate their scheme, nor did they accomplish it until 1777, which was successfully drawn and the necessary funds secured. But the Revolutionary war so absorbed the means of the people that a large part of this sum was used for the defense of the place, and balance invested in Continental bills, which after the close of the war became worthless. Whereupon in 1785, 3 another petition was preferred to the Assembly, for liberty and authority to raise by lottery money enough to make up the four hundred pounds, and others, inhabitants of the first society in Stonington, shewing that they lived at Long Point in said society and are far remote from the place of public worship there, that said place has greatly increased in numbers within a few years past, that the inhabitants of said point and thereabouts are generally poor and unable to build a house to meet for public worship, that if they had a house to meet in for that purpose they apprehend the growth of irreligion and impiety would be prevented &c, praying for a lottery to build a meeting-house, on which a committee have been appointed who have reported in favour of said memorials and affixed a place for building, which report is accepted and thereupon Resolved by this assembly that the memorialists have liberty and they are hereby authorized to raise by way of lottery the sum of £400.0..0 lawful money to be applied for the purpose mentioned in said memorial and also the further sum of £30.0..0 lawful money, to defray the expense of such lottery, and Nathaniel Miner Esq., Joseph Denison 2nd, John Denison 4th, Peleg Chesebrough, and John Brown Jun, all of said Stonington, or any three of them accepting said trust, are hereby appointed managers and directors of said lotteries who should be jointly holden to make good all benefit tickets drawn in such lotteries and shall be sworn to a faithful discharge of their said trust and the adventurers in said lotteries, shall have their remedy against said managers for the benefit tickets by them drawn in manner aforesaid and the monies so raised by said lotteries shall be laid out and applied to the purposes aforesaid and account thereof be rendered to the General Assembly when demanded."—Conn. 3 "At a General Assembly of the State of Connecticut, holden at Hartford in said State on the second Thursday of May, being the 12th. day of said month, and continued by adjournments until the ninth day of June next following Anno. Dom. 1785. Upon the memorial of Nathaniel Miner, John Denison 3rd. & Joseph Denison 2nd. all of Long Point in Stonington, setting forth that they with others of the first Society in said Stonington were on the second Thursday of October, 1774, appointed Managers of a Lottery granted by the Honorable General Assembly to your Memorialists William Morgan and others of the established Religion of the then Colony of Connecticut for the purpose of raising the sum of £400, to build a Meeting-house at said Point. That said Managers proceeded by way of Lottery to raise said sum in Continental Bills towards the close of the Summer of 1777, when your Memorialists for whom the Grant was made, not being apprehensive of the depre-which was granted, and the money raised. Instead of building a new house at the Point they took down the old meeting-house at the Putnam Corners and took it down there and with their lottery fund, old meeting-house and subscription erected a meeting-house at Stonington Point in 1785-6, which work was done under the superintendency of Col. Joseph Smith.

REVOLUTIONARY WAR.

Pending the agitation that preceded the Revolutionary war in all of the colonies, that subsequently united in the Declaration of Independence the town of Stonington was not indifferent to the momentous struggle and in order to give force and effect to their political sentiments assembled in town-meeting, and passed patriotic resolutions. Whereupon the meeting elected a Committee of Correspondence who addressed Major General

1 At a legal town-meeting held in Stonington the 11th day of July 1774, the following resolution was passed:

"Deeply impressed with the alarming and critical situation of our Publick affairs, by the many repeated attacks upon the liberties of the English American Colonies, by sundry acts of parliament, both for the purpose of raising a revenue in America, as well as the late most extraordinary act for blocking up the port of Boston. Think it our indispensable duty to manifest our sentiments upon the important occasion and are most clearly of the opinion that they are repugnant to the spirit, freedom and fundamentals of the British Constitution, and in direct violation of Magna Charter. Their surprising exertion of power which so remarkably distinguished the inauspicious times and necessarily alienate the affections of the Americans from their Mother Country, and the British Merchants and manufacturers will of course be extreme in losing the most beneficial commerce that they derive from any part of the Globe, We recommend as our best advice to the publick, that a General convention of delegates from all the colonies be convened with all possible dispatch and what they in their wisdom, upon the most mature deliberation shall agree upon as most expedient for the interest of this growing fertile and extensive continent; shall be adopted by us, and that in the interim, as a necessary step to open the eyes of the present administration, and to obtain that justice that is due to the worthy descendants of Great Britain, which has of late through an extreme misguided policy been denied, we Wherefore recommend a suspension of all commerce with Great Britain, to immediately take place.

"We are bound in justice to ourselves to declare, that we have ever manifested (and are still ready on all occasions) the most affectionate loyalty to the illustrious house of Hanover; which we are truly sensible consists in nothing more evidently than in a well regulated zeal for liberty and the Constitution.

"A sense of real honor grounded upon principals of religion, and experience, Warren of Boston, who replied in a letter glowing with the loftiest sentiments of patriotism. 9

The people of Stonington not only sympathized with the inhabitants of Boston in their resistance to British aggression, but furnished men and means to enable them to maintain their liberties. They were represented at the battle of Bunker Hill by true and determined men as they were afterwards, in almost every battle field, of the Revolution. After the battle of Bunker Hill, the American army pressed close around Boston and cut off the supplies of the British army to such an extent that they com-

will warrant us to affirm that their endowments of loyalty public spirit of honor, and religion are no where found in higher perfection than in the British Colonies. Notwithstanding what is past, we are still desirous to remain upon our former good understanding, with the mother country, and continue to them their gainfull commerce, provided a repeal of those grievous acts take place.

“We heartily sympathize with our distressed brethren, the Bostonians, who we view as victims sacrificed to the shrine of arbitrary power, and more immediately suffering in the general cause. We rejoice to see so many of the neighboring colonies and even towns vying with each other in their liberal benefactions to the distressed and injured town of Boston. Wherefore we have opened a subscription for the relief of the inhabitants of the town of Boston, which the Committee of Correspondence, viz. Charles Phelps Esq., Dr. Dudley Woodbridge, Col. Henry Babcock, Joseph Denison Esq., Mr. John Dean, Paul Wheeler Esq., Nathaniel Miner Esq., Capt. Daniel Fish, Joseph Palmer Esq., Mr. Benjamin Clark, and Mr. Samuel Prentice are appointed to receive and forward to the selectmen of the town of Boston, and said committee are instructed to correspond with the committees of the different colonies and transmit a copy of this vote to the corresponding committee of Boston, whose well timed zeal, vigilance, and watchful fidelity in the great and most interesting cause of liberty, we cannot sufficiently thank.”

“Boston, August 24th, 1774.

“Gentlemen,—Your elegant and benevolent favor of the first instant yielded us that support and consolation amid our distresses which the generous sympathy of assured friends can never fail to inspire. ’Tis the part of this people to frown on danger, face to face, to stand the focus of rage and malevolence of the inexorable enemies of American freedom.

“Permit us to glory in the dangerous distinction and be assured that, while actuated by the spirit and confident of the aid of such noble auxiliaries we are compelled to support the conflict.

“When liberty is the prize, who would shun the warfare? Who would stoop to waste a coward thought on life? We esteem no sacrifice too great, no

... pelled them to forage for supplies all along the coast of New England, and farther west and south.

Some of the Tories of this region round about had notified Com. James Wallace of the English navy, who had been appointed and commissioned by Admiral Graves of Boston, and given command of three small frigates, "that Stonington was rich in the requisite food for an army and navy, and was also in receipt of a large number of neat stock from Block Island, which had been brought here in a vessel and landed at Long Point, and driven back into the country."

Upon the receipt of this information Com. Wallace came to Long Point, in Stonington, in the frigate "Rose," Aug. 30, 1775, and sent a boat ashore with a peremptory demand for a delivery of said cattle to him, threatening terrible vengeance in case of non-compliance. Refusal having been returned as peremptory as the demand, Com. Wallace sent his tender sloop up the harbor to seize and bring off the cattle and whatever else they could find. Before they could accomplish their object news of their approach spread through the town which aroused the people, and a large number of men from the country had arrived at the Point, and co-operated with the inhabitants of the village, in its defense. A company of men at the time rendezvoused at or near the Road Meeting House, under the command of Capt. William Stanton, marched directly to the Point and joined the men there under the command of Capt. Oliver Smith. Sergt. Amos Gallup, William and George Denison and others to the number of twenty

Conflict too severe to redeem our inestimable rights and privileges. 'Tis for you, brethren, for ourselves, for our united posterity, we hazard all; and permit us humbly to hope, that such a measure of vigilance, fortitude, and perseverance will still be afforded us, that by patiently suffering and noble daring, we may even eventually secure that more precious than Hesperian fruit, the golden apples of freedom.

"We eye the hand of Heaven in the rapid and wonderful union of the colonies; and that generous and universal emulation to prevent the sufferings of the people of this place, give a prelubation of the cup of deliverance. May unerring wisdom dictate the measures to be recommended by the Congress. May a smiling God conduct this people through the thorny paths of difficulty and finally gladden our hearts with success.

"We are, gentlemen, men composed the company of Capt. Stanton. They were armed with Queen Ann muskets which were very effective at long range. Our troops were at first stationed in the Robinson pasture, a tract of land just north of the old Wadawanuck Hotel, and from there marched down to Brown's wharf, where they opened a very effective fire upon the enemy, which compelled them to leave the harbor as fast as they could with a severe loss, when they reported their ill success to their commander. Com. Wallace had for his pilot, a tory, Stephen Peckham, by name, and he succeeded in mooring the frigate "Rose" in a favorable position, with springs on her cables, from which a severe cannonade was opened upon the village, and kept up for several hours. Some of the inhabitants for protection went down into the cellars of their dwelling houses and others sought safety by placing themselves behind large rocks and others fled into the country. The greater part of the houses were more or less injured by the cannonade, but no lives were lost, and only one man was wounded. Com. Wallace did not venture to land and burn the village as he designed, being deterred by the formidable appearance of matters on shore as well as by the drubbing his tender had received. He hovered on our coast for about a week and then disappeared. Long Point was the only place that resisted successfully this prince of marauders, whose operations partook of the nature of both land and sea piracy. During the bombardment Mr. James Tripp, a friend Quaker, then a resident of the village, though a man of peace, felt his patriotism stir within him as he witnessed the injury to the houses by the shot of the enemy, seizing a musket, he said to those near him, "Can you all bear this, I cannot." He than ran down to the shore and discharged his gun at the frigate "Rose" in token of defiance and resistance to the attack of the enemy. During the Revolutionary war there was a large sycamore (buttonwood) tree standing a little southwest of the store now owned by Mr. James H. Brown, then owned and occupied by the Hon. Nathaniel Miner, who was one of the leading patriots of Stonington, at the time. That tree was called Liberty Tree, because the association of young men, styled "Sons of Liberty" and other patriots were accustomed to meet under it and discuss war measures and pass resolutions relative thereto. Evidence of the attack of Com. Wallace upon the village of Stonington Point remained for a long time; traces of cannon shot through some of the houses were plainly visible when the village of Stonington Borough was attacked by Capt. Hardy in 1814. A fort or water battery was erected during the Revolutionary war in the southern part of the village not far from where the lower school house used to stand, with an armament of several long six and nine pounders and one twelve pound carronade. A barrack was also erected for the accommodation of soldiers, which stood between the present edifice of the Baptist church and the residence of the late Mrs. Fanny Kean. No other attack was made on the village during the Revolutionary war. After its close, the battery was allowed to remain without any care and soon run down and went to ruin, and the cannon became dismounted and sunk into the ground. Before the State authorities caused them to be removed, the barrack was altered into a dwelling house, which was afterward burned down. So passed away the forts and barracks of the Revolutionary war in the Borough. During the early days of the Revolution the Stonington Point fort was garrisoned by a strong force and supplied by cannon and munitions of war, for the attack on Long Point had aroused the people of Connecticut to a sense of their danger, especially those residing near the seacoast, which resulted in a special session of the General Assembly, which was convened and held at New Haven in April, 1775, the first act of which was "The appointment of a council of safety," consisting of the Hon. Matthew Griswold, Hon. Eliphalet Dyer, J. Huntington, William Williams, N. Wallace Jr., J. Elderkin, Joshua West, and Benjamin Huntington Esq., to assist the Governor when the Assembly was not in session, with power and authority to direct the marshals and stations of the troops, to be raised for the defence of the colony, as they should judge best, and to see that they were furnished in every respect and for every purpose. At a session of the Governor and Council at Lebanon, Mr. Huntington reported "That he had found one small vessel that could be purchased for two hundred pounds of Edward Hancox of Stonington." After due consideration thereof by the Council he was directed to purchase Mr. Hancox's vessel, which was a schooner called the "Britannia," and in connection with Capt. Deshon and Capt. Niles were authorized to have her speedily rigged and fitted with guns and munitions of war, which was done, and Robert Niles of Norwich was appointed the commander. In session Sept. 4, 1775, Col. Saltonstall and Capt. Deshon were present as a committee from New London and Major Oliver Smith and Capt. Palmer of Stonington. Capt. Palmer stated that Stonington had been lately attacked and bombarded by Com. Wallace and asked the Governor and Council for some military company to be stationed there, and both committees prayed for aid to erect works for defence. Again in session, "Sept. 14th, 1775, it was ordered to enlist 50 men under Maj. Oliver Smith for the defence of Stonington, and for carrying on the works begun there until the 29th of Oct. 1775."

The widow Smith of New London stated that the prisoners who had lately been driven to New London by stress of weather in a vessel piratically taken from Stonington by Com. Wallace of the "Rose," man-of-war, were confined at Windham, and prayed that said prisoners might be exchanged for her son, Amos Smith, B. Green and N. Comstock, who had been taken by said Wallace in New London, which was agreed to and so ordered and done. The General Assembly in session at New Haven Oct. 2, 1775, granted a bounty or pension as follows: Jonathan Weaver Jr., of Stonington, who was a musician in the company of Capt. Oliver Smith was dangerously wounded at Long Point, was allowed £12 4s. and 4d. The Assembly also promoted Capt. Oliver Smith to the office of major.

At a session of the General Assembly at New Haven Dec. 14, 1775, it was ordered that the battery at Stonington should be supplied with six cannon, two 18 and four 12-pounders. At a session of the Governor and Council Feb. 2, 1776, they having been authorized by the Assembly to supply the batteries at Groton, Stonington and New Haven with cannon and munitions of war, which would be very difficult to do unless they should be cast in the furnace of Mr. Smith of Salisbury, Conn. Thereupon Col. Elderkin was appointed to go immediately to Salisbury and give the proper orders and directions.

In session Feb. 23, 1776, Maj. Smith of Stonington urged an addition be made to his men in Stonington for the defense of the town and harbor. The Governor and Council ordered said company of forty men to be augmented to ninety men by voluntary enlistment and to be continued in service until the first day of December (next) unless sooner discharged and to be stationed at or near the fortification in Stonington. Nathan Palmer, Jr., was appointed first lieutenant, John Belcher second lieutenant and Clement Miner, ensign of the company above mentioned under Maj. Oliver Smith, who was authorized to enlist said men with all speed. Nathaniel Miner, Esq., was appointed commissary to provide supplies for the company at said fort.

In session March 23rd, 1776, Capt. Theophilus Stanton of Stonington was appointed captain of the row galley (then building at Norwich, Conn.)

In session April 10th, 1776, an order was given Nathaniel Miner, Esq., for one hundred and fifty pounds as commissary to the troops at the fort, at Long Point, in Stonington. The order was delivered to Nathaniel Gallup.

In session April 29th, 1776, Mr. Miner, the commissary for the company at Stonington, asked for a further sum of money, and the sum of two hundred and fifty pounds was allowed him to provide for said company.

Zadock Brewster was appointed lieutenant of the row galley under the command of Capt. Theophilus Stanton, of Stonington.

At a session of the General Assembly held in May, 1776, Rev. Nathaniel Eells of Stonington was appointed chaplain of the regiment to be stationed at or near New London.

At a session of the Governor and Council held July 2, 1776, Oliver Smith of Stonington was appointed lieutenant colonel of the regiment at New London in place of Col. Mott, promoted. Nathan Palmer was appointed captain of the company stationed at Stonington in the place of Col. Oliver Smith, promoted. John Belcher, first lieutenant, Clement Miner, second lieutenant, Moses Palmer, second ensign of said company. N. Shaw was ordered to deliver to the commanding officer at New London, or to Col. Oliver Smith, for the use of the fort at Stonington five hundred pounds of cannon powder. The delay in procuring the necessary means of defence and the detention of some of the heavier guns designed for the place caused great dissatisfaction among the people of Stonington, who memorialized the General Assembly as follows, viz.:

"To the Hon, the General Assembly, now setting at New Haven.

"The memorial of the committee of correspondence and inspection of the town of Stonington and sundry of the inhabitants of said town most humbly sheweth That whereas your Honors thought fit in your last Session in May, to grant for the defence and protection of this place, a Capt. and 90 men, since which one half have been ordered to New London. Your Honors may remember that this Town, is the only one in this State, that has received any damage from those sons of tyranny and despotism sent by that more than savage tyrant George, the Third, to deprive us of those unalienable rights that the Supreme Gov. of Heaven and Earth has invested us with.

"Your memorialists therefore pray that the number of men ordered and destined as above may still be continued and that the two 18 pounders and four 12 pounders and shot etc. that were ordered in your former session for this place, may be delivered as soon as possible as the harbor is perhaps more used by coasters and vessels bound to sea, than any harbor in this State, and is a place of great consequence, not only to this, but other States. We therefore beg leave to inform your Honors, that several vessels have lately been chased into our Harbor by the King's ships and have here been protected. Your memorialists further pray, that the three large cannon (now at New London) belonging to this town, be likewise ordered to this place and the two field pieces that were lent by this town to the town of New London, be ordered back to the town of Stonington. We therefore flatter ourselves that this our most reasonable request will be granted.

At a session of the Governor and Council of Connecticut February 15, 1777, Capt. William Ledyard of Groton and Capt. Nathan Palmer of Stonington were sent for to consult about raising artillery companies. General Parsons was desired to draw on Cols. Huntington's and Durkee's regiments at the posts and forts at New London, Groton, and Stonington for defense at those places. Capt. Nathan Palmer, at Stonington, was directed to dismiss his company as soon as General Parsons should send to that place a sufficiency of Continental troops for the defense of that post. The Governor and Council also voted to raise a company of artillery to be stationed at Groton and Stonington until Feb. 1, 1778. Capt. William Ledyard was appointed captain of said company.

In session March 20, 1777, an order was given to Nathaniel Miner to purchase or seize ten thousand pounds of cheese in Stonington for the State. Capt. Nathan Palmer, of Stonington, was directed to purchase twenty thousand weight of cheese to supply the State troops at the price fixed by law; provided, he should be unable to purchase the same, and found in the hands of any person more than was sufficient for their family use, he was authorized to seize and take the same for the purpose aforesaid, and pay them the price fixed by law, and make report of his doings.

In session March 26, 1777, Capt. Nathan Palmer seized eleven thousand six hundred and eighteen pounds of cheese per order of the Governor and Council, the property of Church & Hakes, at six-pence per pound, with one and a half per cent. for commissions, being £299 16s. 6d; cheese sent to Norwich; also, for services about the fort at Stonington, £15 7s. 6d.

In session May 12, 1777, Capt. Palmer was directed to remove the public stores at Stonington back into the country to a place of safety. Orders were also given to the commanding officers of the forts of New London and Groton to order the troops, drafted from northern companies in Stonington, to march directly to the forts at Stonington, to man that place for defense, and those drafted from northern companies in Connecticut, to return home and hold themselves in readiness to move on the shortest notice for the defense of those posts.

In session May 31, 1777, it was ordered that one half of the militia at the forts of New London and Groton were ordered to be drawn off by lot and dismissed, and all the militia companies at Stonington dismissed, and the officers at those posts were directed to execute the same. Their orders were not executed fully, and before the troops were dismissed at Stonington they were ordered to remain by Governor Trumbull.

In session Sept. 26, 1777, it was ordered that a lieutenant and thirty men were to continue at Stonington. Sept. 26, 1777, a ship of two hundred tons, prize to Capt. Conklin, of the privateer "Revenge," arrived at Stonington, laden with seventy-five thousand feet of mahogany and thirty tons of logwood. About an hour after his prize came to anchor, Capt. Conklin was chased by a man-of-war and schooner of twelve guns belonging to the English fleet, and the English vessels, in attempting to head Capt. Conklin and cut him off from land, ran on Watch Hill reef, about one mile from Capt. Conklin, who came to anchor within Watch Point, now known as Sandy Point. A brisk fire was kept up between them for several hours, and the man-of-war came to anchor just without the schooner, to protect her against Capt. Conklin. The schooner remained on the reef until the next morning, when the British set her on fire in the hold, and then went on board the man-of-war's boat and left her, and she was blown up by her magazine. The guns, some small-arms and anchors were saved, and a man found dead by the side of her. Capt. Conklin escaped unhurt.

At a session of the Governor and Council, Nov. 18, 1777, orders were sent to Gen. Tyler to send from his brigade (by draft) twenty men, to be stationed at Stonington, to serve for two months from the time of their arrival there.

In session Feb. 6, 1778, Capt. William Ledyard, in pursuance of an act of the General Assembly, on the second Thursday of January, A. D. 1778, was appointed captain of a company of fifty men, including one captain, one lieutenant, one second lieutenant, fireworkers, two sergeants, and two corporals, to be stationed at Stonington and Groton and to be continued in service until Jan. 1st, 1779, unless sooner discharged.

In session March 25, 1778, William Ledyard Esq., was appointed to command the forts at New London, Groton and Stonington, with the rank and pay of major. Achors Sheffield was appointed first lieutenant of the company of twenty men at Stonington.

In session April 21, 1778, Henry Denison of Stonington was appointed second lieutenant of the artillery company under Col. Latham at Groton, and commissioned. It was resolved that four men should be allowed in addition to the number of artillery men under Lieut. Achors Sheffield at Stonington and said Sheffield was ordered to enlist them. Twelve hundred pounds of cannon powder for William Ledyard, to be used at Groton, New London and Stonington. Capt. Nathan Palmer was directed to deliver to Lieut. Sheffield as many guns, over and above the eight guns he had, to arm his whole party of twenty-four men. Owing to the scarcity of the munitions of war, it was with the greatest difficulty that the troops could be properly armed and equipped. The fort or battery at Stonington never received the cannon designed for it; they were used at New London and Groton. Some of the British ships lay off in sight of the town during the greater part of the war, but made no further attempt to take or destroy the place. Towards its close the danger of invasion was not considered so imminent and the detail of the men at the fort was discontinued. There is no perfect roll or list of the men of Stonington who served in the army of the Revolution, but from the most reliable information now in existence I have compiled the following list:

The following are true copies of the records of Stonington showing the deep interest manifested by the inhabitants thereof for her patriotic soldiers in the armies of the Revolutionary war:

I have no reliable information, showing how many of the patriot soldiers of Stonington, who entered their country's service, lost their lives on the battle fields of the American Revolution, or died from wounds or sickness while in their country's service. The companies and regiments to which they were assigned participated in nearly all of the great battles of the war, and some of them must have fallen, but no record shows that any of them deserted or turned traitor to freedom's cause.

Lieut. Enoch Stanton and his brother, Daniel Stanton, and Thomas Williams of this town, fell in the battle and massacre of Fort Griswold, Sept. 6th, 1781, and their cousins, Edward and Daniel Stanton of Stonington, were dangerously wounded in that inhuman massacre. They both rallied and recovered after long continued suffering.
WAR OF 1812.

Nothing of especial interest occurred in this town after the close of the Revolutionary war and the ratification and adoption of the Constitution of the United States, by a convention assembled at Hartford, Conn., by authority of the General Assembly of the State Jan. 9th, 1788, wherein this town was ably represented in the affirmative by its representatives, Nathaniel Miner Esq. and Dr. Charles Phelps, beyond the annual election of town officers and representatives to the General Assembly and laying of taxes to defray the cost of the Revolution, until the war clouds again appeared between the United States and Great Britain. The embargo acts of Congress, which were so severely denounced and resisted in the Courts of New England found active and influential defenders. In order to give force and expression to their views on that subject a town meeting was called and held in Stonington March 27th, 1809, which adopted a preamble and resolutions, denouncing all opposition to the embargo acts of Congress and all who did not approve of them, closing with an order to send a copy of their proceedings to the then President of the United States. The determination of the British government to impress American seamen into their service, and other belligerent acts on her part, led to several armed collisions and finally culminated in a declaration of war by the United States government against Great Britain, June 18, 1812. Very little had ever been done by the general government for the defense of our seacoast. Long Point since the close of the Revolution had materially increased in population and wealth. The General Assembly had incorporated the place into a Borough in 1801. Mystic was but a small village at the time, composed largely of enterprising, seafaring men. Before the embargo, the foreign trade of the town of Stonington was almost entirely with the West Indies, and generally productive of large gains. During the war, and especially after the spring of 1813, our seacoast was blockaded by a British squadron, which at first well nigh annihilated all our commerce, but a few grave, resolute, enterprising men ran the blockade and carried on business with New York. Privateers were fitted out and were successful in most cases in capturing English vessels. We lost the sloop "Fox" in 1813, which was taken by the privateer "Hero," fitted out at Mystic and manned by Stonington and Groton men. Other feats of heroism and successful daring, by Groton and Stonington men combined, took place on the ocean before the close of the war. During its first year England had her hands full with European conflicts, but in the spring of 1813 she managed to send a formidable fleet to our shores and blockaded Long Island Sound. Stonington Borough had received two eighteen pounders from the General government for the defense of the place. A battery had been erected there during the Revolution which had almost disappeared. But the inhabitants, with the guards stationed there, drafted from the militia of the State, had erected another battery, the north end of which terminated at the northeast corner of the Messrs. Atwood's silk manufacturing establishment. So apprehensive were the people of Stonington Borough that their village would be attacked and burned by the British fleet that they sought the aid of the State, and the Governor of Connecticut ordered detachments from the militia to be drafted and stationed there. There were six of these detachments of militia who served at Stonington Borough, four of which were commanded by Lieut. Horatio G. Lewis, one by Lieut. Samuel Hough, and one by Sergt. Peleg Hancox. On the 19th day of June, 1813, a portion of the British fleet, under the command of Commodore T. M. Hardy, approached New London, creating fearful apprehension on the part of the people of that place and Groton Bank. Memories of the battle and massacre at Fort Griswold, Sept. 6th, 1781, intensified the excitement and alarm. Brig. Gen. Jirah Isham, then in command, immediately summoned his brigade by orders borne by post-riders, directed to the lieutenant colonels commanding the regiments of his brigade. The following is a copy of the order directed to Lieut. Col. Randall, then in command of the Thirtieth regiment, composed of eight companies of infantry, four from Stonington and four from North Stonington:

"To Lieut. Col. William Randall, commanding the 30th Regiment, 3rd Brigade, Conn. Militia:

"Sir—You will immediately on the receipt of this, order the regiment under your command to march to the defence of New London, Groton and vicinity, giving them notice to be armed and equipped according to law. Lose no time as those places are in such imminent danger of invasion as will admit of no delay.

"Headquarters at New London, June 19th, 1813.

"JIRAH ISHAM,
Brig. Gen. 3rd Brigade Commanding.

"By order of Geo. A. Perkins, Maj. 3rd Brigade."

Immediately on receipt of this order, Col. Randall, though living in the country and widely separated from his staff and from most of the officers of his regiment, acted with such energy and dispatch that his whole regiment paraded on Groton Bank the next morning, after marching nearly all night in a raging tempest to assemble and reach the place some fifteen miles away. The roll-call showed the presence of Lieut. Col. William Randall, First Maj. Nathan Wheeler, Second Maj. Nathan Pendleton, Adjutant Cyrus Williams, Paymaster Samuel Chapman, Quartermaster Latham Hull, Surgeon’s Mate John Billings, Sergt. Maj. Nathan Smith, Quartermaster’s Sergt. John P. Williams, Drum Maj. Augustus A. Williams, Fife Maj. Christopher Dewey, six captains (one absent, and one vacancy), seven lieutenants, eight ensigns, twenty-six sergeants, twenty-one corporals, two hundred and nine privates; total, three hundred and eighty-eight men. This muster of a regiment that made up a roll at its review, and dress parade in October following of only two hundred and forty-two men shows something of the spirit of our citizens and soldiers in the face of the threatened invasion, and of the confidence reposed in their commander. Col. Randall was a brave, efficient and energetic officer, and during the whole war commanded the Thirtieth regiment, who were proud of him and most cheerfully obeyed his orders under all circumstances.

The British fleet, after making a showy demonstration at the mouth of the Thames, went back to their anchorage ground in Gardner’s Bay, relieving the inhabitants of Groton Bank and New London of their impending danger. Gen. Isham’s brigade remained in camp at New London and Groton Bank for several days awaiting another demonstration from Commodore Hardy, who wisely kept his fleet at their old anchorage. On the morning of June 25th, Gen. Isham ordered the lieutenant colonels commanding each regiment of his brigade to detach about one half of the officers and men of their respective regiments to remain in service, the remainder thereof to be discharged and to return to their homes. In pursuance thereof, Col. Randall issued the following order:

"Regimental Orders, 30th Regiment, 3rd Brigade Conn. Militia.

"I am directed by Brig. Gen. Jirah Isham to detach from the regiment under my command now in service at Groton Bank (omitting in said detachment the eighth company, who were from Stonington Borough, and were then needed for defense of that place), thus, 1 major, 1 adjutant, 1 quartermaster, 1 chaplain, 1 surgeon's mate, 2 captains, 2 lieutenants, 2 ensigns, 8 sergeants, 8 corporals, 120 privates, who are to remain in service until further orders."

Gen. Isham, after ordering Col. Randall to detach his officers and men as aforesaid, tendered to him, his subordinate officers and soldiers his warmest thanks for their "alacrity and unusual promptitude, manifested by them while disregarding the tempestuous state of the weather, they appeared in defence of the rights and sovereignty of their country, when threatened with immediate danger.

"Dated at headquarters, June 25th, 1813.

"WILLIAM RANDALL, Lieut.-Col. Commanding.

"By order Cyrus Williams, Adjutant."

Towards the end of June, 1813, Gen. Burbeck arrived in New London and assumed the military command of the district, which had been assumed by the general government. The troops then on duty probably did not exceed eight hundred men, and belonged to the militia of the State, and were under no orders but those of the Governor. The refusal of Connecticut to place her militia under the orders of the United States to be marched away from her protection to Canada and elsewhere had greatly vexed the general government, who had determined on a change. So Gen. Burbeck on the 12th day of July, 1813, in pursuance of an order from the Secretary of War, dismissed the whole force, and our Stonington men then on duty at New London returned to their homes, but General Burbeck did not dismiss the guard at Stonington then under the command of Lieut. Horatio G. Lewis. But the evacuation of Forts Griswold and Trumbull, without a man on duty to protect the property there, and at a time, too, when the British fleet in the Sound was largely augmented, created a panic, not only among the inhabitants over there but at Stonington, who felt the protection of a large force at New London and Groton Bank. By some underground communication the officers of the British squadron had learned of the discharge of our military force, and the next day the "Ramillies" and her consorts came up to the mouth of the harbor and saluted the panic stricken inhabitants with a tremendous cannonade. General Burbeck realizing the danger of the situation, on his own responsibility applied to the Governor for a temporary force, who authorized Maj. Gen. William Williams to call out as large a body of militia as emergencies should demand. But no additional requisition was made on Col. Randall for any more troops from Stonington. During the latter part of July, August and September, the British squadron were so much engaged in blockading the river Thames and the eastern approach of Long Island Sound through the Race, and in pursuing the Yankee privateers that vexed their commerce, that they did not molest the village of Stonington; but during October their threatening attitude alarmed the inhabitants, who petitioned the Governor under the approval of Brig. Gen. Burbeck, commanding the United States troops at New London, who in reply issued the following order:

"New Haven, 29 October, 1813.

"Col. William Randall, 30th Regiment of Militia:

"Sir—Pursuant to a request of certain inhabitants of the Town of Stonington and of Brigadier Gen. Burbeck, commanding the United States troops at New London, I do hereby, in conformity to advice of the Council, direct you to detach from your Regiment one subaltern, two sergeants, two corporals, and twenty-six privates, for a guard at Stonington Point, to serve from the first day of November next to the 30th of the same month, inclusive, unless sooner discharged. Application must be immediately made to Brigadier-General Burbeck, at New London, for provisions, to whom also the subaltern commanding the detachment will apply for orders, and to whom he must make a report from time to time as he shall be directed.

"I am, Sir, your Obt. servant,

"JOHN COTTON SMITH, Capt. General."

Pursuant to the order of Governor Smith, Col. Randall detached the requisite number of men from his regiment, which he put under the command of Lieut. Horatio G. Lewis, and they served at Stonington Borough during the time ordered by the Governor, receiving their army rations from Gen. Burbeck of New London. During the winter months of 1813 and 1814 no alarming demonstrations were made by the enemy, but as soon as the spring opened of 1814, unusual activity was observed on their part, which became so formidable that another draft upon the militia was made for a detachment of forty-one men to be stationed at Stonington, under the command of Lieut. Horatio G. Lewis. This detachment served from May 31st to June 30th, 1814, when they were dismissed, and another detachment of forty-one men were drafted from the militia in the northern part of the State, took their places and served from June 29th to August 29th, 1814, when they were dismissed. This detachment was under the command of Lieut. Samuel Hough.

The war thus far had progressed with varying success. The navy of the United States had immortalized itself upon the ocean, while on the land our armies, though small in numbers, had performed prodigies of valor. The early part of this year was marked by some of the most momentous events of the world’s history. Napoleon was overthrown after a fearful struggle and the treaty of peace at Fontainebleau, which was concluded April 4, 1814, between France and the allied powers of Europe, released the larger part of the British army from active service there; and as soon as the exigencies of the case would admit were transported to this country and employed against the United States. So all-pervading was the apprehension of an attack from the enemy on our seacoast that the captain-general of our State, in the early spring of 1814, issued orders to the militia, through their superior officers, as follows, viz.:

BRIGADE ORDERS.

"Pursuant to orders and instructions from his Excellency the Commander in chief. The Brigadier General directs that an inspection be made without delay of the troops under your command, and you will see that they are in every respect prepared, as the law directs, for immediate service. If orders cannot be furnished to the respective Captains in season to have the inspection made on the first Monday in May next, it is the pleasure of the Captain General that the inspection may be performed by the commissioned officers at the dwellings of the men to prevent burdensome meetings of the militia. The Captain General relies with confidence on the zeal and fidelity of the several officers in the performance of the duty so essential at the present juncture. From the recent movements of the Hostile Squadron in our waters, there is reason to apprehend that further attempts will be made to invade the territory of the State, as well as to destroy the vessels in our harbor. For these reasons the Brigadier General is directed by his Excellency the Commander in Chief, to call upon all officers and soldiers, of the 3rd Brigade to hold themselves, in readiness to march at a moment's warning, completely equipped and furnished for immediate and actual service. The respective Lieut. Cols. Commandant of Regiments will immediately on the receipt of this, establish some suitable place, on the most elevated ground and as near the center of their Regiment, as possible, which they will provide at the expense of the state (for a signal to give notice to their men, in case of an alarm), several Tar Barrels to be raised one at a time on the end of a pole to be erected for that purpose, and burnt in succession as circumstances will require, the Barrels to be furnished with such a quality of tar and other articles as to burn the longest time practicable, and emit the largest quantity of fire and smoke, particularly the latter, if fired in the day time, and have them so arranged that fire may be put to them in a moment, and some proper officer must be entrusted with this duty residing near the spot. Let this be done without delay in each Regiment, and notice given as soon as possible to the brigadier of the place where these signals are erected, and also the names of the officers who are appointed to take charge of them. Should an alarm first come to the knowledge of the Brigadier, he will send expresses to the officer who has charge of the signal in these regiments whose services may be required, and the Commandant will do the like, in their respective regiments should the alarm first reach them, and should the signals be made at any time of day or night, the troops in the Regiment will forthwith and without further order, assemble at some alarm post (as near the southern limits of their Regiments as can be with convenience), to be previously designated by the respective commandants and notified in their orders, from which alarm posts (to be also communicated to the Brigadiers) the men will march as soon as a company or part of a company has assembled, to such point as the Commandant of Regiments shall direct, if they first notify the alarm, or as shall be directed by the brigadier, in case he gives notice, and in that case he will by express, at the same time he notifies the officer in charge of the signals, also gives notice to the colonel where to march his men. In addition to these signals a Capt. commanding artillery companies will, when the signals are made, immediately fire three alarm guns in quick succession.

"Given under my hand at New London this 28th day of April one thousand eight hundred and fourteen. "JIRAH ISHAM, Brigadier General.

"By order: George L. Perkins, Brig. Maj.

"General Jirah Isham:

"Sir—Your order of the 28th of April, 1814, came to hand the 9th of May, and I have given the necessary orders as therein directed. I have established the place for the signals near the dwelling-house of Maj. Nathan Wheeler, on what is called Grant's Hill, and have directed him to erect a pole and procure tar barrels to burn in case of alarm; who will also take charge of the signals and give notice to the Brigadier should an alarm take place in this Regiment and the quartermaster and quartermaster sergeant of the regiment will also attend to their orders and assist in giving the signals, and such other duties as circumstances may require.

"WILLIAM RANDALL,

"Dated at Stonington, May 15th, 1814.
By the 1st of July, 1814, the British squadron in Long Island Sound was largely augmented, and so imposing was their armament and so imminent was the danger of invasion, and so divided were the American people relative to the origin and mode of prosecuting the war, that President Madison, on the 8th of August, 1814, issued a proclamation calling an extra session of Congress.

The language of the proclamation indicates the danger apprehended by the President, for he said: "Whereas great and weighty matters claiming the consideration of the Congress of the United States form an extraordinary occasion for convening them," etc. The blockade of the harbors on the Connecticut coast was so close and effectual that it was almost impossible for an American vessel to leave or enter our ports, but now and then a privateer would slip by, or through the British fleet.

On the 30th of July, 1814, a privateer disguised as a merchant vessel, with a crew of fifty men, made her appearance in Long Island Sound, running in for the north shore. She was discovered, and a British barge, under the command of Midshipman Thomas Barret Powers, was dispatched in pursuit. Not knowing her true character, and seeing but a few men on deck, not more than were necessary for the navigation of the vessel, Powers pressed on for a prize. The wind being light he soon overhauled her, and when within short musket-range the men rushed upon deck, and Powers immediately took off his hat in token of surrender. A Dutchman among the crew without orders leveled his musket and shot Powers through the head, killing him instantly. The barge surrendered and was brought into Stonington Borough. The remains of the young midshipman were buried with military honors in the burial place now embraced in the Stonington cemetery. The Rev. Ira Hart, then chaplain of the Thirtieth regiment, delivered an appropriate address on the occasion, which was listened to with deep feeling, drawing tears from many an eye unused to weep.

This unfortunate young officer was but eighteen years of age, and great sympathy was manifested for his untimely end.

After peace took place with England, late in the summer of 1815, a grave and elderly gentleman came to Stonington and quietly took lodgings at the hotel kept by Capt. Thomas Swan. Soon after he arrived he inquired for the clergyman of the place, who was sent for and introduced. He then revealed to him his name and his mission, telling him that he had come all the way from England to visit the grave of his only son, and to thank him and other kind friends for the Christian burial extended to his dear boy. Mr. Hart, who was a man of strong sympathies, was deeply moved for his stranger friend, and procuring a carriage took him to the burial place of his son.

Before the British fleet left our waters, the Hon. Capt. Piget and his brother officers of the ship “Superb” erected a monument to the memory of the fallen midshipman. When the monument that marked the last resting place of his son came in view, he requested Mr. Hart to remain, as he wished to be alone by the grave. Slowly and with reverent steps he approached it, when, overpowered with the agony of his own sorrows, he fell upon the grave and wept with unrestrained emotion until the fountains of nature were exhausted. Composing himself at length, he rejoined Mr. Hart, who had witnessed his grief, when together they returned to the hotel. Before leaving Mr. Powers expressed himself in grateful terms for the kindness and consideration to his feelings which Mr. Hart had manifested, and warmly shook his hand at parting.

When the British fleet was seen in motion, sailing easterly, August 9th, 1814, the people of Stonington Borough did not believe that ships of such size would dare to venture in Fisher’s Island Sound, on account of its water depth and reefs; but when those ships were seen coming in between Fisher’s Island and the mainland their object became apparent, which was soon disclosed by a flag in charge of an officer from the ship “Pactolus,” who approached the place in a boat, which was met by a boat from the shore which received this note from the officer in command of the fleet:

"His Majesty’s Ship "Pactolus," 9th of August, 1814, half-past 5 o’clock p. m.

"Not wishing to destroy the unoffending inhabitants residing in the town of Stonington, one hour is given them from the receipt of this to move out of town.

"T. M. HARDY, Captain H. B. M. Ship 'Ramillies.'
"To the inhabitants of the Town of Stonington."

From the date of this communication it will appear that Commander Hardy was himself on board the “Pactolus” to direct the attack, the “Ramillies” then lying at anchor at the west of Fisher's Island. The people assembled in great numbers to hear what was the word from the enemy, when the above was read aloud. The enemy in the barge lay upon their oars a few moments, probably to see the crowd and if some consternation might not prevail.

Whatever effect was produced, this we know, that Sir Thomas's unoffending inhabitants did not agree to give up the ship, though threatened by a force competent, in a human view, to destroy them, when compared with the present means of defense in their power. It was exclaimed from old and young, "We will defend." The male citizens, though duly appreciating the humanity of Sir Thomas in not wishing to destroy them, thought proper to defend their wives and their children, and, in many instances, all their property, and we feel a pleasure in saying that a united spirit of defence prevailed, and during the short hour granted us, expresses were sent to Gen. Cushing at New London and to Col. Randall, whose regiment resided nearest to the scene of danger. The detachment stationed here under Lieut. Hough was embodied; Capt. Potter residing within the Borough gave orders to assemble all the officers and men under his command that could be immediately collected. They cheerfully and quickly assembled, animated with the true spirit of patriotism. The ammunition of our two 18-pounders and 4-pounder was collected at the little breastwork erected by ourselves. The citizens of the Borough assisted by two strangers from Massachusetts manned the 18-pounders at the breastwork, and also the 4-pounder. One cause of discouragement only seemed to prevail, which was the deficiency of ammunition.

Whatever opinion the majority of the people of Connecticut might have expressed as to the propriety of declaring war with England in 1812, without adequate preparation for the same, when the war was declared, were united in defending their State from invasion of the enemy. But as soon as the British fleet were seen approaching Stonington harbor, Aug. 9th, 1814, then the tar barrel signals of danger were soon ablaze. Col. Randall ever on the alert, though living about five miles away, reached the Borough before dark and issued the following orders, which did not reach but a small number of his regiment, some of whom lived fifteen miles away from the Borough. It was the blazing tar barrels, so erected as to be seen all over the area of his regiment, that set the patriotism of his soldiers on fire, who rushed by every possible means of conveyance and on foot to the scene of conflict, eager to meet the enemy who they expected would land and before daylight of the 10th of August, the whole regiment, officers and soldiers, had reached the Borough.

The following is a copy of Col. Randall’s order issued as aforesaid:

“To the 30th Regiment Connecticut Militia:

“In consequence of an attack on Stonington Borough, and in pursuance of orders received from the Brigadier, this Regiment is called into active service, and will assemble at the Public House of Oliver York forthwith, and officers and soldiers will attend to this order and warn others and assemble accordingly.

The public house of Oliver York was situated on the southeast corner of the Wadawanuck Hotel grounds. Col. Randall’s regiment had been mainly summoned by the tar barrel signals, and without stopping to form as companies went immediately to Stonington Borough, were organized out of reach of the enemy’s guns and held in readiness to repel any landing that they might attempt.

The militia of the State of Connecticut at the time of the last war with England were organized with conformity to a law of Congress enacted in 1792, consisting of divisions, brigades, regiments, battalions, and companies. The eastern division of the State militia was at that time commanded by Maj. Gen. Williams, assisted by staff officers Maj. Francis Richards, Maj. Thomas Shaw Perkins, aides-de-camp; Lieut. Col. Coddington Billings, inspector; Robert Coit, quartermaster. The Third Brigade of said division was commanded by Brig. Gen. Jirah Isham, assisted by staff-officers Martin Lee, aide-de-camp; George L. Perkins, brigade major; Henry Wheat, quartermaster.

The Thirtieth regiment of said brigade was commanded by Lieut. Col. William Randall, and the following is a correct roll of the field and staff officers of said regiment and their attendants at the battle of Stonington, Aug. 10, 1814:

William Randall, lieutenant colonel; Nathan Wheeler, first major; Nathan Pendleton, second major; Henry Chesebro, adjutant; Samuel Chapman, quartermaster; Giles R. Hallam, paymaster; Ira Hart, chaplain; William
WAR OF 1812.

Lord, surgeon; John Billings, surgeon's mate; Nathan Smith, sergeant-major; John P. Williams, second sergeant-major; Augustus L. Babcock, drum-major; Christopher Dewey, fife-major; John Champlain, Henry Newgaren, Giles Wheeler, Ira R. Wheeler, Nathan S. Pendleton, John Frink, Charles T. Hart, Thomas Brooks, waiters.

The following roll-copies of the eight companies of said regiment show the names of the men who responded to their country's call and marched to Stonington Borough to defend the place when attacked by the British fleet, Aug. 9th and 10th, 1814:

THIRTIETH REGIMENT.

Eighth Company.—William Potter, captain; Horatio G. Lewis, lieutenant; Daniel Frink, ensign; Francis Amy, Charles H. Smith, Peleg Hancock, sergeants; Gurdon Trumbull, Azariah Stanton, Jr., Junius Chesebrough, Joshua Swan, Jr., corporals; Privates, Phineas Wilcox, Hamilton White, Henry Wilcox, Nathan Wilcox, Samuel Burich, Jonathan Palmer, Andrew P. Stanton, James Stanton, Thomas Breed, Amos Loper, Samuel Bottom, Jr., Benjamin Merritt, Elihu Chesebrough, Jr., Christopher Wheeler, Amos Hancock, Zebediah Palmer, Nathaniel Waldron, Thomas Spencer, Nathaniel M. Pendleton, Simon Carew, Eliza Faxon, Jr., Ebenezer Halpin, Asa Wilcox, Jr., Warren Palmer, Joseph Bailey, Jr., Nathaniel Lewis.
The day after the battle the following orders were issued by the commanding officer:

"Headquarters, Aug. 11, 1814.

"Sir—By order of the Gen. commanding you will detach one company of (about 30 men) from the regiment under your command to stand guard at or near the bridge during the night, from which a patrolling party will be kept out, and be relieved from time to time. The party will be extended about one mile from the west end of the bridge to give information of the movements of the enemy, and communicate the same to headquarters.

"By order GEORGE L. PERKINS, Brig. Maj.

"To Col. William Randall, 30th Regt."

"Headquarters, Stonington, Aug. 12th, 1814.

"Sir—By order of the Gen. commanding, you will please detach Maj. Wheeler, of the 30th Regt., to take command of the guards to be stationed conformable to the enclosed order, which you will please hand to him, at the same time direct that he repair to this place at an early period for the above purpose.

"Major Wheeler will not neglect to station the said detachment before sun-setting, and report from time to time during the night, as is required by the enclosed order directed to Lieut.-Col. Tracy, of the 20th Regiment.

"GEO. L. PERKINS, Maj. Brig.

"Lieut.-Col. Wm. Randall, 30th Regt."

"Sir—The General commanding has directed Col. William Belcher to furnish forty men to be put under your command for the purpose of extinguishing fires. You can call on him for the whole or any part of that number of men at any time when they are required.

By order: MARTIN LEE, Aide-de-Camp.

"Capt. William Potter.

"August 12, 1814."

There have been several accounts of the battle of Stonington written and published, none of which gave as an accurate description thereof as the letter addressed by the Hon. Amos Palmer of Stonington to the Secretary of War at Washington, D. C., which was as follows:

"Stonington Borough, Aug. 21, 1815.

"To the Hon. William H. Crawford, Secretary of War:

"Sir—The former Secretary of War put into my hands as chairman of the committee of defence, the two eighteen-pounders and all the munitions of war that were here belonging to the general government, to be used for the general defence of the town, and I give my receipt for the same. As there is no military officer here, it becomes my duty to inform you of the use we have made of it. That on the 9th of Aug. last (year) the "Ramillies," seventy-four, the "Pactolus" forty-four, the "Terror" bomb-ship, and the "Despatch," gun-brig anchored off the harbor. Com. Hardy sent a boat with a flag, we met him with another from the shore, when the officer of the flag handed me a note from Com. Hardy informing us that one hour was given to the unoffending inhabitants before the town would be destroyed.
"We returned to the shore, where all the male inhabitants were collected. When I read the note aloud, they all exclaimed they would defend the place to the last extremity, and if it was destroyed they would be buried in the ruins.

"We repaired to the small battery that we had hove up; nailed our colors to the flag-staff. Others lined the shore with their muskets. About seven in the evening they put off five barges and a large launch, carrying from thirty-two to nine-pound carronades in their bows, and opened fire from their shipping with bombs, carcasses, rockets, round grape and canister shot, and sent their boats to land under cover of their fire. We let them come within small grape distance, when we opened our fire upon them from our two eighteen-pounders with round and grape shot. They soon retreated out of grape distance and attempted a landing on the east side of the village. We dragged a six-pounder that we had mounted over and met them with grape, and all our muskets opened fire on them. So they were willing to retreat the second time. They continued their fire till eleven at night. The next morning at seven o'clock, the brig "Despatch" anchored within pistol shot of our battery and they sent five barges and two large launches to land under cover of their whole fire (being joined by the "Nimrod," twenty-gun brig). When the boats approached within grape distance we opened our fire on them with round and grape shot. They retreated and came round the east side of the town. We checked them with our six-pounder and muskets till we dragged over one of our eighteen-pounders. We put in it a round shot and about forty or fifty pounds of grape, and placed it in the center of their boats as they were rowing up in a line and firing on us. We tore one of their boats all in pieces, so that two, one on each side, had to lash her up to keep her from sinking. They retreated out of grape distance, and we turned our fire upon the brig and expended all our cartridges but five, which we reserved for the boats if they made another attempt to land. We then lay four hours, being unable to annoy the enemy in the least, except from muskets on the brig, while the fire from the whole fleet was directed against our buildings. After the third express from New London, some fixed ammunition arrived. We then turned our cannon on the brig, and she soon cut her cable and drifted out. The whole fleet then weighed and anchored nearly out of reach of shot, and continued this and the next day to bombard the town. They set the buildings on fire in more than twenty places, and we as often put them out. In the three days' bombardment they sent on shore sixty tons of metal and strange to say, wounded only one man. We have picked up fifteen tons, including some that was taken up out of the water and the two anchors that we got. We took up and buried four poor fellows that were hove overboard out of the sinking barge.

"Since peace, the officers of the "Dispatch" brig have been on shore here. They acknowledged they had twenty-one killed and fifty wounded, and further say, had we continued our fire any longer, they would have surrendered for they were in a sinking condition, for the wind then blew from the southwest directly into the harbor. Before the ammunition arrived it shifted around to the north, and blew out of the harbor. All of the shot suitable for the cannon we have reserved. We have now more eighteen-pound shot than was sent us by the government. We have put the two cannon in the arsenal and housed all the munitions of war.

"AMOS PALMER."

Major Gen. Williams of Stonington, living in New London at the time, issued an order to Brig. Gen. Jirah Isham to call out his brigade for the defense of Stonington, which was immediately done.

The following is a copy of the order issued by him to Col. Randall, of the Thirtieth regiment, which did not reach him until long after he had issued his orders and nearly all of his regiment had reached the scene of trouble:

"New London, Aug. 9th, 1814, half past eight P. M.
"Lieut. Col. Wm. Randall, Com. of the 30th Regt. 3rd Brigade Conn. Militia:
"Sir,—Pursuant to orders from the Major General of the 3rd Division, you will immediately call your Regt. into service in addition to the signals to be given at your signal pole (if not already done), you will use every exertion to get all your Regt. out as soon as possible and march them immediately to Stonington Point, that place being in imminent danger of invasion. Lose no time.

"Yours Respectfully,
"JIRAH ISHAM, Brig. Gen. 3rd Brigade."

The battle of Stonington was not a victory for the British fleet. They doubtless intended to burn the place, in fact they declared that, having ample means in their possession, they would destroy it and that they did not, was owing to the bravery of its defenders. From some unaccountable neglect on the part of the authorities of the State or Nation there were not a dozen rounds of ammunition for our cannon on hand at the time of the attack. It seems almost incredible that a place as much exposed as the Borough, with a succession of military detachments detailed for its protection, with three cannon and a battery erected for defense, should all have been provided without ammunition for an hour's fight. But so it was and but for the powder obtained from New London during the bombardment, and some gathered from Capt. George Fellows and others, our battery with its guns would have been well-nigh useless. Sergt. Maj. Nathan Smith, then residing in the Borough, communicated to Col. Randall the approach of the hostile fleet, who gave the alarm through his signals on Grant's Hill, and hastened to the Borough with all the men he could rally on his way, some five miles.
Capt. William Potter, then in command of the Eighth company of the Thirtieth regiment, immediately assembled all of his command in reach, consisting of twenty-one men, including officers, out of a roll of thirty-four men. He joined Lieut. Hough with his detachment, numbering forty-two men, which added to the militia under the command of Col. Randall, assisted by a number of volunteers, defended the place as best they could during the evening of August 9th until nearly midnight, when the enemy ceased firing; and but for the spirited resistance that the barges and launches received from the militia and volunteers under the command of Col. Randall, the enemy would have landed and burned the place. During the remainder of the night a large part of Col. Randall's regiment, observing the signals, hastened to the place, and before the break of day two hundred and twenty-seven men, including officers, had reached headquarters, and were assigned to their respective companies, which, added to Capt. Potter's and Lieut. Hough's men, aggregated a force of two hundred and ninety men, not including Col. Randall's staff. Thus marshalled they awaited the coming day, and at the early dawn of Aug. 10th another attempt was made by the enemy to land from their barges and launches, coming around on the east side of the Borough, firing shot and shell into the place. As soon as the approach of the enemy was discovered some of the volunteers drew the four-pounder across the Point to prevent the enemy from landing. Col. Randall, observing the movement of the enemy, ordered his whole force down to the lower end of the Point to meet them, and when he reached the battery he ordered a detachment of his men and the volunteers who were acting under military orders to draw one of the eighteen-pounders across the town, so as to repel the apprehended landing. The gun was manned and directed by Ensign Daniel Frink, of Capt. Potter's company, and so well was it handled that the enemy was compelled to recede and seek safety in flight. The prompt assembling of Col. Randall's regiment and their presence at this moment prevented the enemy from attempting another landing during the bombardment of the place.

This attempt of the enemy to attack the village on the east side thereof was designed to effect a landing there and burn the place, the result of which was so well described by Mr. Amos Palmer in his letter to the then Secretary of War, that I will not attempt to repeat it. The battery was manned by volunteers, some of which belonged to the militia, some were sea-faring men and others residents of the town.

It is difficult to say at this distance of time from the battle, how many men actually entered the battery and handled the guns on the 9th and 10th of August, 1814, or how many and who assisted in bringing ammunition to them in the battery, or making cartridges for their use. From the best attainable information on hand the Stonington Borough men were: Capt.
George Fellows, Capt. William Potter, Lieut. Horatio G. Lewis, Ensign Daniel Frink, Alexander G. Smith, Amos Denison, Jr., Elihu Chesebrough, Jr., Rev. Jabez S. Swan, Luke Palmer, George Palmer, Thomas Wilcox and Asa Lee.

The Mystic men were Silas E. Burrows, Capt. Jeremiah Holmes, Capt. Jeremiah Haley, Frederick Denison, Capt.
Nathaniel Clift, Capt. Simeon Haley, Isaac Denison, Ebenezer Denison, and Frederick Haley. From the rural districts of Stonington were John Miner, Jesse Dean, John Dean Gallup, Charles T. Stanton, Charles P. Wheeler, and Jonathan Denison, who refused to enter the battery, but fought the enemy from the shore with his musket at long range.

The Groton men were Ebenezer Morgan, Stanton Gallup, Alfred White, Frank Daniels, Giles Moran; the New London men were Maj. Simeon Smith, Capt. Noah Lester, Maj. N. Frink and Lambert Williams; the Massachusetts men were Capt.
Leonard, Wm. G. Bush, and Mr. Dunham, and no doubt others.
The fire from the battery on the 9th was under the command of Capt. George Fellows, and under the command of Capt. Jeremiah Holmes on the 10th of August. Both were brave men and true. Capt. Holmes' three years' service on board of a British man-of-war, the greater part of which he served as captain of a gun, enabled him to direct the guns in the battery with great precision. He double-shotted the eighteen-pounders, and sent the shot plunging through the brig below her water lines.
There were other volunteers who rendered important services in extinguishing fires, and in other ways, which the government has recognized, and granted to the participants land warrants under a law of Congress enacted in 1856, viz.: Henry Smith, Benjamin T. Ash, Pitts D. Frink, William C. Moss, Charles R. Randall, and Jesse Breed, and perhaps others.
Edward Stanton, a Revolutionary hero, who was fearfully and dangerously wounded at Fort Griswold, Sept. 6, 1781, living some five miles away from the scene of action, immediately on hearing the first gun, took his trusty musket and marched for the Borough, saying, with emphasis, that he had shed a part of his blood for his country in the Revolution, and if necessary was fully prepared to shed the last drop of it in defense of his country.

It was plainly evident that the enemy were determined to burn the village of Stonington, not only from the declared purpose of Capt. Hardy, but from the use of rockets and carcasses in the bombardment. In order to prevent the consummation of this purpose, Col. Randall, on the evening of the 9th, detached Charles H. Smith, then the second sergeant of Capt. Potter's company (and afterwards its captain), and twenty men of the regiment to follow up and extinguish all the fires that might be kindled by the missiles of the enemy. This service was bravely and efficiently done, and a large number of fires extinguished. This duty was as perilous as a place in the battery. It is to be regretted that a list of these brave men has not been preserved. They were daily relieved by detachments taking their places.

Gen. Isham and staff arrived from New London about noon, August 10th, and took command, fixing his headquarters at the dwelling house of Capt. Nathaniel Palmer. Col. Randall's headquarters were at the hotel of Oliver York, that stood on the southeast corner of the Wadawanuck Hotel grounds. The glory of the battle of Stonington cannot all be showered upon the men who worked the guns in the battery, though they immortalized themselves by their heroic conduct and Spartan bravery. Col. Randall, his staff, and the officers and men of his regiment for their prompt and energetic behavior in meeting and repelling the enemy's boats in their efforts to land and burn the place on the evening of the 9th and the morning of the 10th of August, entitles them to the highest honors. Especially should that brave band of soldiers who watched the carcasses and rockets in their fiery circles, and extinguished them before they could kindle a flame be remembered with everlasting gratitude. To every one who participated in the defense of Stonington in August, 1814, Stonington cheerfully awards a full measure of praise, and will cherish their memory and gratefully appreciate their heroic services.
A HEROINE.—An elderly lady, by the name of Huldah Hall, lived at Stonington Borough during the last war with England. She was in feeble and rapidly declining health, when Capt. Hardy, on the 9th of August, 1814, gave one hour’s notice for the unoffending inhabitants of the place to be removed. She was attended by an only daughter bearing her name, who had been her sole companion during her weary declining years. During the excitement and alarm caused by Capt. Hardy’s order, and the hasty departure of the unoffending, there were no efforts made for the removal of Mrs. Hall. Nor is it certain that she was able to be removed at the time, if an effort for that purpose had been made. The house occupied by Mrs. Hall stood close in the rear of the battle, and was dangerously exposed to the shot and shell of the enemy. During the evening of the 9th of August it became apparent that Mrs. Hall was rapidly sinking, doubtless hastened by the bombardment of the place, and on the 10th of August, amid the thunders of the bombardment and the deafening roar of the guns in the battery, she breathed her last. Beside her bed during all of the excitement and dangers of battle stood the brave-hearted daughter, tenderly watching with loving ministrations her dying mother, though shot and shell crushed through the house, and through the room where they were. No sooner was life extinct than the daughter, throwing a light shawl over her head, went down to the battery amid the flying shot and shell to get assistance to remove and bury her mother. When seen approaching by the men in the battery they were awe-struck, trembling for her safety, though reckless of their own. When informed of her errand, four men were detached and went with her to the house, carefully and tenderly inclosed her remains in the bed and bed-clothes where she lay and bore her to the old Robinson burial place, in the Borough, attended by the daughter. In a deep cut made by the explosion of a bomb-shell, without any form or ceremony, except the thunders of the bombardment, they buried her remains. While cheerfully awarding the highest honors to the men who so bravely defended Stonington, let us drop a tear to the memory of this heroic child, believing that the viewless artists of the skies have woven for her garlands of immortal glory.

In pursuance of the order of Maj. Gen. William Williams issued August 9, 1814, addressed to, and directing Brig. Gen.
Jirah Isham to call out his brigade, which consisted of four regiments, comprising all of the infantry militia of New London County, to march to Stonington Borough forthwith, for its defense, which order was immediately complied with by Gen. Isham, and all four regiments assembled at Stonington Borough as soon as possible. Col. Randall's Thirty-first regiment assembled before the break of day Aug. 10th. The Eighth regiment, commanded by Lieut. Col. William Belcher, was the next on the ground. The Thirty-third regiment, commanded by Lieut. Col. Asa Comstock, and the Twentieth regiment, commanded by Lieut. Col. Charles Thomas, living remote from the Borough, was notified by post riders, and came as soon as possible. No railroads or telegraphs were then in existence and much more time was then required to assemble two regiments at Stonington Borough from the northern and western towns of our County than now, but they came as soon as notified, by teams and on foot, ready and eager to meet and repulse the enemy. These four regiments remained on duty at the Borough until they were dismissed by order of Gen. Isham (except a few drafted men) as follows: The Twentieth regiment was dismissed on Tuesday, the 27th of August, 1814; the Eighth regiment was dismissed on Wednesday, the 24th inst.; the Thirty-third regiment was dismissed on Thursday, the 26th inst.; the Thirtieth regiment was dismissed Friday, the 26th inst.; the brigade and regimental staff was dismissed on Saturday the 27th inst.

The British fleet did not again attempt to destroy the village of Stonington Borough during the war, but an apprehension on the part of the people of the place that they might again do so, caused them to apply to Col. Randall for another detachment of militia to act as guard, and he complied with their request and detached Sergt. Peleg Hancox with fourteen men from Capt. Potter's company, who served from Sept. 27th to Nov. 15th, 1814. Peace with Great Britain came in February, 1815, and with it unusual prosperity. In celebrating the event, a young man by the name of Thomas Stanton, of Pawcatuck, was instantly killed at Stonington Borough by the premature discharge of a cannon, which was being fired in honor of peace.

Stonington was largely interested in commerce before the war of 1812, which revived after its close. Manufacturing was introduced and successfully pursued on a large scale in the State of Connecticut, this town having a full share. Nothing of importance beyond the yearly routine of town and State elections, with a Presidential election every four years, happened in our midst to attract particular attention, until the Mexican war. But that did not materially affect our interests, it only served to stimulate the politics of the day. Later on the acquisition of territory, resulting from the war, brought to the surface again the irrepressible conflict between slavery and freedom. The conflict of opinions between the North and South began to assume a more violent form and finally culminated in open rebellion by the slave-holding states. After the election of Abraham Lincoln, as President of the United States in 1860, the slave-holding states began to secede. This town favored the restoration of the Union by coercive measures and sent to our armies many of our best and bravest sons. The following list shows the Stonington Roll of Honor:

Since the close of the Rebellion, our town has suffered its full measure from the inflation and contractions of the currency. Since specie payment has been restored, business has revived and confidence in business circles has been established. Thus the town of Stonington, where William Chesebrough first built his forest home in 1649, has grown to be a community of 7,353 inhabitants with a grand list of $5,390,130. The people for intelligence and enterprise are the equal of any township in this State. The soil is strong, rugged and hard to cultivate, but when properly cared for yields remunerative crops.
SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR.

April 21st, 1898, war was declared by the Congress of the United States against Spain, which continued until August 11th, 1898, when Spain accepted terms of peace, proposed by the American government. April 23rd, 1898, the President called for 125,000 volunteers, which was increased to 200,000 May 25th, 1898, and was nobly responded to by the patriotic young men of the United States. Two full companies of volunteers were recruited in Stonington, Conn., one by Captain Hadlai A. Hull, who was promoted to Major, Sept. 23rd, 1898, and after peace was concluded, resigned October 17th, 1898. The other was recruited at Pawcatuck, Conn., by Cornelius Bransfield, who retired after the close of the war. The heroism displayed by the American volunteers brought the war to a close in a very short time.
ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY.

The first church organized in the town of Stonington was formed June 3, 1674. The preliminary steps taken for the organization of the church originated in the following vote, passed at a town meeting held at Stonington, on the 6th day of April, 1669: "It was voted that those of the inhabitants whose hearts God shall move that way, may have liberty to address themselves to the General Court for liberty to erect and gather a church among us."

It was legally passed by vote, "That there should be another town meeting on Thursday, next come a seven night, being the 15th day of April next ensuing the date thereof, for any who have a desire to propound themselves as to be beginners of the Church, may give in their names to Mr. Noyes at that meeting at the Meeting house, about nine of the clock in the forenoon."

Whether this adjourned meeting assembled or not does not appear from the record, but a petition to the General Court was preferred, asking liberty to associate in church order, which after due consideration was passed upon as follows, viz.: Several inhabitants of Stonington petitioning this Court for their approbation that they might settle themselves in church order, this Court grants them their petition. But before they organized themselves into church order they (the town) set out five hundred acres of land for the support of the ministry, met and agreed to build a new meeting-house and fixed the site, and laid out home lots of twelve acres each for every inhabitant around it. Built the meeting house in 1672-3, dedicated it and on the 3rd day of June, 1674, organized the church with nine members, viz.: Mr. James Noyes, Mr. Thomas Stanton, Mr. Nathaniel Chesebrough, Mr. Thomas Miner, Mr. Nehemiah Palmer, Mr. Ephraim Miner, Mr. Thomas Stanton, Jr., Mr. Moses Palmer, Mr. Thomas Wheeler. They established a covenant when they formed the church, in harmony with the Savoy confession.
Previous to the organization of the church, all of the religious services here were held and conducted by ministers, called by a vote of the town and paid for from its treasury. Such services were at first held at the dwelling-houses of the planters. In 1661 the town erected a meeting-house which stood a short distance west of Mistuxet avenue, southwest of the residence of Mr. Henry M. Palmer. This house was used for religious and town meetings until 1672-4 when the town voted to build, and did build a large edifice for religious and town service and located it on Agreement Hill, so named by the town as a compromise settlement between the (then) inhabitants of the town. This meeting-house stood until 1729, when it was taken down and another house was built on its enlarged site. These two meeting-houses stood a few rods west of the present church edifice at the road on the original Agreement Hill. Rev. James Noyes was called by the town to preach here as a licentiate in 1664, and so continued until Sept. 10th, 1674, when he was ordained, and labored successfully with the church as its pastor until his death, which took place Dec. 30, 1719. Before the close of Mr. Noyes' pastorate the people who had settled in the north part of the town became anxious to have religious services held in their vicinity. As early as 1722 the town was divided into two religious societies for the public worship of God. Subsequent proceedings show that a controversy arose about the location of the dividing line, which was referred to the General Assembly in 1720, who appointed a committee to arrange it, but their report was set aside by the Assembly on a remonstrance of certain persons, and another committee was appointed in 1721, who came to Stonington and established the dividing line, which is substantially the dividing line between the towns of Stonington and North Stonington. The Rev. Ebenzer Rossiter of Guilford, Conn., by ordination, succeeded Mr. Noyes as the pastor of the church Dec. 19, 1722. During his pastorate the Second Congregational Church of Stonington, now the North Stonington Congregational Church, was formed. Owing principally to the location of the site of a new meeting-house which the church and society had in contemplation, a serious controversy arose, which resulted in a division of both and the erection of a meeting-house at the center farm or Putnam Corners, and the call and settlement of the Rev. Nathaniel Eells of Scituate, Mass., who was ordained June 14th, 1733. Mr. Rossiter and Mr. Eells preached in their respective parishes in Stonington until the death of Mr. Rossiter. The church and society became reconciled and were again united under the pastorate of Mr. Eells, who preached for six months alternately to each church for a while, when yielding to the wishes of his parishioners, who resided at Stonington Point he commenced preaching at the Road meeting-house Sunday mornings and at the Academy at the Point in the afternoon, and so continued while he lived, and just before his death the meeting-house at the Putnam Corners was taken down and rebuilt at Stonington Point.

Mr. Eells was succeeded in the pastorate of the First Church by the Rev. Hezekiah N. Woodruff, of Farmington, Conn., who was ordained July 2nd, 1789, and continued pastor of the church until June, 1803, when he was dismissed by a mutual council. After him came the Rev. Ira Hart, of Bristol, Conn., who was installed Dec. 6th, 1809, and labored with them successfully as their pastor until his death, which took place Oct. 29th, 1829.

Next came Mr. Joseph Whittlesey, of Washington, Conn., who was ordained May 27th, 1830, and continued their pastor until Dec. 14, 1832, when he was dismissed at his own request by mutual council. He was succeeded by the Rev. N. B. Cook, of Long Island, followed by the Rev. Pliny F. Warner, Rev. Paul Couch, Rev. John C. Wilson, and the Rev. John O. Barrows, the present pastor by installation.

The Second Congregational Church of Stonington, now North Stonington, was organized in 1727. The controversy over the boundary line, dividing the town of Stonington into two religious societies, and the location of their first meeting-house, served to divide the people as to the choice of a pastor for the church. After calling Mr. William Worthington, Mr. Thomas Craghead and Mr. Jabez Wight, they finally agreed upon Mr. Ebenezer Russell as and for their gospel preaching minister, who was ordained Feb. 22, 1727, at which time the church was organized. Rev. Mr. Russell continued pastor of the church until his death, which took place May 22, 1731.

The church and society then invited Mr. Joseph Fish, who was ordained Dec. 27th, 1732, and for a few years Mr. Fish's pastorate was eminently successful. "The new light" awakening, as it was generally called by the people, served to divide the church, which resulted in the organization of a strict Congregational or Separatist Church, Sept. 11, 1746. These two Congregational churches maintained separate religious worship until March 16th, 1827, when they were reunited under the ministries of the Rev. Joseph Ayer.

The next church in the town of Stonington was the Baptist Church, organized at Pung-hung-we-nuck Hill in 1743, and was the outcome of the great awakening (so called) which commenced under the preaching of Drs. Edwards and Whitfield. Mr. Wait Palmer, one of the awakened converts, became their first pastor, but for something not now fully known he was excluded from the church after nearly twenty years' service. He has been succeeded by pastors worthy of their calling.

The next church organized in Stonington was formed in 1765, and its meeting-house was erected on Shunuck Hill. Simeon Brown was ordained their first pastor in March, 1763. He was a native of Stonington, and a man of sterling worth, but not a pulpit orator. Other ministers, natives of Stonington, succeeded him in the pastorate of this church.

The next church of Stonington was the Baptist Church, organized in 1775 at Long Point (now Stonington Borough), where most of its members resided. During the years of its organization Sir James Wallace bombarded the place, which with the events and scenes of the Revolutionary war, doubtless, delayed the progress of the church. This church was gathered under the pastorate of the Rev. John Rathbone. Its first meeting-house was not built until the close of the Revolutionary war and was a substantial building, some forty feet square. This church has had twelve pastorates and a membership at one time of three hundred and fifty. The present house of worship was erected during the pastorate of the Rev. Albert G. Palmer, and is a magnificent building of modern architecture, and most admirably arranged. Owing to the want of a proper title to the site of its former meeting-house, and the questionable authority of using its funds in the purchase of the site of its present church, and in order to vest the property entirely in the church, independent of trustees or societies, the members of the church were in 1889 constituted and created by the Legislature of Connecticut a body politic and corporate by the name of the First Baptist Church of Stonington Borough, with full power to receive, hold and mortgage any and all, both real and personal, that may be given or descend to said church. The present pastor of the church is the Rev. Henry Clark, who was called to the pastorate in 1891.

No more churches were organized in Stonington before the division of the town in 1807. Pending the agitation and controversial feeling between the inhabitants of the northern and southern sections of the town of Stonington, relative to the old mail stage route, and the layout of the new highway from Stonington Borough to Old Mystic, and the construction of the bridge over Lambert's Cove, Pine Tree Point to Quanaduct, in order to give the electors of the town an opportunity to decide the matter in question, a town meeting was legally warned and held at the old meeting-house at the Road, April 5th, 1807, for the express purpose of dividing the town of Stonington so as to relieve the taxpayers of the northern section of the town from the cost of the new highway and bridge. The meeting was largely attended, and after an animated and heated discussion of the matter in question, it was voted, by a small majority thereof, to divide said town into separate townships by the old society line, and that the north part shall be called Jefferson. When the General Assembly met the May following, the division of the town was duly considered and adopted and divided on the line suggested, but the name of Jefferson for the new town was not adopted for the reason that the society of North Stonington had been so named by the General Assembly, and had had charge of the schools therein for a great many years, and the name had become identified with its vital interests, so it was considered not best to change it, and the new town was called North Stonington.

The first church organized in Stonington after the division of the town was the Methodist Episcopal Church at Old Mystic. As early as 1816 several Methodist clergymen visited Old Mystic, and preached occasionally; but no efforts were made to organize a class, preparatory to the promotion of a church until 1824, when a class was organized consisting of seven persons. No minister was stationed at Old Mystic until 1826, when the Rev. Newell S. Spauding was assigned to that place. The first Quarterly Conference was held Aug. 13 and 14, 1828. The first house of worship erected by the Methodist Society was dedicated January, 1849. Prior to this time they had worshipped in the Union meeting-house, now used as a livery stable. The first house of worship (Methodist Episcopal) was forty-two by thirty-three feet, costing about eighteen hundred dollars. Unfortunately it was destroyed by fire Feb. 17th, 1851. The loss was very severe, but undismayed the church and society resolved to build another and a better church, which was completed before the close of the year, and the people were again worshipping God under their own vine and fig tree. In 1882 it was renovated and re-dedicated, and again in 1894. This church has been under the pastoral care of eminent ministers, and is now enjoying the pastorate of the Rev. A. E. Legg.

The Second or Third Congregational Church and Society of Stonington was organized as follows: The First Congregational Society of Stonington, after several unsuccessful attempts to divide itself into two societies by metes and bounds, called a meeting to assemble on the 28th day of September, 1833, and after mature deliberation took a new departure and adopted a plan for organizing a new church and society in Stonington, viz.:

"That whenever forty members of the First Society should withdraw and organize a new Congregational Society at the Borough and elect society officers, and shall give notice to the old society of their doings within thirty days from the day of the meeting, the new society shall then be regarded as organized and receive $1,825 of the old society's fund." The conditions were immediately complied with at the meeting. Forty-five members of the society withdrew, formed a new society, and took their money and invested it in a new meeting-house. As soon as the new society was formed, ninety-three members of the First Church seceded and organized the Second Church in connection with said society Nov. 11th, 1833. Their first settled pastor was the Rev. John C. Nichols, who was called and installed May 17th, 1834. After laboring with that people for about five years; he was dismissed by a mutual council. Since then that church has had a succession of pastors, whose labors have been blessed to them as follows: Rev. Jonathan Erskine Edwards was ordained and installed April 7th, 1840, and was dismissed by a mutual council, April 13th, 1843. He was followed by Rev. William Clift, who was ordained and installed Dec. 17th, 1844; dismissed by a mutual council April 21st, 1864. He was succeeded by Rev. Edward Whiting Gilman, who was installed Sept. 14th, 1864, dismissed by a mutual council April 25th, 1871. After him came the Rev. Henry Wheaton Wales, who was installed Oct. 18th, 1871, and dismissed by a mutual council Aug. 2nd, 1874. Following him was the Rev. Henry Barnes Elliott, who labored with the church as acting pastor thereof until April 1st, 1880, when the Rev. Henry B. Mead was called to the pastorate of the church, and was continued as such until the Rev. Charles J. Hill was called to the church to become the pastor, which he accepted, and was installed May 19th, 1888, and labored with that church until his dismissal by a mutual council. The present clergyman officiating as the pastor of the church is the Rev. William C. Stiles, who was installed by a mutual council in 1898.

The Methodist Episcopal Church at Mystic, Conn., was organized in 1835, under the labors of a circuit preacher, the Rev. Hermon Perry. The first house of worship was built, and the Rev. Wm. S. Simmons was the first pastor. In 1867 this present church edifice was built. They sold the first church building to the Roman Catholics. The Rev. Wm. S. Simmons has been succeeded by eminent clergymen, whose labors have been most acceptable to the people of their charge. The present pastor is the Rev. John McVey.

Pawcatuck Congregational Church.—During the year 1843 six members of the First, with sixteen members of the Second Congregational Church of Stonington residing in the vicinity of Pawcatuck Bridge united, with the advice and consent of a council of neighboring churches with them assembled, and formed a new church there, Feb. 14th, 1843, under the name and title of the Pawcatuck Congregational Church. Their first public religious services were held at the old Union meeting-house and in the hall of the Academy until 1849, when they erected their new meeting-house which, to accommodate their increasing congregation has since been twice enlarged.

The first settled minister was the Rev. S. B. Goodenow, who was called and settled April 1st, 1843. He remained but one year. The next pastor was the Rev. Joshua Brown, settled May 1st, 1844, and after two months’ labor terminated his connection with the church. Rev. James D. Moore commenced his labors with the church July 21st, 1844, and remained until 1846, when Mr. Whitmore came and remained for one year. Rev. A. L.
Whitman was settled in 1847, and continued to labor with the church until 1866, when he resigned, and was dismissed by a mutual council that year. Mr. Whitman was followed by the Rev. E. W. Root, who came in 1867, and remained until 1870. Then came the Rev. A. H. Wilcox, who was settled in 1872, but whose failing health compelled him to resign. He was succeeded by the Rev. D. N. Beach, who in turn was followed by the Rev. John P. Hawley, who resigned Sept. 30th, 1883, and was dismissed by a mutual council soon after. March 18th, 1884, a call was extended to Rev. George L. Clark, which he accepted by letter April 9th, 1884, and was installed by mutual council May 29th, 1884, and continued his labors with the church successfully until he resigned his pastorate August 15th, 1888, which was accepted by the church August 27th, 1888, after which he was dismissed by a mutual council.

April 15th, 1889, the church voted to extend a call to Rev. Hiram L. Kelsey, of Boston, Mass., which was accepted by him, April 23rd, 1889, when he came to Westerly and commenced his labors with the church and so continued until April 6th, 1890, when he tendered his resignation, which the church declined to accept. On May 7th, 1891, Mr. Kelsey again resigned, to go into effect July 1st, 1891, which resignation was accepted by the church May 29th, 1891, after which he was dismissed by mutual council.

During the fall of the year of 1891, Mr. D. L. Moody recommended a young man, Mr. Samuel M. Cathcart, to supply the church for a while, and the church formally requested him to come and remain with them one month, which was acceded to by him, and on the 26th day of October, 1891, the church voted to invite Mr. S. M. Cathcart to remain with them for an indefinite period. After the expiration of the month, Mr. Cathcart consented to remain as supply for an indefinite period, but upon further reflection and consideration with the church, decided to give his preparatory studies his entire attention, so the church on Dec. 14th, 1891, gave a call to Rev. Samuel H. Woodrow, of Yale Divinity School of New Haven, Conn., which was accepted by him Dec. 30th, 1891, and he was ordained and installed by a mutual council, and remained with the church as their pastor, preaching with great acceptance until Oct. 15th, 1895, when he resigned his pastorate and was dismissed by a mutual council.
On Feb. 29th, 1896, a call was extended to Rev. Edgar L. Warren, of North Attleboro, Mass., and by him accepted March 11th, 1896, after which he was installed pastor of the church, and continued as such until his dismissal by a mutual council. He has been succeeded by Rev. Frank H. Decker, who was installed by a mutual council in 1898 as pastor of the church.

The Third Baptist Church of Stonington.—This church was gathered and organized Oct. 14th, 1846. Their pastors have been Rev. Flint, Rev. Joseph Lewis, Rev. William Spellman, of New York, William Smith of Groton Bank, Conn., Rev. Erastus Denison of Mystic, Conn., D. B. Bailey of Mystic, Rev. G. N. Hamblin of Providence, Rev. Solomon Gale of Mystic preached nearly 12 years; Rev. William L. Francis of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Rev. William J. Nayter of Florida was with the church for a time; just now the church has no settled pastor.

Greenmanville Seventh-Day Baptist Church.—This church was organized in 1850, consisting of about forty members. Their meeting-house was erected in 1851. The Rev. Sherman S. Griswold was the first regular pastor, and held the position for about fifteen years. During his pastorate he became interested in our common schools, and held the position of school visitor for several years, laboring very successfully for the promotion of public education. He was succeeded by Rev. L. E. Livermore, whose pastorate commenced in 1866. He was succeeded by Rev. Charles A. Burdick, whose pastorate commenced in 1869. He was followed by Rev. S. L. Gardiner, whose pastorate commenced in 1875. He was followed by Rev. O. D. Sherman in 1880.

Calvary Episcopal Church.—The Calvary parish, under the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States, diocese of Connecticut, was formed May 31st, 1847. The corner-stone of this beautiful little stone church (built from plans by Upjohn, the celebrated architect) was laid Sept. 3, 1847. This church went forward to completion, and was consecrated May 31, 1849. The Rev. Junius Marshall Willey was the first rector, being called to the rectorship March 23rd, 1847. He remained till 1854, when Rev. W. W. Bronson entered upon his rectorship, and remained till 1856. The third rector was the Rev. Daniel C. Weston, D. D., who continued till the spring of 1863. Upon his resignation, the Rev. J. C. Middleton became its rector and continued till 1871. He was followed by the Rev. Rufus Emery until 1873, when the Rev. W. C. Hyde became the rector and remained till 1874. He was succeeded by the Rev. Thomas Mallaby, who remained five years. In 1880 the Rev. Alfred Goldsborough took charge and remained till 1884. After him came the Rev. Stevens Parker, D. D., until 1888, when the Rev. S. H. Gallaudet came, who remained only a few months, and he was succeeded by the Rev. Charles Westerman. After his resignation in 1890, the parish was in charge of the Rev. Joseph Hooper, rector of St. Mary's Church at Mystic, until 1892, when the Rev. Edward W. Babcock became rector, resigning Feb. 1st, 1896, upon the same Sunday the Rev. Erit B. Schmitt, the present rector, assumed charge.

Pawcatuck Catholic Church, St. Michael's.—About fifty years ago, Father Felton, of Boston, came to Pawcatuck to celebrate mass, and preach for the benefit of the Catholics then residing at Pawcatuck and Westerly. There being no church edifice of that order then at Pawcatuck, he held and conducted his services in the open air. The trustees of the Union meeting-house tendered him the use of that building for religious services as he might have occasion to use it. He continued his ministrations for about five years, and was succeeded by Father Daley for one year, who was followed by Father Duffy, under whose regime the Roman Catholic Church at Stonington Borough was erected and dedicated by Bishop O'Reilly in the year 1851, who afterwards perished at sea in the ill-fated "Pacific." Father Duffy remained pastor for two years, and was succeeded by Father Thomas Dray, who remained for six years, who in turn has been succeeded by several priests, whose ministrations have been acceptable to the people of their charge. During these years, the present church building, parsonage and convent school have been erected on Berry Hill at Pawcatuck.

Mystic Congregational Church.—This church was organized by thirty-seven seceding members from the First Congregational Church of Stonington, with five persons from other churches, on the 30th day of January, 1852, under the approval of a committee of the Consociation of Congregational Ministers and Churches of New London County, consisting of Rev. Messrs. A. McEwen, D. D., moderator, Timothy Tuttle, Jared R. Avery, William Clift, and Myron N. Morris, clerk. For the first year the pulpit was supplied by several ministers of the gospel. A call to settle was first extended to the Rev. D. R. Austin, which was declined. An invitation was then extended to the Rev. Walter R. Long to become the pastor of the church, which he accepted, and was duly installed Sept. 15th, 1853. He continued with the church for about ten years, preaching very acceptably to the people of his charge. He was dismissed by a ministerial council March 29th, 1863. He was succeeded by the Rev. Charles H. Boyd, who was settled as the second pastor of the church in May, 1859, and continued to labor with the church and people until May 6th, 1865, when, on account of failing health he was obliged to resign. He was formally dismissed by mutual council in January, 1866, and died soon after. Mr. Boyd was succeeded by Rev. Algernon Goodnough, who was settled pastor of the church, and was installed June 3rd, 1866, and dismissed by mutual council Feb. 26th, 1867. Rev. William Clift succeeded Mr. Goodnough. He was installed March 9th, 1869, and after laboring with the people of his charge until Nov. 13th, 1879, he was dismissed by a mutual council. Rev. Charles H. Oliphant commenced his labors with this church as its acting pastor June 1st, 1879, and continued as such until Aug. 31st, 1884, when he closed his labors with them. Rev. Herbert S. Brown succeeded Mr. Oliphant. He was installed June 23rd, 1886, and labored with the people of his charge until Aug. 11th, 1890, when he was dismissed by a mutual council. Rev. Austin H. Burr began his labors with the church Oct. 1st, 1890, as their acting pastor, and continued with them until failing health compelled him to resign his charge, dying Dec. 5th, 1891. J. Romayn Danforth succeeded Mr. Burr, and was ordained and installed Oct. 25th, 1892, by a mutual council. Mr. Danforth's labors with the church have been productive of the best results, with flattering prospects of increasing usefulness in the future. The cornerstone of their present church edifice was laid with appropriate ceremonies Nov. 24th, 1859, and went on to completion and dedication. It was enlarged in 1869 by the addition of fourteen feet to its length. The present officiating clergyman with the church is the Rev. Claire F. Luther.

The Advent Christian Association was organized in Stonington Borough September 1st, 1874, by Capt. George S. Brewster, William H. Smith, William F. Tanner, and Benjamin C. Brown, who commenced religious services at the dwelling-houses of the associated brethren, until they secured the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association, where they now worship. The organization of this association was brought about by a few conscientious, devoted men, whose efforts have been blessed until their members have increased beyond their expectations. Like all of the primitive churches of New England, they started with a fixed purpose, disregarding all opposing forces, and with unshaken faith trusted in Him who doeth all things well. They have no settled pastor, but enjoy a stated supply from neighboring churches. The church is greatly indebted to Capt. George S. Brewster for his unselfish devotion to its interests.

St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church at Mystic.—The church edifice was purchased from the Methodist Episcopal Society, and dedicated in 1870. Rev. P. P. Lawlor, first pastor, was succeeded by Rev. Wm. Hart, Nov. 18, 1872, who remained until April 9th, 1873. He was followed then by Father John Fleming, who remained until Sept. 11th, 1881. He was succeeded by Rev. J. F. Dougherty, who remained until Sept. 19th, 1895, when Rev. J. F. Murphy took charge, and is now the present pastor.

Quiambaug Chapel.—Formerly religious meetings and Sunday schools were held in Quiambaug school-house in Stonington, composed of all religious denominations in that region roundabout. Some of the people in that vicinity had repeatedly expressed an opinion that a school-house was not a proper place for such meetings, especially during school terms, so an effort was made and generally concurred in to raise by subscription money sufficient to build a chapel of adequate dimensions to accommodate the people of that vicinity. The money was raised, a site was procured and the corner-stone of the chapel was laid December 27th, 1889, and the building was erected and dedicated in April, 1890. Sunday school sessions and other religious services have been held in the chapel to the present time, productive of great and lasting good.

Wequetequock Chapel.—Sunday School sessions were formerly held at the Wequetequock school-house, later on at the chapel there, erected by the Calvary Episcopal Church of Stonington for mission services; but for reasons not generally well understood the Sunday school services were transferred to, and held in the parlors of the Second Congregational Society’s dwelling-house at Wequetequock, where they were held until the Episcopal chapel was purchased Nov. 9th, 1893, by the Wequetequock Chapel Association, a corporation organized and existing on the basis of a union non-sectarian, joint stock association, since which time the Sunday School sessions have been in the chapel, where other religious services have been held by clergymen and other prominent men of the surrounding parishes.

The Sunday School sessions have been held under the superintendence of Dea. Joshua Haley of the Second Congregational Church of Stonington for eighteen years and have been productive of great and lasting good to all attending and participating. A union association of ladies has been formed, whose influence has enlarged the patronage of the association. Since its purchase the chapel has been repaired and beautified, and with gifts from those interested now presents an attractive appearance with ample sheds, all showing the progress of the association.

St. Mary’s Roman Catholic Church at Stonington Borough.—This church was formed in 1851, and the edifice was erected the same year by subscriptions from the Catholics of Stonington, Westerly and the Mystics, under the supervision of Rev. P. Duffy, who was the first pastor. At present it is joined to Mystic as an out-mission and attended by the priests at Mystic, the Rev. Father Murphy being its present pastor.
COMMON SCHOOLS.

The men who settled Connecticut left their homes in England and emigrated to this country not to acquire wealth or worldly honor, so much as to enjoy civil and religious liberty and freedom; so as soon as the population was sufficient, teachers were employed to instruct the youth of the colony.

This was done in advance of any colonial legislative enactments on the subject of common schools, and in fact when laws were passed in relation to them they did little more than to make obligatory the practices which had grown up and been established by the founders of the several towns which composed the original colonies of Hartford and New Haven.

The founders of this State were educated men, and seeking for the best opportunities of educating their children the common school system was introduced in Connecticut. The first law upon the subject was enacted by the town of New Haven March 25, 1641, which provided for a free school under the care and management of the minister and magistrates. The next law was enacted by the town of Hartford, seven years after, appropriating thirty pounds for its schools. In 1646 Roger Ludlow, Esq., compiled a body of laws for the colony of Connecticut, which provided that every township of fifty families shall maintain a school for the education of all their children, and as soon as such township shall contain one hundred families, they are to maintain a grammar school. Various public acts were passed relative to common schools up to 1700, when the Connecticut code was revised and embraced the following, that “Every town having seventy householders shall be constantly provided with a sufficient schoolmaster to teach children and youth to read and write, and every town having a less number shall provide a teacher for one-half of the year, also that there shall be a Grammar school set up in every shire-town of the several counties.”

In 1766 a law was passed authorizing each town and society to divide themselves into necessary districts for keeping their schools, which district shall draw their proportion of all public moneys belonging to each town according to the lists of each district therein.

In 1786 Connecticut surrendered to the general government for the benefit of the people, all its claim to a vast territory west of Pennsylvania and New York, from the sale of which we derived our present school fund. For ten years it was controlled by a board of managers, but in 1810 Hon. James Hillhouse was appointed sole commissioner of the school fund, and by his management its value was greatly increased.

In 1836, the town deposits fund came into existence from the general government, by a distribution of surplus revenues between all the States, this State receiving $764,670.60, which was divided amongst the several towns according to the population, and one-half of the income by a law of our State was annually appropriated for the benefit of common schools education. And in 1845 another law was passed, devoting all of this income to common schools. The amount received by this town was $8,734.91.

Notwithstanding the repeated acts of Legislature, relative to common schools, they were so much neglected in this town that the friends of education induced the selectmen to call a town meeting Oct. 31, 1853, and after a long discussion the town voted to levy a tax of one cent on a dollar of the grand list for the benefit of common schools in the town, and the money should be expended under the direction of B. F. Langworthy, Charles H. Mallory and Richard A. Wheeler, for the benefit of schools; first, in paying lectures for them, second to bring up the funds of the small districts to seventy-five dollars; third, to divide the rest among the children of all the districts equally. So after various provisions, revisions and enactments of laws, the Legislature dissolved the school societies and placed the schools under the care of the town, thus returning to the first system of common schools established in Connecticut. At the present time there are forty teachers employed in the fifteen districts in this town, in fourteen of which are schools well taught and regularly attended. One district has not the requisite number of scholars within its limits to sustain a school, but the town pays for transporting the few children to the next nearest school.

The amount of money expended for the forty teachers is $15,269.85, and the total expenditure by town and district for educational purposes is $20,505.78, for the 1,754 scholars instructed.

The Liberty Street school, called No. 16, has within its limits a parochial school, which takes the larger number of pupils in that district.

The new schoolhouse at Pawcatuck, called the West Broad Street school, is reputed to be the finest school building in the State, costing about $40,000.
HIGHWAYS.

Highways in Connecticut were established and laid out by an act of its General Court in the year 1638, which was amended in 1640, and in 1643 surveyors thereof were authorized to be appointed by the several towns, who were empowered to call out certain persons to repair the same. These laws were enlarged and perfected by the code of laws of Connecticut, enacted by the General Court in the year 1650 as follows:

"Whereas the maintaining of highways in a fit condition for passage according to the several occasions that occur is not only necessary for the comfort and safety of man and beast, but tends to the profit and advantage of any people, in the issue. It is therefore thought fit and ordered, that each town within this jurisdiction shall every year choose one or two of their inhabitants as Surveyors, to take care of, and oversee the mending and repairing of the Highways within their several Towns respectively, who have hereby power allowed them to call out the several cartes or persons fit for labor in each town, two days at least in each year, and so many more as in his or their judgments shall be found necessary for the maintaining of the aforesaid end, to be directed in their works by the said surveyor or surveyors, and it is left to his or their liberties to require the labor of the several persons in any family, or of a team and one person, where such are, as he finds most advantageous to the public occasions, he or they giving at least three days' notice or warning beforehand of such employment; and if any refuse or neglect to attend the service in any manner aforesaid, he shall forfeit for every day's neglect of a man's work two shillings sixpence, and of a team six shillings; which said fines shall be employed by the Surveyors to hire others to work at the said wages: and the Surveyors shall within four days after the several days appointed for work deliver in to some Magistrate a true presentment of all such as have beene defective, with their several neglects, who are immediately to grant a distress to the Marshall or Constable, for the levying of the incurred forfeiture by them to be delivered to the Surveyor for the use aforesaid, and if the Surveyor neglect to perform the service hereby committed to him, either in not calling out all the inhabitants in their several proportions as before or shall not return the names of those that are deficient, he shall incur the same penalties as those whom he so passes by are liable to, by virtue of this order, which shall be employed to the use aforesaid, and to be levied also by distress upon information and proof before any one Magistrate."
In 1674 the General Court passed an act fixing the liability of persons to repair the highways, between sixteen and sixty years of age. In 1679 an act was passed by the General Court, ordering all the towns of the colony to clear their roads of brush at least one rod wide. In 1698 the General Court of Connecticut passed an act by which the General Court (which up to that time had acted as one body) should for the future consist of two houses, the first shall consist of the Governor, or in his absence of the Deputy Governor and assistants, which shall be known by the name of the upper house, and the other shall consist of such deputies as shall be returned by the several towns within this colony to serve as members of this General Assembly which shall be known as the lower house.

In 1699 the General Court passed an act, giving authority to the county courts to lay out and establish and repair highways, with power to assess damages therefor. But it was not until 1795, that a general law of Connecticut was enacted authorizing towns to build and repair highways by a tax on their polls and ratable estate. The privilege to do so was previously conferred upon several towns when thereto by them specially requested.

The office of selectmen of Connecticut was created by its General Court in the year 1639, with authority to lay out and repair highways, but no reference of their proceedings in laying out highways was required to be passed upon by the towns after the layout thereof.

The town of Stonington acting under and by virtue of the laws of the Connecticut Colony proceeded by its selectmen to lay out and establish certain highways as follows:

“At a town meeting legally warned and held on the second day of March, 1669, it was voted that the Selectmen with Capt. George Denison, Thomas Park, senior, and John Bennet, are chosen to seek out the country highway and other highways that are needful for the Towns use and to lay them out or the major part of these chosen are to lay out the country highways, by the first of May next; provided that the Selectmen give notice that all may know the time and place where to meet.”

“At a town meeting held March 25th, 1669, it was voted that the country highway shall be laid out by the men chosen for that purpose from the head of Mystic (now Old Mystic), to Kitchamaug, so near as may be according to the old footpath lies, provided it meet with London highway at Mystic River, having respect to the public good and the convenience of the particular proprietors through whose lands this country highway shall run, and this highway to be allowed four-pole (rod) wide.”
The committee authorized to lay out said country highway as aforesaid made the following report:

"The country highway beginning at Mystic River on the west, four rod wide; lying between a white oak and a little beech tree marked on three sides, and so running through the Indian field at Quaquataug to Mistuxet Brook in or near to the old footpath and from thence running on the north side of John Reynolds, his house as the trees are marked to the Stoney Brook near to the old path; the path lying on the south a little distance, and from the Stoney Brook to Goodman York, his house in the old footpath, and from Goodman York, his house four pole wide through the said York's land; next unto Mr. James Noyes his land to the old footpath, and if the little swamp proves not passable, that is in the said York's land then the said York is to repair it, or else to suffer it to lie on the old footpath, because it is said he has sixteen pole allowed him the whole length of his land for that purpose and end; and from that leaving the old footpath a little to the south by reason of a foul swamp till we come to the top of the hill called Petequack and from thence to the wading place at Pawcatuck river known as Kitchamaug, above the Indian wares in the common traveled highway.

"And this was laid out by us, whose names are under written, on the first day of April, 1669, and the way is to be four pole wide from Mystic to Pawcatuck, according to the town order, the 25th of March, 1669.

"As witness our hands this fifth day of April, 1669.

THOMAS STANTON
GEORGE DENISON,
THOMAS WHEELER,
SAMUEL CHESEBROUGH,
NEHEMIAH PALMER,
THOMAS PARK,
JOHN BENNET."

"At a town meeting legally warned and held April 6th, 1669, it was passed by vote that Captain George Denison should be employed to make a directory, and set it upon a tree or post at this the wading place at Pawcatuck river, Kitchamaug, where the country highway is laid out, that strangers and travellers may know how to find the country highway through the town to London highway at Mystic River and another at Mystic (now Old Mystic). The same day it was voted that there shall be a country highway laid out, the present month at the furthest and that the Selectmen should appoint the time and day and the persons to accompany the Selectmen in the work, to lay out the said country highway from where they left off at Kitchamaug to the east end of the town at Weapaug and on the fifteenth day of March, 1670, the said country highway was laid out from the wading place at Kitchamaug on the Pawcatuck river, where we ended the country way from Mystic to Pawcatuck and from Pawcatuck river to Weapaug through the town four pole wide through a field where John Reynolds dwells, and so through the part of the field where the Tinker did dwell and so throughout."

This was done by the selectmen and constables to the number of fourteen men. A few of the early grants of land here were given by the town, subject to necessary highways for the improvement thereof, but a majority of the land grants contained no such condition. Prior to 1699, there were no legal provisions in the statute laws of Connecticut, by which towns were liable for damages accruing by the layout of a highway by the selectmen thereof, the natural consequence of which was that the landholders, over which highways were laid by the selectmen, fenced in, plowed and planted the roads at pleasure, which so obstructed the travel thereon that the town took further action in the premises as follows, viz.:

“At a Town Meeting March ye 9th, 1686, the following highways, considered of ye sundry inhabitants appointed by order of the town, were legally voted, viz.: That the country highway lie from Mystic river head, between Major Winthrop and Deacon Park, their land to ye end of said York’s his land, and then as ye way now runs to ye meeting-house, and so as we now go to ye brook Anguilla by Mr. Noyes his house, where it goes into ye former country way to the wading place at Pawcatuck river.”

This proceeding of the town did not improve the condition of the highways nor satisfy the landholders whose interests were disregarded by the town, nor did they remove their fences across this old post road and throw it open to travel except in the winter season.

Traveling in those days was on horseback and by ox-teams, the highways were not graded, nor were the rivers and brooks bridged. The town of Stonington was not alone in poor roads, bridgeless brooks and rivers. The whole colony was suffering from the same cause and so much so that the General Assembly took the matter in hand as follows, viz.:

“Complaint being made that Post and other travellers meet with great difficulty in journeying as they pass through this Colony, especially in the town of Stonington, difficulty doth arise either for want of stated highways or for want of clearing and repairing highways when stated and erecting and maintaining sufficient bridges when needing repairs: For remedy whereof the Selectmen in each town in this Colony situate in the accustomed roads are hereby required upon sight or publication hereof forthwith to take effectual care that convenient highways as may be for the advantage of Posts and others travelling in their journeying as aforesaid be laid out through their townships.”

A committee was also appointed by the General Assembly to see that the foregoing order was duly complied with and carried into effect by the selectmen of the several towns. The town of Stonington had passed several votes relative to the survey and repair of its highways, but for some reason not now understood they were not carried into effect, and the roads were well nigh impassable. When the said order of the General Assembly was received, the selectmen proceeded to re-examine the old post road, which was the only established highway of the town at the time; the other roads were private ways or bridle paths, so called, and by their own act relaid it and caused the same to be recorded as follows, viz.:

"In attendance of an act of the General Assembly bearing date May 12th & 25th, 1698, the Selectmen of Stonington have for settlement of the country Road made search in our town records and have viewed and considered the road as far as we can find it hath been laid out and recorded. And we find that Stephen Richardson hath fenced the way on this side of Pawcatuck River at two places by his house and corn field; Now we order the said Stephen to repair and clear the way at those places, till his corn is off the land, and the way turned again where it was laid out. We find that Mr. Noyes hath turned the way at the west end of his land at the bridge; we order the said Mr. Noyes forthwith to repair the bridge and keep it in repair till his crop be off and the way returned where it was laid out; That James Babcock hath turned the road where his fields are; We order the said Babcock to maintain sufficient way there, till his present crop be off, and then to pull down his fences and let the road be open according to law and town order, where it was laid out. We find that Elihu Chesebrough hath stopped the way by two gates and we do order the said Elihu to repair and mend the said gate till his present grass is off the land and then to take away his gates and let the way be open where the town has laid it out; and we find the rest of the way, as convenient as we know it how it was laid out, from Elihu Chesebrough's land to the meeting house at the road, and from the said Meeting-House to Reynolds his path on the east side of Quaquataug hill and then finding the way hath not been fully settled, we have laid out the way from the foot of the hill where the road crosseth Reynolds his path straight as the ground will allow it to go, going on the west of the ground, where it is most free from rocks then it is to pass through the upper end of said Park's his land as the trees were marked till it came into the lane and it is to go in the lane to the brow of the upper part of the hill, near the gate and pass thence down the hill where the road way is now trod and taking the best advantage for the ground because the hill is steep; We do order that from the brow of the hill near the gate down to the little pasture the way is to be left eight pole wide because the ground is wet and springy land, and then it is to pass through the pasture and through the southward part of the uppermost little cornfield by Mystic River side and then it is to go along, by the River as it is now travelled, to the place where it passes through Mystic River. And this way for a country road is to be four rods wide; and where there are any lanes for this way to pass through they are to be left four pole wide; and we do order the surveyors for the highways forthwith to call the town to repair the road according to law.

"By the Selectmen, date August 12th, 1698.

NEHEMIAH PALMER,
JOSEPH MINER,
JOSEPH SAXTON,
ADAM GALLUP,
Selectmen.

This road remained unfenced, except as against improved lands for a good many years, and was the principal thoroughfare between New London and Newport for more than one hundred years, and until it was superceded by turnpikes and railways.
It has never been materially changed in its course since 1698.
It has been reduced to its present grade by continued repairs little by little, and the bridges over Anguilla, Stoney and Mis-tuxet Brooks were made by special vote of the town.

The want of a law in our colony to enable the selectmen to lay out highways and cause damages to be assessed therefor to the proprietors of land taken for the same, which must be paid by a tax on the polls and ratable estate of the towns, finally resulting in petitions to the courts of the county, which had ample authority for laying out and establishing highways, so in 1752 a petition was presented to the County Court for a highway from Long Point to the town of Preston, which was granted, and the highway was laid out and established. The next year a highway was so laid out, on petition by authority of said court, from Pawcatuck Bridge to Voluntown. Later on highways were so laid out from Pistol Point to the old Road meeting-house. Also a highway was so laid out from Long Point to Wequetequock, and on northerly to the old post road at Anguilla, thence easterly by and with said post road a short distance, from thence northerly and northeasterly to the said Voluntown highway. Also another highway was so laid out from the town landing at Old Mystic northerly and northeasterly to the said Preston highway, near the residence of the late Deacon Charles Wheeler.

After the enactment of the law of 1795, giving the selectmen of the several towns of our State authority to lay out highways, the entire expense of which was to be paid by a tax on the polls and ratable estate of the towns, the larger number of our highways has been laid out by the selectmen subject to ratification or rejection by action of said town, in lawful meeting assembled.
After the close of the Revolutionary war the mails between New York and Boston via New London and Newport were to be carried by mail stages and passed over this old post road until Long Point, now Stonington Borough, claimed and obtained a diversion in their favor, previous to which their mail matter had been mostly carried by coasting vessels. When the mail stages passed through Long Point, their route lay from the head of Mystic to the farm residence of the late Thomas W. Palmer, thence down to Long Point and over the highway to Pawcatuck Bridge. In 1784 Dr. Charles Phelps and William Williams, Esq., representatives of Stonington for that year, were instructed as agents of the town to prefer a memorial to the General Assembly at New Haven, praying for a lottery scheme, to be granted said town, to raise three hundred pounds lawful money, to enable them to build a bridge across the cove, called Lambert's Cove, from Pine Point to Quanaduct; also voted at said meeting to instruct Messrs. Paul Wheeler, Phineas Stanton and Edward Hancox, to measure the highway from Long Point to New London, by the contemplated road, via said bridge, so as to enable Messrs. Phelps and Williams to show the Assembly the saving by the bridge route.

In 1785 the General Assembly of Connecticut passed the following preamble and act as follows, viz.:

"Whereas the congress of the United States have directed that the public mails in future shall be carried by stages and it is necessary that the public roads be repaired immediately on the routes used by the stages; Therefore, "

"Be it enacted by the Governor, Council and Representatives in general Assembly convened, and by authority of the same that the Selectmen of the several towns through which the stages charged with the mails pass; do immediately mend and repair the bridges and roads used by the stages and keep the same in good repair; and when complaint is made to the County Court of any neglect in either County such county shall order necessary repairs and grant a warrant against the Selectmen of the town where such neglect is found, to collect the sum to be expended in repairs from the selectmen of the town or towns so neglecting their duty."

The town of Stonington did not readily comply with the requirements of this law, nor did the towns generally throughout the State; the principal reason that induced this town to disregard its provisions were, that the stage route through this town was so circuitous that it was deemed advisable by some to lay and build a more direct road, for the stages from the head of Mystic to Long Point; the necessity for such a highway had been previously considered by the town. The year before a committee was appointed to apply to the General Assembly for a lottery scheme to raise money to build a bridge over Lambert's Cove from Pine Point to Quanaduct, which did not succeed. The inhabitants living in the southern part of the town favored the new road, those residing in the northern part were opposed to it. Both sections agreed in one thing, and that was that the stages being the property of companies, they did not think it right to tax the people to build and repair roads for their benefit.

Aside from such considerations, the people at Long Point and Mystic felt the necessity of the proposed highway for common convenience and the general good. The difference of opinion relative to the repairs on the old post mail stage road, and the building of a new highway from Mystic to Stonington, resulted in a serious controversy between the inhabitants residing in the upper and lower sections of the town. Similar controversies arose from the same cause in other towns in the colony, and the result in general was that the stage routes were not much improved. The expense of building a bridge over Lambert's Cove was the tug of war in this town, that prevented anything of consequence being done toward repairing the old stage route; other objections were but secondary considerations.

In 1794 another effort was made to procure a lottery scheme for building said bridge, which resulted in failure. The pressure was so great upon the General Assembly of that year and the next, in favor of improving the stage routes, that a committee of three, consisting of Samuel Mott, Joshua Huntington and Simeon Baldwin, Esq., were appointed in 1795, to straighten by a new lay the great post road from New Haven by Dragon's Bridge eastward to New London Ferry, and so on to Pawcatuck Bridge. This committee proceeded to discharge the duties of their appointment, and so far as their survey went, straightening said road, it may be called a success, but nothing was ever done in this town or in pursuance of their survey or the act of the Assembly to straighten or repair the old post road or any other road, nor can their survey be found in our town records or files, or in our State archives.

The town in 1796 remonstrated in the most solemn manner against said lay, appointing a committee of their ablest men to oppose and defeat the same if possible. Uniting with other towns similarly situated, they defeated it and succeeded in creating so strong a current of feeling against the mail stage companies that no further direct action was taken by the Assembly to compel the towns to build and repair highways for their special benefit. Some of the mail stage companies had by this time petitioned the Assembly for liberty and authority to lay out and construct highways of their own, with the right to place turnpike or toll gates thereon. During the latter part of the year 1796, Elijah Palmer and others of this town made application to the County Court, for a new road from Long Point to Mystic, now Old Mystic, which did not succeed. Stonington as a whole did not favor said road, for the town at a legally warned meeting thereof, appointed a committee to oppose said application, and also directed the selectmen to view the road from Mystic River to Pawcatuck Bridge, for the purpose of straightening and repairing the same, and report their doings to the next town meeting. To what town meeting they reported is not known, but in the year 1800 the town voted in legal meeting assembled, to expend the sum of four hundred dollars on the road used by the mail-stages from Old Mystic to Pawcatuck Bridge via Stonington Point, and directed the selectmen to straighten the same, which they did and reported their doings to the town, without stating how much of the appropriation they had used in straightening and repairing said mail stage route, through this town.

The mail stage companies or the town were not satisfied with the proceedings of the selectmen. The stage companies gave up their efforts to compel the town to keep up their route here and turned their attention to the construction of a turnpike road for the use of their mail stages. But the controversy over the Mystic Road and Pine Point Bridge over Lambert's Cove was continued with unabated energy. In 1801 a petition was preferred to the Court of Common Pleas, signed by Noyes Palmer and others, for a highway from the Baptist meeting-house in Stonington Borough to the old post road, at the town landing at Old Mystic. The court ordered an investigation of the matter in question, and appointed Benjamin Coit, John G. Hillhouse and Ezra Bishop, Esq., to hear and report upon the feasibility of the proposed road. The protracted sickness and death of Mr. Bishop delayed the proceedings of the committee until the next year, when the court appointed Mr. Joshua Huntington in the place and stead of Mr. Bishop, who upon a thorough examination of the proposed route for said highway, and evidences pro and con relative to the same, proceeded to lay out a road from the Borough of Stonington to Mystic, substantially as the road is now travelled, except near the head of Mystic, where a subsequent change, placed it where it now is. The remonstrances of Mr. Joshua Brown, and a plea for a jury to re-assess damages to him occasioned by the lay of said road over his premises, delayed the proceedings in court until 1803, when the layout thereof was accepted and declared by the court. The opposition to this road by the inhabitants of the north part of the town increased to such an extent that an effort was made to divide the town, which did not prevail at the time. The opponents of the road were in the majority, and pending the proceedings connected with the layout of the same, the town remonstrated again and again in the most solemn manner and petitioned the General Assembly to interpose in its favor, but all to no purpose. The town repeatedly asked the Assembly for a lottery scheme to defray the expense of building the bridge over Lambert's Cove and finally obtained one which from bad management resulted in a failure and was finally sold for a mere trifle. Some of the inhabitants headed by Mr. Amos Wheeler associated themselves together and petitioned the General Assembly for a Ferry charter over Lambert's Cove from Pine Point to Quanaduct. After a full hearing thereon the petitioners were given liberty to withdraw. But their defeat before the Assembly did not abate the opposition to the building of the highway and bridge, but rather increased it, and to such an extent that it resulted in the division of the town in 1807.

The town of Stonington did not give up the idea of defeating this new road, after their northern neighbors had left them alone to fight it. They continued to oppose it by remonstrance, and by every conceivable obstruction that they could invent they delayed its opening until 1815, when it was in part built and opened by the sheriff of the county. So from 1784 to 1815, this town was more or less engaged in a bitter contest about this road and bridge. It was traversed by the hated mail stages as soon as opened and gave them a more direct and level route from Mystic to Westerly.

The bridge first built over Lambert’s Cove was barely wide enough for a single team to pass, with a long wooden span, in the middle; subsequently it was widened and a middle pier constructed, leaving two spans. Those interested in the mail stage companies, in 1816 petitioned the General Assembly for a turnpike charter from Groton Ferry to Westerly, designing to pass over the new road.

The town did not oppose the grant of the charter, it only asked that the committee appointed to lay out the turnpike road should not be confined to any particular route through this town. Owing to a variety of causes, the charter for the said turnpike company was not granted until 1818, when the request of the town was complied with, giving the committee appointed to lay out the road, liberty to select any route they might prefer. The committee, after examining the proposed route defined in the petition, and other routes, concluded to follow the direction of the old post road, in the town of Groton, changing it for the better in several places. But when they reached the head of Mystic, now Old Mystic, instead of following the new mail stage route through Stonington to Westerly as prayed for, they turned to the left, following in part the country road from the town landing at Mystic to North Stonington, until they reached Wolfneck, thence turned easterly through Stonington and North Stonington to Hopkinton city, connecting with a turnpike from thence to Providence, R. I. When the turnpike road was completed, it became the through mail stage route from New London to Providence and Boston, carrying also passengers to the full extent of their ability.

The construction of the new road from the head of Mystic to Stonington Borough, and the turnpike road from Mystic to North Stonington and Hopkinton city, deprived the old post road of its importance as a postal route, though post riders carried newspapers and private mail matter over its long beaten tracks for a good many years, and until the railroads and steamboats diverted the transmission of such matter to other routes. The old post road was first laid along the track of the Indian path, between Narragansett and Pequot (now New London).

It was followed by Capt. John Mason and his famous seventy-seven men in 1637, until they reached Taugwank Hill, where they held their council of war, the afternoon before the battle. After leaving Taugwank they deployed to the north somewhat to avoid Quaquataug Hill, for fear of exposing themselves to the keen eye of the Pequots on Mystic Hill and fort in Groton. It was on the north side of this road at Anguilla that Canonchet, after refusing to treat with the English for peace, was executed by the friendly Indians acting under the orders of the English officers. The layout of the town lots on both sides of this road on Agreement Hill in Stonington, and the erection of the meeting-house there in 1673-74 made it the business center of the town, and in consequence thereof it received the name of the Road, which is still applied to the region around the town hall and the present meeting-house there. It was at the Road in the first meeting-house there, that the King's commissioners met repeatedly to hear and determine the matter of jurisdiction between Rhode Island, Connecticut and Massachusetts. The commissioners to hear and report to the king the evidence in the celebrated case between the colony of Connecticut and the Mohegan Indians as supported by the Mason family, relative to various land titles, met and held their sessions for several days in this meeting-house in 1704. Such Commissioners' Courts were called the King's Courts and were regarded with great respect and consideration and the occasion of their sitting drew together almost the entire population of the town at the time to witness their proceedings.

The General Court of Connecticut in recognition of the gallant services of Major John Mason in the Pequot war of 1637, granted him in September, 1651, an island in Mystic Bay, then called Chipachaug (now known as Mason's Island), with one hundred acres of upland and ten acres of meadow, near Mystic River, where he should make choice.

November 15, 1651, the town of New London gave him a grant of one hundred acres of land to adjoin his colonial land. Major Mason located both of those one hundred-acre grants of land on the main land east and northeast of his island. The layout thereof by the town surveyor was very liberal and embraced more land than is now contained in the large farms of Mr. Nathan S. Noyes and of the heirs at law of Mrs. Mary Fish, deceased. Subsequently the town of New London gave him a right of way to the then contemplated meeting-house in Stonington, which was afterwards erected on the west slope of Palmer's Hill. This right of way was laid out to Major Mason sixteen rods wide, beginning at Pequotsepos Brook, a little way below the old county road, east of the village of Mystic, thence easterly along the south side of Capt. George Denison's second grant of land in Stonington, now known as the south boundary line of the farm that belonged to the late Mr. Oliver Denison, deceased; through the field next north of Mr. Jefferson Wilcox's dwelling-house, following the south line of said Denison land to Mistuxet Brook above where it falls into Quiambaug Cove, thence still further east over Palmer's Hill, leaving south of it one hundred and two acres of the late Deacon Noyes Palmer and other lands, passing just south of the Palmer burial place, and on east to Blackmore's Head (a rock so called), a short distance southerly of the junction of the Flanders with the old Stonington and Mystic road.

This sixteen-pole right of way was bequeathed by Major Mason to his sons, Hon. Samuel Mason and Lieut. Daniel Mason. That part of it between Pequotsepos Brook and the land of the emigrant, Thomas Miner, was held by Mr. Samuel Mason, his heirs and assigns. That part of said way, from the west side of the said Thomas Miner land to Blackmore's Head, was held by Lieut. Daniel Mason, his heirs and assigns.

It has hitherto been claimed that this sixteen-pole highway, with slight variations, furnished a tract for the highway now leading from the village of Mystic to the Road meeting-house, but such a claim is a wild guess, for the only place where said highways ran along together was a short distance between the Pequotsepos Brook and a point a few rods east of the old school-house site. Nor did the sixteen-pole highway extend west of this brook into the village of Mystic. The present highway from Mystic to the old meeting-house at the Road, with slight variations made therein by the town of Stonington, is a county highway, laid from Pistol Point to the old Road meeting-house, which stood at the time a few feet west of the present church edifice there.
BRIDGES AND FERRIES.

Stonington being situated between Pawcatuck River on the east and Mystic River on the west, required bridges to enable people to travel east and west therefrom. The first bridge was built over Pawcatuck River as early as 1712, the funds to pay the cost thereof was raised by Capt. Joseph Saxton of Stonington and Capt. John Babcock of Westerly. The Governor and Council of Connecticut, sitting officially at New London April 8th, 1712, gave their consent for the erecting of the bridge as per the subscription briefs of Capts. Saxton and Babcock, which provided for its completion in eighteen months. In 1720 this bridge began to need repairing and the Connecticut Assembly sitting at New Haven, in October of that year passed an order:

"That there be paid out of the Public treasury the sum of ten pounds towards the good repairing of the west half of said bridge between the towns of Stonington and Westerly, in such manner in specie as the rates of this Colony for defraying the public charge shall hereafter be paid in, and the remainder of the charge of the repairing of the said one half shall be paid by the town of Stonington; and that the selectmen of said town shall take effectual care that the said half part of said bridge be well repaired forthwith.

"And whereas the town of Stonington are at no great charge about the bridges in the county and within their own town, in comparison of what many other town are, 'tis therefor ordered by this court, that after the said half part of the bridge is well repaired, it shall always be maintained, and kept in good repair by the said town, until the Court shall order otherwise."

The town of Stonington not relishing the idea of being compelled to keep the bridge in repair, and believing it to be the duty of the colony and not the town, neglected to repair it, nor did the colonial authorities move in the matter at all until the October session of the General Assembly of 1721, when they passed this act:

"Whereas this Assembly has been certified that the bridge between Stonington and Westerly is so far gone out of repair, that the limbs and arms of travellers are endangered thereby, notwithstanding the provision made for-merely by this Assembly for repairing it in conjunction with the Government of Rhode Island, upon which nothing has yet been done, and whereas the Governor upon Correspondence with the Government of Rhode Island, for that end has received a letter from Isaac Thompson, Esq., of Westerly, a justice of the peace, signifying that the Assembly of Rhode Island has offered fifteen pounds to be drawn out of the Treasury of that colony for repairing half the said bridge, and that he has the order of that government to cause the said money to be applied to that service, if this government shall agree to repair the other half of the same. It is therefore ordered that fifteen pounds in the whole shall in like manner be drawn out of the Treasury of this Colony for the said end, and that it shall be put into the hands of Mr. John Noyes and Mr. Stephen Richardson of Stonington, who are hereby empowered to apply the said money to the said end, in conjunction with the said Thompson, or any other person who shall be empowered, to apply the like sum to the repair of the said bridge on the behalf of the Government of Rhode Island.

"And the said Mr. Noyes and Mr. Richardson are hereby ordered to use their best endeavors to cause the said repairs to be made as soon as may be, and in the meantime to endeavor that the said bridge may be so constructed at each end as to prevent the hurt which travellers are in danger of."

Though the government of Rhode Island had assumed the liability of repairing one-half of said bridge, yet the colony of Connecticut did not intend by the act of their Assembly to expend more than ten pounds in repairing the bridge, so they supplemented their act of 1721 by the following proviso:

"And whereas it was ordered by this Assembly in October last, that the town of Stonington should be at all the charge for repairing one half of the said bridge above the sum of ten pounds, which was then ordered to be drawn out of the public treasury for that end.

"It is now ordered that instead thereof the townsmen or selectmen of said Stonington do raise, in the usual manner upon the inhabitants of said town the sum of five pounds in money, and cause the same to be paid into the treasury of this colony at or before the first of May next."

In obedience to the order of 1721, the selectmen of Stonington, acting in conjunction with the Rhode Island authorities, repaired the bridge so as to make it passable. It was a slim concern, barely wide enough for a single ox-team to pass, but as all the travel of those days was on horseback (except by ox-team), it answered very well the purpose for which it was designed. The bridge then repaired lasted for about ten years. The town of Stonington still adhering to their belief that a bridge uniting two colonies should be erected and kept in repair by the colonies, and not by the town, that simply furnished the ground for the abutments thereof to rest upon, so they refused to repair the west end of the bridge, until it became unsafe and almost impassable, when, in 1731, the General Assembly of the colony of Rhode Island passed an act relative to said bridge as follows:

"Upon the petition of Capt. Oliver Babcock and Capt. William Clark, setting forth to the Assembly the necessity of rebuilding Pawcatuck bridge, which is now quite gone to decay, and rendered impassable either for man or horse; and praying that a sufficiency of money may be drawn out of the general treasury for rebuilding this government's part thereof. It is voted and enacted that there be allowed and drawn out of the general treasury a sufficiency of money for building the one half of said bridge, in case the colony of Connecticut will build the other half, and that the colony of Connecticut be acquainted therewith." This act of the Assembly of Rhode Island was transmitted to Connecticut, and at the May session of its General Assembly the following act was passed: "Upon consideration had on the act of the General Assembly of the colony of Rhode Island, respecting the building of a bridge over Pawcatuck River, ordered by this Assembly, that the secretary of this colony send a copy of that act of this Assembly to the secretary of the colony of Rhode Island, made at this session in October, 1720, wherein the town of Stonington is ordered for the future to keep in repair one half of the bridge over Pawcatuck River at their own charge; and that the town of Stonington take notice thereof and conform themselves accordingly." The town of Stonington did not readily yield to the act of the Assembly, nor did they repair the bridge as ordered for several years. They were strengthened in their position by the act of the General Assembly of Rhode Island in assuming the entire expense of one half of the bridge on the part of that colony. They reasoned that if the colony of Rhode Island should build or repair the east end of the bridge, then the colony of Connecticut should build and repair the west end of the bridge; but the colony of Connecticut thought otherwise; they said that because the town of Stonington was subject to less expense than most other towns in the colony on account of bridges that they should build and maintain one-half of the bridge over Pawcatuck River, no matter what the colony of Rhode Island should do in the premises. The town of Stonington still refused to repair said bridge, but the colony of Connecticut was equally determined that they should repair it at their own expense. This state of things continued until 1734, when at the October session of the General Assembly, and after a protracted discussion of the subject-matter, the following preamble and act was passed:

"Whereas this Assembly did at their session at New Haven, in October, 1720, order the sum of ten pounds to be paid out of the public treasury of this Colony toward repairing the half of the bridge between the towns of Stonington and Westerly, and the remainder of the charge thereof to be paid by the town of Stonington, and that the Selectmen of said town should take effectual care that said half part of said bridge should be always maintained and kept in good repair by said town of Stonington until this Assembly should order otherwise. And whereas the said selectmen of Stonington have been very negligent in said affair, for want of some suitable provision in said act to enforce it, notwithstanding the little charge they are at to maintain any other bridges on the country roads. Be it therefore enacted by the Governor, Council, and Representatives, in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same. That in case the said town of Stonington shall not meet and complete the one half of said bridge within nine months next after, any one of their selectmen being duly certified of the readiness of the Government of Rhode Island, or town of Westerly, to join with them in said affair, then the treasurer of this Colony upon due certification thereof shall immediately send forth his warrant directed to the Constable of said Stonington, requiring him to levy and collect of the inhabitants of said Stonington the sum of three hundred pounds, which sum so collected shall be paid to said treasurer by said Constable of Stonington within three months after his receiving said warrant, in order to be improved to the use aforesaid, and in case the said town of Stonington shall not maintain and keep in due repair according to the aforesaid act, the one half of said bridge, after it is thus erected, they shall forfeit the sum of fifty shillings per week, to be collected in manner aforesaid, and it is further enacted that a copy of this act be forthwith transmitted to the Governor of Rhode Island."

This act of the General Assembly of Connecticut settled the matter.

Mystic Bridge.—During the early settlement of the towns of Stonington and Groton, Mystic River was crossed by ferry-boats from Elm Grove Cemetery, in Stonington, to the Burrows' Half-way House, in Groton. Later, and down to the present century, the crossing was by ferry-boats from Packer's village, in Groton, over the river to Pistol Point, in Stonington. At the General Assembly of 1819 the Mystic Bridge Company was chartered as follows:

"Resolved by this Assembly, That George Haley, Nathaniel Clift, Jeremiah Haley, Ebenezer Denison, Manasseh Miner, William Stanton, Ambrose D. Grant, Jeremiah Holmes, and such others as may be associated with them, be and they are hereby incorporated and made a body politic, by the name of 'Mystic Bridge Company,' and by that name may sue and be sued; that said company shall have a clerk, who shall record all votes and by-laws of said company, and be sworn to a faithful discharge of his duty, and who shall be appointed by the president and directors of said company; that the said company shall choose a president and two directors, who, or a major part of them, shall manage all the concerns of said company. The stockholders of said company shall hold their first meeting on the second Monday of July next, at the dwelling-house of Ebenezer Denison, in said Stonington; and said meeting shall be warned by the petitioners before named, by publishing notice thereof in the Connecticut Gazette, printed in New London, two weeks successively before said second Monday of July; and when met, the said company shall choose the aforesaid officers, who shall continue in office until others are chosen in their place and accept their appointment, and said company, when so as aforesaid formed, shall immediately raise sufficient money to erect a bridge across said river at the place already designated by the committee who have reported thereon; and when the commissioners on said bridge shall have accepted the same, they shall give the company a certificate of the same, adjust the accounts and all the expenses incurred relative to said bridge, and give them a certificate of the amount due said company; and said company shall continue to keep up and maintain said bridge in good repair; and to reimburse them their expenses, with ten per cent. interest on the sums extended in erecting said bridge, shall have right and they are hereby authorized and empowered to erect a gate on or near said bridge, at which gate said company shall have right to collect for crossing said bridge the following toll, viz.:

"Resolved, however, and it is hereby resolved, that the aforesaid rates of toll shall not be collected from persons traveling to attend public worship, funerals, or town, society or freemen’s meeting, and returning therefrom;

officers and soldiers going to or returning from military duty; persons going to or returning from mill for the use of their families; all of which persons shall be exempted from paying toll, as aforesaid.

"Bonds shall be given to the Treasurer of this State to his acceptance on or before the last day of August next, in the penal sum of five thousand dollars, conditioned that said bridge shall be built by said company to the acceptance of said commissioners by the first Monday of September next, and in default of such bond this grant shall be void.

"The stock of said company shall consist of fifty shares, which shall be transferable on the books of said company, and each member of said company, present at any legal meeting thereof, shall have power to give one vote for each share standing in the name of such member, and the said stockholders, at any legal meeting, shall have power to direct, by major vote, the amount to be paid from time to time on the shares of said capital stock; provided, that this act may be altered, revoked, or amended at any time hereafter at the pleasure of the General Assembly.

"The road on the west side of Mystic River, leading from the Mystic bridge to the old road, as laid and reported by the committee to this Assembly at the last session, remain as laid by said committee till it comes six rods on the land of Ambrose H. Grant, and be thence discontinued; that the former committee, viz.: Moses Warren, William Randall, and John O. Miner, be reappointed to lay a road from the place last mentioned, where said road is discontinued, to the village at Parker's Ferry, four rods wide, and assess the damages to the owners of the land over which the road may pass, and report to this or some future Assembly."

The bridge was erected under the charter, and maintained by the company as a toll-bridge down to 1854 when the towns of Stonington and Groton, at town meetings legally warned and held for that purpose, voted to buy the bridge and franchises of the company for eight thousand dollars, two thousand dollars in addition having been subscribed by the citizens of the villages of Mystic Bridge and Mystic River. Deacon B. F. Langworthy and Capt. John Holdridge, the representatives of the town of Stonington for that year, were charged with the management of the matter before the Legislature in connection with the representatives of the town of Groton. During the session of the General Assembly for 1854 the following enabling act was passed, "authorizing the Mystic Bridge Company to sell their bridge:"

"Resolved, That the towns of Stonington and Groton be, and they hereby are authorized to purchase of the Mystic Bridge Company their bridge and drawbridge over the Mystic River, between said towns, at the price of eight thousand dollars; and in case said bridge shall be so purchased, the president of said company shall lodge a certificate to that effect in the office of the Secretary of State. And from and after the time said purchase shall be made, said bridge shall be and remain a public bridge, free for public travel, and shall be forever supported, and maintained by said towns of Stonington and Groton together, with the draw therein, at their joint expense; and said draw shall always be maintained at not less than its present width, and the same facilities shall be afforded for the navigation of said river through said draw at the like joint expense of said towns as are now furnished by said bridge company.

"And after said purchase shall be perfected, and said certificate lodged on file as aforesaid, the said bridge company shall be discharged from all liability for or on account of said bridge, and deprived of all right to collect toll for the passage of the same."

At a town-meeting legally warned and held in Stonington on the 7th day of August, 1854, it was voted that Asa Fish and Richard A. Wheeler be a committee to join with the selectmen or committee of the town of Groton, appointed for the purpose of receiving the transfer of the Mystic Bridge and all of its appurtenances from the Mystic Bridge Company to the towns of Groton and Stonington, in pursuance of a special act of the Legislature for that purpose, and in accordance with the vote of this town, passed May 12, 1854; also that they pay to the said company the sum of four thousand dollars, with interest from the 1st day of April, 1854, deducting the nettolls for the same time, and that the selectmen are to draw their orders on the town treasurer for the necessary amount to liquidate and pay the liability of the town of Stonington for the purchase of said bridge, and to employ a suitable person in connection with the town of Groton to tend the draw in said bridge and care generally for the same.

During the years 1734 and 1735 the said Pawcatuck bridge was widened and substantially rebuilt by the colony of Rhode Island and the town of Stonington, which stood for a good many years. About ninety-five years ago the Stonington approach was raised and one of the sluices removed, shortening the wood-work some twenty-five feet. With repairs of timber and plank, the bridge so remained until 1873, when it was widened and sidewalks appended and in that condition remained until 1886, when the old wooden bridge was removed, and an iron bridge substituted in its place with protected sidewalks on each side thereof.
SHIP BUILDING.

The first ship-builders in this region were Thomas Wells and George Denison, Jr. They resided in what is now Westerly, though at the time claimed as a part of the present town of Stonington. Joseph, the son of Thomas Wells, was also a ship-builder. On the 3d day of January, 1680, Joseph Wells signed a contract to finish up a vessel then on the stocks at Pawcatuck. On the 20th of May, 1680, he signed another contract for the building of a vessel, wherein he describes himself as of Mystic, Conn. He married Hannah Reynolds, of Stonington (Mystic), Dec. 28, 1681, and settled in Groton, where he died Oct. 26, 1711. Joseph Wells, soon after his location at Mystic, built a ship for Amos Richardson, of Stonington, which ended in litigation. To what extent ship-building was carried on in Stonington from the days of Joseph Wells down to the Revolution it is now impossible to tell, for no known record thereof exists.

Several small craft were built at Stonington, Long Point, and on the Mystic River before and during the war of the Revolution, but their owners and tonnage is not certainly known. Before the Revolution the accumulated wealth of the inhabitants was largely invested in commerce, building most of their vessels. Long before the Revolution, Col. Joseph Pendleton, of Westerly, built a brig on the west bank of the river below Pawcatuck bridge, which was launched and floated down the river with much difficulty. She was sent to New York under command of his son, Capt. Joseph Pendleton, and was loaded with a cargo for the West Indies, which was carried in safety. After discharging and reloading with molasses, etc., she started on the home voyage, after which nothing was heard of the vessel or crew. The General Assembly of Rhode Island, in consideration of his heavy loss and other misfortunes equally as great, gave him a lottery grant of a tract of land, on part of which is now located Avondale village. This land was laid out in one hundred and twenty-six house-lots, and put up in a lottery, each successful ticket-holder drawing a house-lot. The grant was dated Feb. 27, 1750, and was executed by Isaac Sheffield and Elias Thompson, aided by W. Babcock as surveyor. Near the old Tristam Dickens house, on the west bank of Pawcatuck River, opposite said village, there was built in 1823 the schooner Julia Ann, 60 tons, Capt. Nathan Barber.

The following vessels were built by Mr. George Sheffield, of Pawcatuck:

1818, sloop Connecticut, 50 tons; Capt. Stephens.
1823, brig Rimack, 175 tons; Capt. Basset.
1824, brig Pomona, 225 tons; Capt. Newton.
1825, schooner Phoenix, 150 tons; Capt. Spicer.
1826, schooner William, 175 tons; Capt. Peleg Wilbur.
1829, brig Christopher Burdick, 165 tons; Capt. Burdick.

He built two vessels at Stonington Borough.
1821, ship Stonington, 250 tons; Capt. Hull.
1822, brig Pomona, 175 tons; Capt. Barnes.

George Sheffield & Sons built the following vessels:
1830, sloop Caspian, 50 tons; Capt. William C. Pendleton.
1832, sloop New York, 60 tons; Capt. Wilcox.
1833, sloop Pioneer, 75 tons; Capt. Wilbur.
1838, sloop George Eldredge, 75 tons; Capt. Eldredge.
1839, brig George Moon, 250 tons; Capt. Moon.
1840, brig Edward, 275 tons; Capt. Magna.
1842, sloop Pawcatuck, 30 tons; Capt. Ethan Pendleton.
1843, ship Ann Welsh, 450 tons; Capt. Dunham.
1844, sloop China, 40 tons; Capt. Ethan Pendleton.
1845, three-masted schooner Arispa, 100 tons; Capt. Gates.

H. & F. Sheffield built the following vessels:
1847, schooner Phoenix, 80 tons; Capt. James R. Dickens.
1849, schooner Frances, 130 tons; Capt. Hawley.
1850, Water Lily, 75 tons; Capt. J. A. Robinson.
1851, schooner Nebraska, 200 tons; Capt. Blake.
1852, brig Escambia, 250 tons; Capt. Magna.
1852, steamer Tiger Lily, 100 tons; Capt. J. A. Robinson.
1853, schooner Hannah Martin, 230 tons; Capt. Morgan.
1854, schooner Sarah Starr, 250 tons; Capt. Bunnell.
1856, sloop Tristam Dickens, 70 tons; Capt. J. R. Dickens.
SHIP BUILDING.

1856, schooner George Sheffield, 260 tons; Capt. Stiles.
The following vessels were built by Mr. John Brown.
1821, sloop Flying Fish, 30 tons; Capt. Brown.
1822, sloop Franklin, 30 tons; Capt. E. Brown.
1825, sloop Fame, 46 tons; Capt. E. Brown.
All three built where C. Maxon & Co.'s carpenter-shop is now located.
1830, schooner Fox, 60 tons; Capt. Elias Brown; built where C. Maxon & Co.'s barn is now located.
1832, sloop John Brown, 50 tons; built for a Mr. John Brown, of Fall River, Mass., on the lot formerly occupied by Hall & Dickinson as a lumber-yard.
1832, schooner Flash, 75 tons; Capt. Elias Brown, built at the same place as the above.
There was framed in the yard in the rear of the late Jesse Breed, West Broad street, a small sloop named Willie Sheffield, between 20 and 30 tons, which was conveyed to the river and launched in April, 1867, commanded by Capt. N. M. Card.
In 1867, June 12th, there was launched near the residence of Timothy Gavitt the sloop Glide, 24 tons; Capt. Gavitt.
There were built west of C. Maxon & Co.'s barn, West street, and launched sideways, the following:
1855, schooner Niantic, 80 tons; Capt. George P. Barber.
1865, schooner Josephine, 50 tons; Capt. Charles A. Maxon.
There were built on the lot formerly occupied by Hall & Dickinson as a lumber-yard, Mechanic street, by Stephen L. Dickerson, for Oliver D. Wells, the following vessels:
1842, schooner Urbana, 137 tons; Capt. Small.
1843, schooner Tallahassee, 120 tons; Capt. Oliver Gavitt.
1842, ship Wabash, 500 tons; Capt. Charles T. Stanton.
This vessel was built near "Cuff's house," below Pawcatuck Rock.
Christopher Leeds built several small vessels at Old Mystic after the close of the last war with England, viz.: Brig Hersilia, schooner ———, and others. He built two small steamboats for Silas E. Burrows, viz.: Cadet and New London.
Messrs. Greenmans commenced ship-building at the head of Mystic in 1827, where they built a number of small vessels, mostly smacks and sloops. When they moved down to their present location, in 1838, then called Adam Point, they commenced building fishing vessels, schooners, and brigs for Southern coasting trade. As business increased, the demand came for larger vessels, and they built a number of ships for European trade, and finally, when the California trade opened, they built several large ships for that and other trades, building for one house in New York fifteen large ships, averaging about 1,500 tons each. They have also built quite a number of screw-steamers and side-wheel steamboats, three-masted schooners, yachts, pilot-boats, and in fact, all kinds and descriptions of vessels, both sail and steam, as many as one hundred and twenty-five in all.

Vessels Built at Stonington Borough—Peleg Brown and Elisha Denison were in their day engaged in ship-building and in the West India trade, but the names and tonnage of the vessels built and employed by them has not been preserved. Mr. Brown, in his will, dated in 1796, provides for finishing a vessel on the stocks in which he was interested. In 1811, Capt. Nehemiah Palmer and Mr. Morrill built the ship "Volunteer," which was sold in New York. The ship "Cotton Planter" was built by Mr. Giles R. Hallam, which was also sold in New York. Ship "Hydaspy" was built in 1822 by Capt. Edmund Fanning. He also built the ship "Almyra," which was sold in New York. The schooner "George" was built by William Miller. Gen.

Before the Revolution, and when the West India trade was so profitable, vessels of all sorts and descriptions were pressed into the business. Vessels from fifteen tons and upwards were used, and some of them were framed and set up in the woods where the timber grew, and then taken down, carried to some suitable place on the shore, completed, and launched. Four such vessels were framed in the woods of Deacon Joseph Denison, and two in the woods of Mr. Jonathan Wheeler, besides others in different parts of the town. The "Royal Limb," a famous canoe, was made from the limb of a tree so large that a barrel of molasses could be easily rolled on the inside from one end to the other. The butt of the tree from which the limb was taken was forty-eight feet in circumference. The heart rotted out in its old age, leaving an aperture in the south side, and before it fell a score of sheep could easily find shelter from the weather in the cavity of the tree.
COMMERCE.

The license granted by the General Court of Connecticut in 1650 to Thomas Stanton for the exclusive trade of Pawcatuck River for three years laid the foundation of the commercial relations of this town with the West Indies. Parties in New London became interested with Thomas Stanton & Sons, and carried on a successful trade with the Indians and the West Indies, principally with Barbadoes. Trade was carried on with Boston and the Plymouth Colony to a considerable extent. Thomas Hewitt, of Hingham, came into Mystic River with his vessel in 1656 and bought up the surplus produce of the planters in that region. He subsequently married Hannah, daughter of Walter Palmer, in 1659, bought and built him a house on the grounds of the Elm Grove Cemetery and continued his coasting trade, and left for the West Indies in 1661 and was never again heard of, vessel or crew. The Messrs. Stanton continued and increased their fur trade, and in order to reap all of its advantages Daniel Stanton, one of the firm, went and resided at Barbadoes, where he remained until his death. Edward Denison, son of the ship builder, George Denison of Westerly, removed to Stonington and built the house lately occupied by the town clerk’s office at the Road, in 1714, where he remained until 1752, when he built the first house in Stonington Borough, and that year built the first wharf of the place, and he and his son, John Denison, continued their West India trade, in which they had previously been engaged at Pawtucket. Samuel Stanton soon sold out his real estate at Pawcatuck, and with his son Nathan came over to the borough and built the Polly Breed house, and engaged in the West India trade, which was followed by Capt. Ebenezer Stanton, son of Nathan Stanton.

William Williams, living near Mystic, became largely interested in commerce. His son William commanded one of his vessels, and died at sea in 1770. His wife died at home a few days after, leaving two children, William, the late Maj. Gen.
COMMERCE.

William Williams, and Eunice, first the wife of Rufus Wheeler, and after his death the wife of the Hon. Coddington Billings, and mother of his sons, Noyes and William, and daughter, Mrs. Eunice Farnsworth, of Norwich, Connecticut. Deacon Joseph Denison was also interested in commerce, and later the Haley family participated. The Revolutionary war almost annihilated commerce. After its close it slowly recovered, but before it had assumed its former proportions the embargo acts of Congress and the complications with European powers prostrated it again.

Then came the last war with England, with a close blockade of our harbor, crippling our commerce. After the close of the war commerce again revived, and has been prosecuted with great success in almost every department of trade. Fishing and the whaling business very early attracted the attention of our people. In 1647 the General Court enacted this: "If Mr. Whiting, with any others, shall make trial and prosecute a design for the taking of whale within these liberties, and if upon trial within the term of two years they shall like to go on, no others shall be suffered to interrupt them for the term of seven years." Whether Mr. Whiting engaged in the business or not does not appear. As early as 1701, and for several years thereafter, whales were taken and brought on shore at Wadawanuck, the oil tried out and sold in Boston and the West Indies. After the close of the Revolution a law was passed exempting all vessel property engaged in the fish and whaling business from taxation. Also the polls of the men employed four months on board a fishing or whaling vessel was exempted from taxation.

After 1790 the exemption of the vessel property was repealed, but the exempting of poll-tax was continued. Under the patronage of the State, whaling was carried on principally at and from New London, but nothing of the kind was done here until some time after the close of the last war with England. On and after 1830 several prominent business men in Stonington gave their attention to the whaling business, viz., Capt. Charles P. Williams, Charles Mallory, John F. Trumbull, Francis Pendleton, Joseph E. Smith and Moses Pendleton, aided by a most intelligent and able set of captains and subordinates, successfully prosecuted the business, and for several years it was the most lucrative business of the town. The following is a list of the vessels employed in whaling:

In July, 1819, the brig "Hersilia" sailed from Stonington on an exploring and sealing voyage under command of Capt. James P. Sheffield, William A. Fanning supercargo, and Nathaniel B. Palmer mate, for Cape Horn and the South Shetlands and the Antarctic Circle, made a splendid voyage and returned safely to Stonington. The next season a fleet of vessels consisting of the brig "Frederick," Capt. Benjamin Pendleton, the senior commander; the brig "Hersilia," Capt. James P. Sheffield; schooners "Express," Capt. E. Williams; "Free Gift," Capt. F. Dunbar; and sloop "Hero," Capt. N. B. Palmer, was fitted out at Stonington, Conn., on a voyage to the South Shetlands. They reached a place known as Yankee Harbor, Deception Island, during the season of 1820 and '21, where, from the lookout of an elevated station on a very clear day, the discovery of a volcano in operation was made.

To examine the newly discovered land Capt. N. B. Palmer was dispatched in his sloop "Hero" for that purpose. He found it to be an extensive mountainous country, sterile and dismal, loaded with snow and ice, though it was in the midsummer of that hemisphere, and a landing was difficult. On his way back he got becalmed in a fog between the South Shetlands and the newly discovered continent, but nearest the former; when the fog began to clear away, Capt. Palmer was surprised to find his little bark between a frigate and a sloop-of-war, and instantly ran up the United States flag.

The frigate and sloop-of-war then set the Russian colors, and sent a boat to the "Hero," and when alongside the lieutenant presented an invitation from his commander for Capt. Palmer to go on board, which he accepted, and found that their ship was on a voyage of discovery around the world, sent out by the Emperor Alexander of Russia. After an interesting interview, followed by an invitation from Capt. Palmer to the Russian admiral to visit Yankee Harbor, where the American fleet lay, where he might procure water and refreshments, which he declined, complimenting Capt. Palmer on the fine appearance of his vessel, adding that he thought he had discovered some new land, but now here we are in the presence of an American vessel. But his astonishment was yet more increased when Capt. Palmer informed him that away in the dim distance might be seen an immense extent of land. Capt. Palmer, while on board the frigate, was treated in the most friendly manner, and the commodore was so forcibly struck with the circumstances of the case that he named the coast far away to the south Palmer's land, and by this name it was recorded on the Russian and English charts and maps. The Stonington fleet returned richly laden in fur, and went back again the next season to the same latitude. Capt. Palmer, in the sloop "James Monroe," a vessel of eighty tons or more, traced his new-discovered land, finding the shore barred by fast ice firmly attached to the shore; after coasting eastward he returned to the fleet, and with them to Stonington, richly laden with furs. Soon after Capt. Palmer was joined by his younger brother, Alexander S. Palmer, who accompanied him on several voyages, and both became distinguished navigators. Capt. Nathaniel Palmer rose to a high position among the importers of New York, and gained their confidence to an unlimited extent, superintending the construction of their ships for the European and China trade, notably the "Great Republic." He was known and respected not only in this country but in Europe.

The sealing business, so successfully begun by Capt. Fanning, Capt. Palmer, Charles T. Stanton, and others, did not prove to be as profitable as the whaling business. The following is an incomplete list of the vessels employed by Stonington and Mystic men in the sealing business:

J. C. Smith and Stanton Sheffield owned and successfully operated a marine railway at Stonington Borough for several years, and finally sold it to the railroad company for terminal facilities.
MILLS AND MANUFACTURING.

The first mill for any purpose erected in the town of Stonington was built in 1662, under the following stipulations, viz.:

"Articles of Agreement between us whose names are hereunderwritten as followeth this 10th day of December, 1661. We, Thomas Stanton senior, Samuel Chesebrough, Nathaniel Chesebrough, Elihu Palmer, Nehemiah Palmer, Elisha Chesebrough, Thomas Miner, Sen., & Clement Miner, do bind ourselves each to the other in a bond of twenty pounds to build a grist mill at We-questa-quock upon the river that runs by Goodman Chesebrough's between this and Michaelmas next, each man to be at equal charges, either in good pay or work, & each man to have equal shares in the Mill & benefits thereof, when it is built, and no man to sell his share to any other person, if any of those will give as much for it as another will; & hereto we set our hands interchangeably this 10th of December, 1661.

"THOMAS STANTON, "SAMUEL CHESEBROUGH, "NATH'L CHESEBROUGH, "ELIHU PALMER, NEH. PALMER, ELISHA CHESEBROUGH, CLEMENT MINER, THOMAS MINER."

This agreement was followed by another between the proprietors of the land to be used in building and was as follows:

"We, William Chesebrough & Elihu Palmer, do hereby engage for ourselves & our relations, that whatever land is taken up for the Dam of the Mill before mentioned, or for any trench work, or that the water in draining overflows or for the setting of the Mill & Mill house shall go free without cost or pay to the undertakers of ye work as witness our hands this 10th day of Dec. 1661 & this land is to remain to the mill & undertakers as long as the mill continues in use; if it be defective and not sold, to return to the above mentioned William Chesebrough & Elihu Palmer, as witness our hands.

"WILLIAM CHESEBROUGH, "ELIHU PALMER."

"Witness: THOMAS MINER."

This mill has been kept up and in operation ever since, and is now the property of Mr. John F. Chesebrough. Farther up stream Mr. Chauncey Johnson, a few years ago, built another grist-mill, on lands purchased of Capt. Charles P. Williams. The second grist-mill was on the Pawcatuck River, and was built before 1666.
During the early settlement of the town the wives and daughters of the planters spun and wove all of their linen and woolen cloth, and at first and along dressed the woolen goods by hand fulling-mills, coloring the same to suit their fancy in the old-fashioned dye-tubs.

The first movement to establish fulling-mills in town for the dressing of woolen cloth came up for consideration in town-meeting in 1674, when favorable action was taken upon a letter addressed to the towns of New London, Norwich, and Stonington, by Roger Playsted, of Rhode Island, which, with the answer of the town, is as follows, viz.:

"This may certify, the towns or the inhabitants of the township of New London, Stonington and Norwich that in answer to ye request of John Lamb, concerning building of a fulling mill at or about the head of the River, for ye milling of the cloth that shall be made in those towns. Now if those towns shall please to engage certainly that they will bring all the cloth they shall have occasion to have milled to this mill mentioned, without suffering others to be built within those townships, or sending their cloth unto other places, so long as this mill can answer, or in case this cannot, that one may be erected in some other convenient place allowed and freely granted with what accommodation is requisite for the carrying along of such a design by any of the aforesaid towns from time to time and at all times need shall require.

"Now this may certainly inform you that if God shall spare my life and afford me strength to go on with this design, that I will build a substantial fulling mill with fixtures to dry your cloth which shall be under one yard and half in breadth, unto what size of thickness yourselves shall direct, you paying me for doing, three pence for each yard, so milled and dried, in money or pay equivalent, brought home to the said mill or some other convenient place not withholding my pay above six months after the work is done, and it be concluded on in some short time, I doubt not but in eighteen months after the mill may be finished and ready to go, and if after this is done, any shall desire to have their cloth sheared and dried, I shall join my son to that work provided those that have it so done shall pay what in reason such work is worth, and to conclude if what above said be granted, I to the performance of what is written have subscribed my hand this 18th of June 1674.

"ROGER PLAYSTED."

"Stonington."

"Stonington answer to Mr. Playsted's petition, that they are freely willing that Mr. Playsted should go on about erecting a fulling mill in these parts and to manifest their liking of the petitions made by the said Playsted unto them and their acceptance of the same; this was agreed upon and manifested by a vote at a public town meeting and ordered to be recorded by the selectmen, &c.

"December 29, 1674."
The towns of New London and Norwich did not accept of his proposition, so the whole matter failed.

John Shaw built the first fulling-mill in town on Stony Brook, west of the present residence of Mr. and Mrs. Burnside Coon, and on land owned by them. The date of its erection is not certainly known. The location of the dam and the margin of the pond can now be traced. It is more than a hundred years since it went out of use.

"Weave-shops" were introduced and in use as early as fulling-mills. The one manufactured the cloth and the other dressed it. The wool was carded and spun by hand; the flax was pulled, rotted, broke, swingled, hetcheled, spun, wove, and bleached by hand. Later on these "weave-shops" became a sort of manufacturing establishment for the production of first-class goods. As early as 1760 the basement of the dwelling-house of Richard Wheeler was used by him for a weave-shop. He was also engaged in tanning leather, using vats made of chestnut logs, dug out and imbedded in the ground near Stony Brook. Apprentices for this trade were regularly indentured and served for a given time, and then set up business for themselves.

A mill for the manufacture of potash, saltpetre, and powder, before and during the Revolutionary war, stood near Stony Brook, on land now owned by Nelson H. Wheeler, occupied by Arthur G. Wheeler, owned and operated by the Shaws. During the Revolutionary war the blockade of our seacoast by the British was so close and effective that sugar and molasses became so scarce that it was well-nigh impossible to get any for use. So a sugar-mill was erected on lands of Deacon Joseph Denison and operated by horse-power, in which sweet-corn stalks were ground up and the juice pressed out and boiled down for molasses and sugar.

Before the Revolution a grist-mill was erected on Stony Brook, and known for a time as the Fellows' Mill. Afterwards it became the property of Dr. William Lord, who held it until he left town, when it was purchased by the late Capt. Charles H. Smith, who erected a new dam, increasing the area of the pondage, and built a new mill below the old one, with a powerful water-fall, which made it one of the best grist-mills in the State. After the death of Capt. Smith the property was sold to Frank Sylvia, who in turn sold it to the New York, Providence and Boston Railroad Company for a reservoir.

Mechanics and artisans are important persons in any community, more especially in a new settlement, where a large share of the capital is used in new buildings. Carpenters, masons, and blacksmiths are indispensable in a new settlement. William Chesebrough, our first planter, was a blacksmith and gunsmith, but did not follow either branch of his trade after he came here to reside. James Babcock, of Westerly, was a blacksmith, and continued the business as long as he lived. John Frink was our first carpenter, and resided on Taugwonk. In 1673 there were blacksmiths in New London and Westerly, but none in Stonington. At a town-meeting in 1671, two twelve-acre lots were given to Jeremie Burch, if he would come here and do the town's smithery, which, however, he declined. Whereupon the town ordered the lots given to him to be attached and restored to the town, which was done July 24, 1674. The town did not procure a blacksmith for a year or more, nor until James Dean of Taunton, Plymouth Colony, came here and entered into an arrangement with the town, which was adopted at a town-meeting as follows:

"At a public town meeting Legally warned and held on February the 28th, 1676.

"For encouragement of James Dean in order to his settlement in our town, Sundry inhabitants do engage themselves to pay unto the said Dean a certain sum, which, for and in consideration the said Dean promiseth to repay all such persons in smithery work as each person shall have occasion for, and that these presents shall reciprocally be binding each to the other.

"The first, Mr. Stanton Sen. promiseth five pounds, Mr. Amos Richardson & his son Stephen five pounds, Nehemiah Palmer twenty shillings, Nathaniel Chesebrough twenty shillings, Thomas Stanton Jun, twenty shillings, Ephraim Miner twenty shillings, Joseph Miner twenty shillings, Goodman Reynolds and his son Thomas four shillings, Thomas Bell twenty shillings, Henry Stephens twenty shillings, Edmund Fanning twenty shillings, Joshua Holmes twenty shillings, Ezekial Main twenty shillings, Samuel Minor twenty shillings, Adam Gallup twenty shillings, Mr. James Noyes ten shillings, Goodman Searles twenty shillings.

"The sum above mentioned is to be payed to James Dean at some place in Stonington where he may or shall dwell, in either pork, butter or wheat at or before the last of November next ensuing after the date hereof; the species mentioned are to be paid at price currant.

"The same day was granted to James Dean twenty-four acres of upland which was formerly reserved by the town for the accommodation of a smith, which grant is to him and his heirs or assigns, provided he doth the towns iron work for and during the full term of three years, but if the said Dean shall decease in our town within the term, then the said grant shall properly appertain to the heirs of the said Dean without molestation by or from the town, and this grant obligeth no further, but that for the future each person payeth honestly for what work they have done."

"At a Town meeting legally warned, Sept. 6, 1677, it was voted for the smith's encouragement, Mr. Richardson promiseth to cart the thatch to cover his house, and to allow him ten days work more.

"Adam Gallup, Thomas Edwards, and Thomas Fanning promiseth to cut the thatch for his house.

"Lieutenant Mason and Gershom Palmer each of them one day's work in carting.

"Mr. Wheeler promiseth him two hundred of laths.

"At the same day James Dean had granted him one hundred acres of land where he can find it upon the commons, provided it intrench not upon any former grant. e. g.: all former grants being first satisfied.

"The selectmen vide."

"At a legal town meeting held June 1st, 1682, it was passed by vote that James Dean hath performed his condition made with the town.

"February the 26th, 1676."

The two twenty-four acre lots, or double lots, as they were sometimes called, set apart and designed for the use of a blacksmith, were situated a little way easterly of the quarry ledge at Quiambaug.

Here Mr. James Dean erected his home and shop, and commenced business in 1676. Subsequently he received other grants of land, and became a prominent man in the affairs of the town. He continued to reside in Stonington until 1698, when he and several other of the planters of Stonington went up and joined the new settlement of Plainfield, Conn., and was chosen town clerk there in 1699.

His son, James Dean, Jr., remained and built what in our early days was known as the "Old Dean House," at Dean's Mills, about the year 1700, which was destroyed by fire in 1848. James Dean, Jr., did not confine himself to blacksmithing, but learned the business of fulling and dressing woolen cloth, and for that purpose erected a fulling-mill on Mistuxet Brook, afterwards known as Dean's Brook, about one-third of the way from the old post road down to the Dean's Mills. There he continued both branches of business until his son, John Dean, reached manhood, when he and his father built a new dam and erected another fulling-mill near his dwelling-house, where the dam now crosses the brook. After this arrangement was effected they devoted their time and attention to cloth-dressing until 1807, when the fulling-mill was enlarged into a factory building, with a grist-mill, new machinery for cloth-dressing, wool-carding, and for the manufacture of cotton and woolen goods were obtained. These were introduced by Mr. James Dean, the son of John Dean, with whom he had been engaged in business from his early manhood. Mr. James Dean continued in business until 1830, when he retired. The property was subsequently purchased by Capt. Charles H. Smith, who improved the premises by raising the dam, increasing the pondage, and deepening the raceway, and leasing it to parties for cloth-dressing, wool-carding, and for manufacturing purposes generally.

Samuel Gallup built a saw-mill and dam and mill-house, about 1765. The site of this saw-mill is now overflowed by the pond of the Mystic Valley Water Power Company. Farther up this brook and west of the residence of Uriah D. Harvey, Mr. Amos Denison built a saw-mill more than one hundred years ago, which for a while commanded a good share of business, but after his death, ran down and was discontinued. Still farther up the stream the late Samuel Wheeler erected a saw-mill in 1845, which was run successfully for several years, and after his death became the property of his son, Samuel P. Wheeler, who kept it in use while he lived, but after his death it ran down, and has since been abandoned. Previous to the year 1800 a grist-mill was erected on Mystic Brook, above the village of Mystic, which from its location and its water-power was considered very valuable property.

In 1814 the General Assembly of this State incorporated the Mystic Manufacturing Company "for the purpose of manufacturing cloths and other fabrics of cotton and of wool, and of cotton and wool together; and of brass, iron, and wood into tools, engines, and machines for mechanical uses; and also of grain into flour and meal in the most advantageous manner," with a capital stock not to exceed two hundred thousand dollars. This company organized immediately and commenced business, leasing the grist-mill property above the village, and the erection of two factories at the north end of the village, which were successfully managed and finally purchased by the late Hon. John Hyde. The south factory has been destroyed by fire. The north one is still standing, though abandoned.

In 1850 another Mystic Manufacturing Company was organized as a joint-stock corporation "for the manufacture of cotton or woolen goods, or both," with the late Henry Harding, Esq., as president. Capital stock, fifteen thousand dollars. The company built the factory at the south end of the village, which, with steam-power and apparatus, was transferred to A. B. Taylor in 1864, who ran it successfully for about ten years. Afterwards it became the property of the Groton Savings Bank, which sold it to the Messrs. Rawitser & Bros.

The firm of George Greenman and Co. built a factory in 1849, at Greenmanville, which was owned and operated as corporate property under the management of Messrs. Crandall & Barber for seven years, since which the factory has been enlarged and run by various parties down to 1873, when it was purchased by W. F. Prosser and George W. Greenman, and they, in company with George Greenman & Co. run it until it was sold by them and others interested therein to James H. Bidwell and Dwight Loomis March 5, 1888. During the late Rebellion a large amount of capital was invested in an establishment for the manufacture of machinery, and located at Pistol Point in the village of Mystic, Stonington side. After the close of the war it was changed so as to manufacture cotton and woolen goods. After several changes as to ownership and management it was destroyed by fire in 1875. Hitherto a planing-mill, in connection with a sash and blind business, was established at Mystic, Stonington side, but after several business changes and structural alterations and introduction of new machinery, it is now known and operated as the Lantern Hill Silex Works.

The Allen Spool and Printing Company, organized as a joint stock corporation in Norwich, Conn., October 31st, 1879, and removed to Stonington January 28th, 1889, and located their plant near Pistol Point at Mystic, where they have prosecuted a successful business, employing the requisite number of persons necessary for its success. Edwin Allen, President; George Dimock, Secretary.

The Mystic Valley Water Company was incorporated under and by virtue of a resolution of the General Assembly of the State of Connecticut, April 13th, 1887, the object and purpose of which was to furnish pure fresh water for the inhabitants of Stonington Borough, the Mystics and Noank. The company was organized agreeably to its charter, elected its officers and commenced operations during the summer of 1887, selecting its water from the Mistuxet Brook in Stonington, purchasing the necessary real estate for its dam flowage, pumping station and reservoir, laying its pipes to the villages aforesaid; furnishing water to its customers agreeably to the provisions of its charter, successfully operating its plant with increasing demand for its water supply. The officers of the company for 1897 were: Thomas E. Packer, Mystic, President; George E. Grinnell, Mystic, Secretary; William Wheeler, Boston, Treasurer. Directors: Lucius H. Fuller, Putnam; Edward E. Fuller, Putnam; Edward Mullan, Putnam; Thomas E. Packer, Mystic; Henry B. Noyes, Mystic; William Wheeler, Boston; D. B. Spalding, Stonington.

The Mystic Industrial Company was organized under the laws of this State as a joint stock corporation, Feb. 5th, 1894, for the manufacture of velvet goods. The plant thereof is located at Greenmanville, near Mystic, on the Stonington side. The officers are Benj. F. Williams, President; John S. Heath, Vice-President; C. H. Latham, Secretary and Treasurer; Directors: H. B. Noyes, B. F. Williams, Wm. N. Latham, Elias Williams, C. L. Allen, J. S. Heath, D. F. Packer, R. D. Hiersch and Ferd. Avery.

It is not certainly known when the mill dam below Pawcatuck Bridge was built, but probably before 1760. If that dam or any of the up stream dams on Pawcatuck River below the Ashaway junction had been built before that time, the Connecticut General Assembly would have been called upon to enact a law before 1760, which is the date of the first law of Connecticut compelling the owners of dams on that river to open them during the spring season for shad and alewives to pass up to make their annual deposits. Connecticut passed similar laws for other rivers, some before 1760, and others later.

Formerly a grist-mill stood on the Connecticut side, a short distance below the bridge, which has been supplemented by the saw and planing-mills of the Messrs. Maxsons, in aid of their extensive and successful building operations, and other buildings for manufacturing purposes have been erected between them and the bridge. The steam mill on Mechanic street, at Pawcatuck, in Stonington, which was operated by the Moss Manufacturing Company in making cotton goods until 1888, when it changed owners and became the property of the Crefeld Mills Company, organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Connecticut, has been enlarged and successfully operated.

Messrs. Cottrell & Babcock commenced business at Pawcatuck in 1855, employing a large number of men in manufacturing machinery of all kinds. Later on they confined their operations principally to the construction of printing presses. In 1880 Mr. Cottrell bought out the interest of his partner therein and organized another partnership known as C. B. Cottrell & Sons, who enlarged and successfully operated said plant until his death, after which his sons continued the business of the partnership in making printing presses of up-to-date inventions, employing a large number of men in their successful business.

At the village of Stillmanville there was built a dam and saw mill on the Connecticut side of the river, when, it is not known. It was owned and operated at one time by Mr. John Congdon, who added an oil mill, and after a while he sold his entire premises to Mr. John Schofield, an Englishman, who introduced carding, spinning, weaving, fulling and dressing of woolen goods. Mr. O. M. Stillman bought this property in 1831, and by industry and various important inventions, added largely to his wealth and to the beauty of the village of Stillmanville. Mr. Stillman built a bridge across the river at that village, which is now public property. The O. M. Stillman factory is now owned and operated by the Messrs. Arnold Brothers, in connection with their mills on the Rhode Island side of Pawcatuck river, under the firm name of the Westerly Woolen Company.

In 1891 the Clark Thread Mill Company purchased of the Messrs. C. B. Cottrell Company a tract of land on the old historic Paul Babcock farm, and erected thereon a large brick establishment with surrounding buildings thereto attached, which plant is now successfully operated by the Thread Mill Company, employing a large number of persons.

Five granite quarries have been opened and worked in Stonington, one at Quiambaug, one at Taugwonk, one at Pequotsepos, and two on the farm of the late Thomas Hinckley.
A wind-mill at Stonington Point was erected before the Revolutionary war, and as such was used in grinding corn and other grains for several years, but could not compete with the water power mills in town, and so was given up.

John F. Trumbull, Esq., in 1851, built a stone factory in Stonington Borough, which was first used for the manufacture of horse shoe nails. In 1861 the Joslyn Firearms Company was formed, under the joint stock corporation laws of Connecticut, which leased this factory for their business. The close of the war of the Rebellion ended the demand for their goods and the company went out of business in 1864.

The Standard Braid Company was organized in 1866, with a capital of $100,000 and purchased this building and went forward with their business, but the great reduction in the price of their goods and heavy losses compelled them to suspend. Nothing was done in this factory for some time, nor until the Atwood Machine Company purchased the factory and commenced making machinery therein for the manufacture of silk goods. Under the skillful management of this company their business has increased to such an extent that they have been compelled to enlarge the factory, and have their hands full to fill their orders. They give constant and remunerative employment to about one hundred and fifty men.

A company for the manufacture of textile goods was organized in the Borough which did not succeed to the satisfaction of its stockholders, and soon went out of business.

The Stonington Manufacturing Company was organized in 1869, with a capital of $10,000, for the purpose of making household furniture; commenced and carried on their business for a short time and then closed out the same.

The Stonington Jewelry Company was formed in 1873, and subsequently its capital was increased, and after about two years went out of business.

The Stonington Steamboat Company was organized in 1867, with a capital of $500,000. In order to make a satisfactory terminus for its new line of boats in Providence, they changed their base and organized the company as a Rhode Island corporation.

The Stonington Building Company organized as a joint stock corporation, Dec. 19th, 1891, with a capital of $21,500, which was invested in a building now known as the Silk Velvet Factory, which is occupied and operated by the American Velvet Company. Charles A. Wimpheimer, of 131 Spring street, New York city, superintendent. Business operations have been so successful as to require an enlargement of the plant, which was accomplished by adding to its capital $14,500, aggregating $36,000. Officers: Samuel H. Chesebrough, President; F. B. Noyes, Secretary and Treasurer; Directors: Samuel H. Chesebrough, James Pendleton, Edward E. Bradley, D. Burrows Spalding.
BANKING.

The first effort of the citizens of Stonington to obtain banking facilities was in the year 1805. A few prominent men associated themselves under written articles, which, when approved and adopted by the Legislature, were designed to become the fundamental articles of the constitution of the bank, as follows:

"Articles of Agreement between the subscribers to the Washington Bank, to be established in Stonington, Connecticut, are as follows:

"Article 1st. — The capital stock of the bank shall consist of not less than fifty thousand, nor more than one hundred thousand dollars, and shall consist of one thousand shares of fifty dollars each.

"Article 2d. — The subscription shall be payable in four equal payments, the first to be made on the 1st day of March next, when the subscription shall be closed, the second on the 1st day of May, the third at the distance of three calendar months from the second, and the fourth at the distance of three calendar months from the third, unless the directors shall think best to suspend or postpone the payment of the fourth payment to such time or times as the directors may think proper, in which case the directors shall give reasonable notice to the stockholders. The payment to be made in silver or gold coin current in the United States. If there shall be any failure of the first payment on any share, the subscription for such share shall be void. If there be any failure of the second payment, the first shall be forfeited to the bank, and the subscription shall be void; and in case of any failure of the third and fourth payment of any shares, the money paid in previously to such failure on said shares shall be forfeited to said bank and the subscription be void.

"3d. — The capital of the company shall not be employed otherways than in the ordinary course of banking business, and shall not trade in anything except bills of exchange, gold, negotiable notes, or silver bullion, or in sale of goods pledged for money lent and not redeemed in due time, or in lands taken for debts previously contracted, nor shall the corporation take more than at the rate of six per cent. for or upon its loans.

"4th. — The stock of said corporation shall be assignable or transferable only at the bank by the stockholder owning such stock, or by his agent or attorney duly authorized for that purpose, in such way, manner, and under such regulations as may be instituted by the laws of the said corporation.

"5th. — The affairs of the bank as to all matters not herein regulated shall be under the management of eight directors, and there shall annually, on the day of —— in each and every year, after the first meeting, be a choice of directors to serve for one year, and the directors, at their first meeting after their election, shall choose one of their number as president, and none but stockholders shall be eligible as directors.

"6th.—The number of votes to which each stockholder shall be entitled shall be according to the number of shares he may hold, one vote to each share to be given in by himself, or by any person by him legally authorized and appointed for that purpose.

"7th.—Any stockholder or more who hold sixty shares in said company may call a general meeting of the stockholders for purposes relative to the institution, giving at least one week more notice in the public Gazette, or by giving personal or actual notice under his or their hand to each stockholder, specifying the time, place, and object of said meeting.

"8th.—No director shall be entitled to any compensation for his attendance on the business of the bank, unless allowed him by the stockholders at a general meeting, and not less than three directors shall constitute a board for doing or transacting any business of the bank, and in case of death, resignation or removal from office of any director, his place may be filled by a new choice for the remainder of the year.

"9th.—Dividends of the profits of the bank shall be made once in every six months or so much thereof as shall appear to the directors advisable, and the state of the bank shall be made known by the directors at a general meeting of the stockholders whenever they are thereto required.

"10th.—Every cashier, treasurer, or clerk employed in the bank shall, before entering on the duties of his office, give bond with two or more sureties, to the satisfaction of the directors, in such sum as the directors shall order, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his trust.

"In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands this 12th day of October, 1805.

For reasons not now fully understood the Legislature did not charter the bank provided for in the foregoing articles of association, nor was there any bank chartered and established in this town until 1822, when the Stonington Bank was chartered and located at Stonington Borough. Col. William Randall was in the Senate that year, and it was mainly through his influence that the charter for the bank was obtained. He was elected its first president, and held the office until his health compelled him to resign. He was succeeded in the presidency by Gen. William Williams, who in turn was succeeded by the Hon. Ephraim Williams, followed by Francis Amy, Esq. The bank commenced and carried on business successfully until after the close of the Rebellion, when heavy losses compelled it to suspend, and its affairs soon wound up by receivers, paying forty per cent. on the dollar of the original stock.

Old Mystic National Bank.—This bank was chartered by the General Assembly in June, 1833, with a capital of fifty thousand dollars. The stock was assigned, and the officers elected were as follows, viz.: Elias Brown, Elisha Faxon, Elisha Haley, John Hyde, Asa Fish, Latham Hull, Nathan Daboll, Stephen Haley, Silas Beebe, George W. Noyes (2), Elias Hewitt, and William H. Woodbridge, directors, who elected Elias Brown, president, and George W. Noyes (2), cashier. In 1865 this bank was changed into a national institution, under the laws of Congress. It continued in business until July 7th, 1887, when by a vote of the stockholders thereof it went into voluntary liquidation, paying $115\% per $100 of the capital stock.

The officers of the bank at the close of its business were Nehemiah M. Gallup, Allen P. Williams, Jabez Watrous, Jr., John L. Manning, John Forsyth, directors; Nehemiah M. Gallup, president; Jabez Watrous, Jr., cashier.

Pawcatuck National Bank.—This institution was chartered by the Legislature in July, 1849, with a capital of seventy-five thousand dollars. The bank was organized and elected its officers as follows, viz.: O. M. Stillman, John Brown, Thomas Hinckley, Jonathan Maxson, Jr., Francis Sheffield, D. C. Pendleton and Asa Fish, directors; O. M. Stillman, president; John A. Morgan, cashier.

In 1866 this bank was changed under a law of Congress into a national institution, with a capital of eighty-five thousand dollars. The present board of directors are Peleg Clark, Peleg S. Barber, Charles H. Hinckley, J. Daniel Davis, E. H. Knowles; Peleg Clark, president; Peleg S. Barber, vice-president; J. A. Brown, cashier.

First National Bank of Stonington.—This bank was chartered by the Legislature of 1851 as the Ocean Bank, with a capital of one hundred thousand dollars. The bank was duly organized under its charter, and the stock regularly assigned.
The first board of directors were Charles P. Williams, Gurdon Trumbull, William Hyde, Jr., Stiles Stanton, A. S. Matthews, Latham Hull, Jr., and F. C. Walker; Charles P. Williams, president; W. J. H. Pollard, cashier. This bank was nationalized Feb. 1st, 1865, and its capital increased to two hundred thousand dollars, and the board of directors were reduced from seven to five persons; and at present are as follows: William J. H. Pollard, Moses A. Pendleton, Frank B. Noyes, N. A. Pendleton, Samuel C. Langworthy; William J. H. Pollard, president; Moses A. Pendleton, vice-president; N. A. Pendleton, cashier.

National Bank of Mystic Bridge.—This bank was organized Feb. 8th, 1864, by articles of association bearing that date, with a capital of one hundred thousand dollars, which was increased to one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, with which business was commenced. The first board of directors were Charles Mallory, Charles H. Mallory, David D. Mallory, George W. Mallory and Benjamin E. Mallory; Charles Mallory, president; Elias P. Randall, cashier. The bank continued in business until May 21st, 1894, when by a unanimous vote and consent of its stockholders went into voluntary liquidation, and closed its business operations at that date, except in liquidation. The officers of the bank at the close of its business were Francis M. Manning, George H. Greenman, Henry B. Noyes, J. Alden Rathbun, Elias P. Randall, directors; Francis M. Manning, president; Elias P. Randall, cashier.

Stonington Savings Bank.—This bank was charteredin 1850, incorporating Charles P. Williams, Gurdon Trumbull, William Hyde, Jr., Ephraim Williams, John F. Trumbull, Stiles Stanton, Hiram Shaw, Oliver B. Grant, Jesse N. Brown, Benjamin Pomeroy, Francis Pendleton, Joseph E. Smith and Horace L. Niles, under the name and style of the Stonington Savings Bank. The present board of directors are: Richard A. Wheeler, William J. H. Pollard, Daniel B. Spalding, Moses A. Pendleton, Oscar F. Pendleton, George H. Robinson, Horace N. Pendleton; Richard A. Wheeler, president; William J. H. Pollard, vice-president; Daniel B. Spalding, secretary and treasurer.

The People's Saving Bank.—This bank was chartered in 1886, incorporating Peleg S. Barber, C. B. Cottrell, Charles Perrin, Stanton Hazard, Charles H. Hinckley, Charles Richmond, RAILROADS.

The first railroad in Stonington was incorporated in May, 1832, under the name of the "New York and Stonington Railroad Company," with the following named persons as corporators, viz.: Charles H. Phelps, Gurdon Trumbull, Peter Crary, William H. Woodbridge, William W. Rodman, George E. Palmer, Charles H. Smith, William C. Denison, Courtlandt Palmer, N. A. Norton, Joseph Goddard, and their associates, successors and assigns. The first board of directors were John S. Crary, S. F. Denison, Charles H. Phelps, Gurdon Trumbull, Courtlandt Palmer, F. A. Norton, and Joseph Goddard. The May session of the General Assembly of this State, in 1833, passed a resolution merging the New York and Stonington Railroad Company in the New York, Providence and Boston Railroad Company, a corporation previously chartered by the State of Rhode Island, to take effect on the 1st day of July, 1833, on condition that the Legislature of that State would before that time pass a similar act or merger of their company with ours; which when accepted and adopted by such aforesaid corporations, the railroad from Stonington to Providence should be known and operated under the name and title of the "New York, Providence and Boston Railroad Company." The State of Rhode Island passed such an act, and both corporations accepted and adopted the merging acts of both States, and the railroad has been so known and operated ever since.

The next and only other railroad company in Stonington was chartered in 1852, under the name of the "New London and Stonington Railroad Company," embodying as corporators Charles P. Williams, Thomas Fitch (2), Charles Mallory, Asa Fish, Frederick R. Griffin, Henry L. Champlain, Nathan G. Fish, Charles C. Griswold, Belton A. Kopp, E. E. Morgan, B. C. Baxter, Henry Hotchkiss, William P. Burrall, N. S. Perkins, Jr., F. W. Lawrence, J. Hammond Trumbull, Benjamin
RAILROADS.

F. Palmer, Isaac Randall, Louis Bristol, Matthew Morgan, John W. Hull, John P. C. Mather, and Ralph D. Smith, et al. This road was to extend from the river Thames easterly to a junction with the track of the New York, Providence and Boston Railroad in Stonington. It was not built for several years, nor was it finished until it was consolidated and merged with the New Haven and New London Railroad Company in 1856, under the name of the New Haven, New London and Stonington Railroad Company, with authority as such to establish a ferry across the river Thames. This consolidation resulted in the completion of the road from Stonington to New London. This extension road, as it was called, though furnishing the last link of railway communication between Boston and New York, did not prove successful. It became embarrassed, and in the year 1858 the Legislature authorized the New York, Providence and Boston Railroad Company to lease this road from New London to Stonington for a term of two years, provided such a lease would be acceptable to such corporation.

The next year the General Assembly authorized and empowered these railroads to extend their lease or contract for twenty years, provided it was acceptable to both corporations. The leasing operations did not result in a financial success to the new road, nor were they able to pay the interest on their bonded indebtedness. So the bondholders petitioned for a foreclosure of their mortgages, and while they were pending the aid of the Legislature was invoked to enable the trustees of the bondholders to run, lease or sell the road for their benefit.

The Legislature finally, in 1864, reorganized the New Haven, New London and Stonington Railroad Company, under the name of the Shore Line Railway, extending from New Haven to New London. The Legislature the same year also reorganized the old New London and Stonington Railroad Company, embracing the railroad between New London and Stonington, by associating themselves corporators to form a new company and buy out the bondholders, and authorizing the trustees to sell or lease their interest in the road; dissolving the connection between the old New Haven and New London, and the old New London and Stonington Railroad Companies, formed by the merging act of 1856. The New York, Providence and Boston Railroad Company purchased this railroad, ferry property and franchises on the 1st day of December, 1864, and has operated it ever since.

In 1875 the Legislature amended the charter of the New York, Providence and Boston Railroad Company, so as to enable them to form a connection between their tracts west of the Borough of Stonington, and as so arranged it is now in successful operation.

The New York, Providence and Boston Railroad Company, acting under its amended charter of 1875, formed the aforesaid connections, and so as arranged, the road was ably and successfully operated by its officers, who in order to make a connection with the New York, New Haven, and Hartford Railroad Company tracks at New London, in 1882 in response to a petition of the new Providence and Boston Railroad Company, the General Assembly of Connecticut authorized this company to construct and maintain a railroad bridge with suitable openings across the Thames river, not below Winthrop's Point, with approaches to connect with other railroads in the towns of New London or Waterford. In 1885 the General Assembly of Connecticut passed resolutions providing for a union depot at New London, to be constructed, maintained and used as a union passenger station in the city of New London, by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, the New London Northern Railroad Company and the New York, Providence and Boston Railroad Company.

The construction of the railroad bridge over the Thames River, as provided for in the year 1882 by the Connecticut General Assembly, was not commenced until June 1st, 1888, and was formally opened for business October 10th, 1889. This bridge is double tracked, 1,423 feet in length, with a swing draw of 503 feet long, two spans 310 feet each, and two spans of 150 feet each. This bridge and the necessary approaches cost the New York, Providence and Boston Railroad Company over $1,600,000. The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company took the road of the New York, Providence and Boston Railroad Company under a lease of April 1st, 1892, and by February, 1893, had purchased every share of its stock, when the company was merged and consolidated with the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, which with all of its railroad purchases is now known and operated successfully as the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, by the following directors and officers thereof:

Officers: Charles P. Clark, president, New Haven, Conn.; John M. Hall, vice-president, New Haven, Conn.; C. S. Meller, second vice-president, New Haven, Conn.; J. R. Kendrick, third vice-president, New Haven, Conn.; W. D. Bishop, Jr., secretary, Bridgeport, Conn.; Wm. L. Squires, treasurer, New Haven, Conn.

THE PRESS.

In 1798, Mr. Samuel Trumbull, son of John Trumbull, printer of Norwich, Conn., came to this village, known then as Stonington Port, and on October 2nd issued the first number of a newspaper entitled “The Journal of the Times.” The motto of the paper was:

“Planta s reeds where streams of freedom glide, Firm as the hills to stern oppression’s tide.”

The first twelve numbers were printed on small sized paper, but in January, 1799, paper of demi-folio size was used. The next year the title of the paper was changed to “The Impartial Journal.” Mr. Trumbull conducted his paper with as much ability as the editors of cotemporary papers. His paper was discontinued in 1805, the editor becoming a merchant.

Mr. John Munson, of New Haven, came to Stonington, and on July 6th issued the first number of a newspaper entitled “America’s Friend.” It is not known how long this paper continued, probably not more than two or three years.

In March, 1824, Mr. Samuel A. Seabury came here from Long Island and commenced the publication of a newspaper entitled “The Stonington Chronicle.” Only one number was issued. The editor died suddenly before another number was issued.

In July, 1824, Mr. William Storer, Jr. (who had previously published a newspaper at Caldwell, situated at the head of Lake George, Warren county, New York), came here, and on July 28th was issued the first number of a newspaper entitled “The Yankee,” and took for its motto:

After three years its title was changed to “The Stonington Telegraph,” under which name the paper existed till July 22nd, 1829, when it was discontinued. Mr. Storer was an able editor, but the enterprise was a financial failure.
The next adventurers in the newspaper line were Charles W. Denison, a native of Stonington, and William H. Burleigh. They were both good writers, and many excellent articles appeared in the "Stonington Phenix" and "Stonington Chronicle." The first number appeared in May, 1832, and the last in May, 1834, but the enterprise was a failure financially. After this, despite the ill success of so many editors, Mr. Thomas H. Peabody, of North Stonington, came here and published a paper styled "The Stonington Spectator," which had for its motto:

"We are the advocates of no party."

He was assisted at first by David Austin Woodworth of North Stonington, and later by Marcus B. Young of Norwich. He was forced by ill health to discontinue the paper after it had existed six months from May, 1834. After him a few other attempts were made at publishing, when Mr. Jerome S. Anderson (who had many years before when a very young man attempted to publish a paper here), commenced the publication of the "Stonington Mirror," Nov. 27th, 1869. This paper has been continued without intermission for thirty years, and its circulation is becoming more extensive every year.

The Pequots were doubtless a branch of the great Mohegan natives, whose principal seat or central place of residence was on the east bank of the Hudson River nearly opposite Fort Orange, now the city of Albany, New York. In their efforts to enlarge their dominions they crossed the Hudson River and attempted to invade the tribal land of the Mohawk Indians, which resulted in war, and after an exhaustive struggle they were driven back across the Hudson and away from their tribal homes and lands in a southeasterly direction, until they reached the territory now known as the State of Connecticut. During their war with the Mohawks, a powerful sachem by the name of Pequoat greatly distinguished himself, and his followers assumed for him the name of Pequot, and in their eastern progress they gave him the name of Wopigwooit, alias Wapyquart, signifying a powerful leader.

After the defeat and dispersion of the Mohegan tribe by the Mohawks, they emigrated easterly and became divided into small tribes, under, and sometimes hostile, chiefs. The Pequots were the most powerful clan of the great Mohegan tribe and lorded it over the smaller clans with a high hand, and in their progress they crossed the Connecticut River and invaded the tribal lands of the Niantic Indians, which bordered on the seashore between the Narragansett and Connecticut Rivers.

The Pequots succeeded in dividing the Niantic tribe into two clans, leaving one clan to occupy Niantic in Rhode Island, and the other clan to occupy Niantic in Connecticut, taking possession of and holding all the lands between the divided clans of the Niantic Indians.

After establishing their authority over the central tribal lands of the Niantic Indians, they commenced and built for themselves two wigwam villages, one on each side of the River Thames, now known as the city of New London and Groton.
Bank, which the Pequots occupied when Governor John Endicott, in 1636, came with ninety men to chastise them for murdering Capt. John Oldham and others. Elated with their success in dividing the Niantic Indians, and in being able to hold their central tribal lands in defiance of their power and authority, yet, while so doing they were apprehensive of an invasion by the eastern Niantics and the powerful Narragansett tribe of Indians, who might dispossess them of their seashore dominions and restore the entire Niantic tribal lands to them. So they built two forts to protect themselves from any invasion of the eastern Niantics and Narragansetts, on or near what is now known as Fort Hill in the town of Groton, and the other farther east on Mystic Hill in said town, which they regarded as an all sufficient defense against their eastern enemies.

Thus protected, they felt able to extend their dominions to the north and west, and after arming themselves with their rude munitions of war, they invaded the tribal lands of the Sequeen Indians, which lay on both sides of the Connecticut River in the present county of Hartford, Conn., which was doubtless one of the clans of the original Mohegan tribe, and after three hand to hand conflicts with them compelled the Sequeens to acknowledge their power and authority and became tributary to them.

According to the Dutch account the successful invasion of the tribal lands of the Sequeens by the Pequots was after the discovery of our seacoast by the Dutch in 1614, but no exact date of the time has been preserved.

From Broadhead's Dutch history of New York, vol. i, page 238, we learn that the Dutch projected a trading-house to be located on the Connecticut River, in 1623, but it was not built till 1633, when the Dutch General Van Twiller dispatched John Van Culer, one of his commissaries, with six others, to finish the long projected fort on the Connecticut River and to obtain a formal deed of the tract of land previously selected by the Dutch for a fort and trading-house. One clan of the Mohegan tribe of Indians that migrated to Connecticut from the Hudson River adhered to the original tribal name of Mohegan, and at the time of the first settlement of this State was under the sachemdom of a powerful leader, known as Uncas, who repeatedly revolted against the power of the Pequot sachems, Wopigwooit and his son Sassacus, but could not release himself and clan from their authority.

His tribal lands were situated in what is now Montville, Conn., where his central wigwam village was located, the site of which still exists. The site of the fort purchased by Van Culer of the sachem of the Pequots, by the general consent of the Sequeen clan, was situated on the west bank of the Connecticut River, within the present limits of the city of Hartford, Conn., adjoining Little River on the north and the Connecticut River on the east. There was a condition in the agreement with the Pequots in the purchase of the land for the fort and trading-house, which appears in the deed of the same as follows: “That the said purchase was made with the free will and consent of the inhabitants there; that the ceded territory, Sicajoock, should always be a central ground, where all the Indian tribes might resort for purposes of trade, and where no war should ever be waged.” With the consent of the Pequot sachem and Magasitinne, chief of “Sloops Bay,” it was also arranged that the chief of the Sequeens should thereafter live with the Dutch. This land was bought of the Pequots, as conquerors, with the good will and assent of the Sequeens. This deed was dated June 8th, 1633, and the trading-house and fort erected thereon was called “Good Hope.”

Previous to the erection of the fort and trading-house, and as early as 1631, an Indian sachem visited the governors of Massachusetts and Plymouth Colonies in the guise of a suppliant, calling himself Waquimacut, and described his tribal lands as a rich and beautiful valley occupied by his and kindred tribes, abounding in corn and game of all kinds and divided by a river called Connecticut. The governors gave him a courteous reception, but declined to enter into any arrangement with him relative to his assumed dominions. This sachem was doubtless a Tunxis Indian, who belonged to one of the clans of the original tribe of the Mohegans, and before the invasion of the Pequots occupied the territory now known as Windsor, Conn., from which he had been driven by the Pequots.

Whether the governors of Massachusetts and Plymouth Colonies were aware of the successful invasions of the Connecticut River valley by the Pequots does not appear. Be that as it may, Governor Winslow of the Plymouth Colony became interested in the story of the Tunxis sachem and sent some men to explore the Connecticut River region to learn the condition of the alluvial deposits on each side of the river, which are now known to be some of the richest meadows in New England. Governor Winslow was so well pleased with their explorations of the Connecticut valley that under the sanction of his Colonial magistrates, he decided to establish and build a trading-house near the mouth of the Tunxis River, in what is now known as Windsor, Conn., in defiance of the Dutch at Fort "Good Hope," some six miles below the site of the contemplated Plymouth trading-house.

In October, 1633, Gov. Winslow selected William Holmes to build the Plymouth trading-house at Windsor. So with the frame of this trading-house and all the requisite materials for its erection and with his commission in his pocket, Holmes set sail for the Connecticut River, which he entered and ascended without meeting with any opposition until he arrived at the Dutch fort at Hartford, when he was threatened with dire vengeance by them, which he disregarded and sailed on to his destination, where he erected his trading-house and palisaded it.

The Tunxis sachem, who had visited Massachusetts and Plymouth with some of the chiefs of the river clans, had been driven away from their tribal lands by the Pequots. It appears that Holmes had brought back to Windsor with him in his vessel some of the chiefs of these river clans, of whom he purchased such land as he found requisite for carrying out his plans. This aggravated and enraged the Pequot sachems, inciting them to acts of violence against the English traders.

Capt. Stone, one of the fur traders on our New England coast, on his way from Boston to Virginia in 1634, entered the mouth of the Connecticut River, for the purpose of trading at the Dutch fort, and while on his way up the river was treacherously murdered by the Pequots.

The massacre of Capt. Stone and his comrades was followed soon afterward by the killing of some friendly Sequeen Indians, who had come to the Dutch fort to trade, relying on the conditional covenants of the Pequot deed of the Dutch Good Hope trading fort.

This massacre was ordered done by Wopigwooit, the chief sachem of the Pequots at the time. Commissary Van Culer with his soldiers punished the treacherous savages by slaying the old Sachem Wopigwooit, alias Wapyquart, and several of his associate assassins.

This excited and angered the Pequots to such an extent that they commenced and prosecuted an unrelenting war with the Dutch, and all pale faces that they caught in their assumed dominions.

At first they sought an alliance with the English of the Massachusetts Colony, for the purpose of diverting all the fur trade of the New England coast from the Dutch and giving it to the English traders. To effect their purpose they negotiated a treaty with the Governor and Magistrates of Massachusetts, by which the Pequots agreed to surrender the murderers of Capt. Stone and his party, giving them also all of their right and title in the Connecticut River and adjoining valley, on condition that they would give all their trade to the Pequots. This treaty was in direct contravention with the claims of the Dutch, derived from their assumed discoveries and conveyances from the Pequots. To recover which, the Dutch sent a strong force to dislodge Capt. Holmes and his men from their trading-house at Windsor, Conn.

Meeting with unexpected resistance, the Dutch force did not attempt to reduce the palisaded fort there, and thus ended all of their efforts to hold by force any trading place on the Connecticut River.

But Capt. Holmes soon found difficulties beginning to thicken around him. The sachems of the river tribes, who had been driven away from their territories by the Pequots, and had been brought by him in his vessel and of whom he had purchased such land as he found requisite for carrying out his enterprise, enraged the Pequots, who claimed that such sachems and their clans were tributary to them and were being restored by the English to their former tribal lands on the Connecticut River, which incited them to acts of violence against the English traders. The Massachusetts and Plymouth Colonies generally regarded the treaty with the Pequots as opening up the rich and fertile valley of the Connecticut alluvial lands to their migration and settlement there. Some of the colonists, however, doubted the validity of their title and appealed to the English courts for a solution of the matter.
Pending the consideration thereof, the Pequots, doubtless apprehending the motives of the English and treacherously disregarding their treaty obligations with the colonists, commenced the massacre of the English and Dutch indiscriminately, and when reminded of their treaty obligations responded by saying that they could not tell the difference between the Dutch and English, as they were all pale faces.

During the years of 1634 and 1635, the Pequots sought every available opportunity to murder every Englishman whom they could find alone or so situated as to be unable to defend himself.

In 1635 the migration overland of the English colonists from Dorchester, Mass., to Windsor, Conn., took place. The towns of Hartford and Wethersfield were settled about the same time.

The atrocious and inhuman murder of the English by the Pequots aroused the Massachusetts and Plymouth authorities to a sense of their duty, as well as their own safety, to put a stop by force to such atrocities and inflict if possible adequate punishment upon the assassins.

So in 1636, they sent General Endicott with ninety men with full power and authority to deal with the Pequots as their treacherous and inhuman conduct demanded. Endicott's expedition resulted in the destruction of a good deal of the property of the Indians, but no decisive results as to the protection of the English from the murderous assaults of the Pequots was attained or secured thereby. The settlement of Windsor, Hartford and Wethersfield, with a General Court organized and acting independent of Massachusetts authority, with deputies thereto elected by said towns, and so terrible and ferocious had the Pequots become and the victims of their atrocities so numerous that the Connecticut General Court when assembled in May, 1637, declared war against the Pequots, and passed an act to raise ninety men, forty-two from Hartford, thirty from Windsor and eighteen from Wethersfield, and appointed Capt. John Mason, of Windsor, commander of the expedition.

The soldiers were enlisted, equipped and provisioned in ten days, and sailed from Hartford May 10th, 1637, accompanied by Uncas and seventy friendly Mohegan Indians. The fleet consisted of three vessels and the English being unacquainted with the navigation of the river ran their vessel aground several times, and after five days they reached Saybrook fort. Capt. Underhill with his detachment of Massachusetts soldiers then at the fort, tendered his services with nineteen men for the expedition, on condition that Capt. Lyon Gardner, the commander of the fort, would consent, which was readily granted.

Capt. Mason then sent back twenty of his men to guard the well nigh defenseless settlements during his absence. After some delay, caused by adverse winds, and after a council of war, Capt. Mason says: "On Friday morning we set sail for Narragansett Bay, and on Saturday towards evening we arrived at our desired port; then we kept the Sabbath. On the Monday following the wind blew so hard at the northwest that we could not go on shore, so also on Tuesday until sunset," at which time Mason landed and marched up to the place of the chief sachem's residence and told him that "we had not an opportunity to acquaint him with our coming around into his country sooner, yet not doubting but it would be well accepted by him, there being love between himself and us, well knowing also that the Pequots and themselves were enemies, and that he could not be acquainted with those intolerable wrongs and injuries that the Pequots had lately done unto the English, and that we were now come, God assisting us, to avenge ourselves upon them, and that we did only desire free passage through his country." He returned us this answer, "That he did accept of our coming and did approve of our design, only he thought our numbers were too weak to deal with the enemy, who were great captains and men skilled in war, thus he spoke somewhat slightly of us."

Canonicus' wigwam was situated near Wickford harbor or landing place in Rhode Island, and he was the chief sachem of the Narragansett Indians at the time. This was the opinion of the late Hon. Elisha R. Potter, who in his day was the best informed Indian historian of Rhode Island. Mason was undoubtedly piloted to or as near Canonicus' residence as he could go with his fleet by Uncas, with whom Mason desired an interview to explain his coming with armed men into his dominions, as it might be regarded by him as a cause for war, unexplained.

Mason adds to his history of the Pequot war the following: "On Wednesday morning we marched from Canonicus' residence to a place called Niantic, it being about eighteen or twenty miles distant, where another of these Narragansett sachems lived in a fort, it being a frontier of the Pequots. They did not carry themselves very friendly towards us, not permitting any of us to come into their fort. We beholding their carriage, and the falsehood of Indians, and fearing lest they might discover us to the enemy, especially they having many times some of their near relations among their greatest foes, we therefore caused a strong guard to be set about their fort, giving charge that no Indian should be suffered to pass in or out. We also informed the Indians that none of them should stir out of the fort, upon peril of their lives, so as we would not suffer any of them to go out of the fort.” Continuing, Capt. Mason says: “That we quartered that night, the Indians not offering to stir out all the while. In the morning there came to us several of Miantonomo’s men, who told us they had come to assist us in our expedition, which encouraged diverse Indians of that place to engage also, who suddenly gathering into a ring one by one, making solemn protestations how gallantly they would demean themselves and how many men they would kill. On Thursday about eight of the clock in the morning, we marched thence towards Pequot, with about five hundred Indians. But, through the heat of the weather and want of provisions some of our men fainted, and having marched about twelve miles came to Pawcatuck River at a ford where our Indians told us the Pequots did usually fish; there making a halt we stayed some small time.”

An affidavit on our old Stonington land records shows that Miantonomo and Ninigret, sachems of the Narragansett and Niantic tribes, were with Capt. Mason and his friendly Mohegans when they reached Wecapaug, five miles east of Pawcatuck River. But evidently these sachems with a large part of the Indian allies, left Capt. Mason before he reached Pawcatuck River. Uncas renewed his friendship and assurances of assistance to Capt. Mason, and faithfully kept his declarations. After Mason and his soldiers and friendly Indians had refreshed themselves with their rations, they marched to Westerly, about three miles, and came to a field which had lately been planted with Indian corn, where he made another halt and called his council of war, supposing that they drew near the enemy. Mason in his narrative says:

“And being informed by the Indians that the enemy had two forts almost impregnable, but we were not at all discouraged, but rather animated in so much that we were resolved to assault both forts at once. But understanding that one of them was so remote that we could not come up with it before midnight, though we marched hard, whereat we were much grieved, chiefly because the greatest and bloodiest sachem there resided, whose name was Sassacus, we were constrained, being exceedingly spent in our march with extreme heat and want of necessaries, to accept the nearest." Continuing, Mason says:

"We then marching on in a silent manner, the Indians that remained fell all into the rear, who formerly kept the van (being possessed with great fear), we continued our march till about one hour in the night and coming to a little swamp between two hills, there we pitched our little camp, much wearied with hard travel, keeping great silence, supposing we were very near the fort, as our Indians informed us, which proved otherwise. The rocks (now known as 'Porter's Rocks') were our pillows, yet rest was pleasant, the night proved comfortable, being clear and moonlight. We appointed our guard and placed our sentinels at some distance, who heard the enemy singing at the fort, who continued that strain until midnight with great insulting and rejoicing as we were afterwards informed; they seeing our pinnaces sail by them some days before, concluded we were afraid of them, and durst not come near them, the burthen of their song tending to that purpose. In the morning, we awaking, and seeing it very light, supposing it had been day, and so we might have lost our opportunity, having purposed to make our assault before day, roused the men with all expedition and briefly commending ourselves and designs to God, thinking immediately to go to the assault, the Indians showing us a path, told us that it led directly to the fort. We held on our march about two miles, wondering that we came not to the fort, and fearing we might be deluded, but seeing corn newly planted at the foot of a great hill, supposing the fort was not far off, a champion country being round about us, there making a stand, gave the word for some of the Indians to come up.

"At length Uncas and one Wequash appeared. We demanded of them where was the fort? They answered: 'On the top of that hill.' Then we demanded: 'Where was the rest of the Indians?' They answered: 'Behind, exceedingly afraid.' We wished them to tell the rest of their fellows that they should by no means fly, but stand at what distance they pleased and see whether Englishmen would now fight or not.

"Then Capt. Underhill came up, who marched in the rear and commending ourselves to God, divided our men. There being two entrances into the fort, intending to enter both at once, Capt. Mason leading up to that on the northeast side, who, approaching within one rod, heard a dog bark and an Indian crying out 'Owanox,' Owanox,' which is Englishmen, Englishmen. We called up our forces with all expedition and gave fire upon them through the palisades, the Indians being in a dead, indeed their last sleep. Then wheeling off, fell upon the main entrance, which was blocked up with bushes about breast high, over which Capt. Mason passed, intending to make good the entrance, encouraging the rest to follow.

"Lieut. Seeley endeavored to enter, but being encumbered somewhat, stepped back and pulled out the bushes, and so entered with sixteen men. We had formerly concluded to destroy them by the sword and save the plunder, whereupon Capt, Mason, seeing no Indians, entered a wigwam, when he was beset with many Indians, watching an opportunity to lay hands on him, but could not prevail. At length William Hayden, espying the breach in the wigwam, supposing some English might be there, entered, but on his entrance fell over a dead Indian, but speedily recovering himself; some of the Indians fled, others crept under their beds. The captain, going out of the wigwam, saw some Indians in the lane or streets and he marching towards them they fled and were pursued to the end of the lane, where they were met by Edward Pattison, Thomas Barber and some others, when seven of them were slain as they said. The captain, facing about, marched at a slow pace up the lane. He came down feeling himself very much out of breath and coming to the other end, near the place where he first entered, saw two soldiers, standing close to the palisades with their swords pointing to the ground. The captain said that we should never kill them after that manner, but said we must burn them and immediately stepping into the wigwam, where he had been before, brought out a fire-brand and putting it into the mats with which the wigwams were covered set them on fire. Lieut. Thomas Bull and Nicholas Olmstead, beholding, came up and when it was thoroughly kindled the Indians ran as men most dreadfully amazed. And indeed such a dreadful terror did the Almighty let fall upon their spirits that they would fly from us and run into the very flames, where many of them perished, and when the fort was thoroughly fired, command was given that all should fall off and surround the fort, which was readily attended by all, only one, Arthur Smith, being so wounded that he could not move out of the place, but he was happily espied by Lieut. Bull and by him removed and rescued.

"The fire was kindled on the northeast side to windward, which did swiftly overrun the fort to the extreme amazement of the enemy and great enjoyment of ourselves, some of them climbing to the top of the palisades, others of them running into the very flames, many of them gathering to windward, lay pelting at us with their arrows, and we repaid them with small shot. Others of the stoutest issued forth as we did guess to the number of forty, who perished by the sword. What I have formerly said is according to my own knowledge, there being sufficient living testimony to every particular. But in reference to Capt. Underhill, and his party acting in the assault, I can only intamate as we were informed by some of themselves.

"Immediately after the fight, then they marching up to the entrance on the southwest side of the fort, there made some pause, a valiant, resolute gentleman, one Mr. Hedge, stepping towards the gate, saying, 'If we may not enter, whereupon came we here,' and immediately endeavored to enter, but was opposed by a sturdy Indian who did impede his entrance, but the Indian being slain by himself and Sergeant Davis, Mr. Hedge then entered the fort with some others, but the fort being on fire the smoke and flames were so violent that they were constrained to desert the fort."

Capt. Mason in his history of the fight says nothing of the size of the fort, which has been described by some others as containing from ten to fifteen acres of land. G. H. Hollister, in his history of Connecticut, estimates the area of the fort at twenty acres within the palisades surrounding it. This estimate is far too great, for the charcoal of the palisades that were burned, did not assimilate with the soil in which they stood, and when the site of the fort was plowed up and cultivated by the colonists, the charcoal appeared very plain, showing that the fort was round, and did not contain over one and one-half acres of land.

Mr. Hollister also says: "That the area of the fort was sufficient to afford room for a large Indian village with more than twenty houses with adequate lanes and streets." He and several other historians claim that the houses in the fort were the homes for all the women and children of the Indians who garrisoned it, all of whom perished in the conflagration that destroyed the fort. Mason does not say anything about women or children in the fort, nor is it probable, when we consider the size of the fort and the number of Indians that it contained and the purpose for which it was built, that any of their women and children made it their home, nor does Mason in his history thereof say anything about the houses it contained. He speaks of a wigwam which he entered at first and later to get a fire-brand to burn their wigwams, which as he says was covered with mats. His object in burning their wigwams doubtless was to drive the Indians from their hiding places in and about their wigwams, so as to bring them out into a fair open hand to hand fight. Mr. Hollister in his history greatly overestimates the area of the fort and the number of the Indians there.

The Pequots had two wigwam villages, which were known to the New England colonists before the Pequot war. Their fort was not built for the purpose of enclosing and protecting an Indian wigwam village, nor was the Pequot fort on Groton hill, where Sassacus and some of his warriors bivouacked at the time when the fort on Mystic hill was destroyed, built for any such purpose. They were evidently built by the Pequots to enable them to resist and prevent the Narragansetts and Niantics from invading their tribal lands, from which the Pequots had previously driven them for the purpose of regaining possession thereof. The wigwams of which Mason speaks were mainly designed for barracks for the Indians to occupy when they occupied the fort for its defense. Mason also says in his history of the Pequot war, that the Pequots knew of his contemplated invasion of their tribal lands and had seen his vessels when they sailed by for Narragansett Bay, and felt assured that the English were afraid of them. Doubtless being apprehensive of an attack from the east, they gathered all of their warriors into their forts so as to resist and defeat the English if they attempted to attack them there, showing conclusively that these forts were built for war purposes and not for the protection of their wigwam villages. Wigwams for Indian families to occupy were not generally clustered into villages, but were more frequently erected near their cultivated lands for the convenience of their women, who did all the work of cultivation of all sorts, while the men were roaming on hunting excursions, or training and drilling as warriors for war purposes. Mason gives the casualties of the Pequot fight as follows: "There were two of his soldiers killed outright and about twenty wounded," adding that some fainted by reason of the sharpness of the weather and small comforts and necessaries as were needful in such a case, especially his surgeon was much needed, whom he had left with his bark in Narragansett Bay, who had orders there to remain until the night before the intended assault, adding that thereupon grew many difficulties: "Our provisions and munitions of war were spent, we were in the enemies' country, who did far exceed our numbers, being much enraged and nearly all of our Indians, except Uncas, deserting us; our pinnaces at a great distance from us and when they would come we were uncertain. But as we were consulting what course to take it pleased God to discover our vessels to us before a fair gale of wind, sailing into Pequot Harbor to our great rejoicing. We had no sooner discovered our vessels, but immediately came up the enemy from the other fort, three hundred or more as we conceived. The captain led a file or two of men to skirmish with them, chiefly to try what temper they were of, who put them to a standstill, we being much encouraged thereat, whereupon we presently prepared to march towards our vessels. Four or five of our men were so severely wounded that they had to be carried by our men, we being also faint, were constrained to put four of our men to each one of the four or five men who were dangerously wounded, so that we had not above forty men free. At length we hired several of our friendly Indians to carry our disabled wounded men, which eased us of that burthen and after marching about one quarter of a mile, the enemy coming up to the place where the fort was and beholding what was done there stamped and tore the hair from their heads and after a little space came mounting down the hill upon us in a full career as if they would run over us, but when they came within shot, the rear faced about, giving fire upon them, some of them being shot made the rest of them more wary, yet they kept on running to and fro and shooting their arrows at random. At the foot of the hill was a small brook, where we rested and refreshed ourselves, having by that time taught them a little more manners than to disturb us. We then marched on towards Pequot Harbor, and falling upon several wigwams, burnt them, the enemy still following us in the rear, which was to windward, though to little-purpose, yet some of them lay in ambush behind rocks and trees, often shooting at us, yet through mercy touched not one of us, and as we came to any swamp or thicket we made some shot to clear the passage. Some of them fell with our shot and probably more might but for want of munitions. When any of them fell our Indians would give a great shout and thus would they take so much courage as to fetch their heads. And thus we continued until we came within two miles of Pequot Harbor, when the enemy gathered together and left us, we marching on to the top of a hill adjoining the harbor, with our colors flying, having left our drums at the place of our rendezvous the night before. We seeing our vessels there riding at anchor to our great rejoicing and came to the water side, we there sat down in quiet. Capt. Patrick, being arrived there with our vessels, who as we were informed was sent with forty men by the-Massachusetts Colony upon some service against the Block Islanders, who coming to the shore in our shallop, with all of his company, as he said to rescue us, supposing that we were pursued, though there did not appear the least sign of such a thing. But we could not prevail with him by any means to put his men ashore, so that we might carry our wounded men aboard, although it was our own boat in which he was. We were very much troubled, but knew not how to help ourselves.

"At length we were fetched aboard to the great rejoicing of our friends. Shortly after our coming aboard, there fell out a great contest between Capt. Underhill and Capt. Patrick. Capt.
Underhill claiming an interest in the bark where Capt. Patrick was, which indeed was Underhill's right. The contest grew to a great height. At length we propounded that if Patrick would ride with that bark in contention and secure the Narragansett Indians, it being also the place of rendezvous to those vessels that were expected from Massachusetts, until we transported our wounded men to Saybrook, five leagues distant, then we would immediately return our pink to convey the Narragansetts home, the which Capt. Patrick seemed very ready to accept.

"Capt. Underhill soon after set sail in one of our barks for Saybrook, but before he was out of sight signified by writing, that he could not attend that service, but he must wait for the Bay vessels at Saybrook, wishing us the honor of that service to complete it, by securing the Narragansett Indians, which at first seemed very difficult, if not impossible, for our pink could not receive them, and to march by land was very dangerous, it being near twenty miles in the enemy's country, our numbers being much weakened, as we were then about twenty men, the rest we had sent home for fear of a Pequot invasion. But absolutely necessitated to march by land we hasted ashore with our Indians and small numbers. Capt. Patrick seeing what we intended came ashore also with his men, although in truth we did not desire or delight in his company and so we plainly told him; however, he would and did march along with us. About the midway between that and Saybrook we fell upon a people called Niantics, belonging to the Pequots, who fled to a swamp for refuge, they hearing or espying us fled. We pursued them a while by the track as long as they kept together, but being much spent with former travel and the Sabbath drawing on, it being about two or three of the clock on the Saturday in the afternoon, we leaving our pursuit hasted towards Saybrook and about sunset we arrived at Connecticut River side, being nobly entertained by Lieut. Gardner, with many great guns, and were forced there to quarter that night. On the morrow we were all fetched over to Saybrook, receiving many courtesies from Lieut. Gardner, and after we had taken order for the safe conduct of the Narragansett Indians, we repaired to the places of our abode, where we were entertained with great triumph and rejoicing and praising God for His goodness to us, in succeeding our weak endeavors, in crowning us with success and restoring us with so little loss. Almost immediately after we left, the whole body of the remaining Pequots repaired to the fort, where Sassacus, the chief sachem, resided, charging him that he was the sole cause of all trouble that had befallen them, and therefore they would destroy both him and his, but by the entreaty of their counsellors, they spared his life and after consulting what course to take, concluded there was no abiding any longer in their country, and so resolved to fly into several places. The greatest body of them went towards Manhatance (now New York city). Passing over Connecticut River they met with three Englishmen in a shallop, going for Saybrook, whom they slew. The Englishmen fought very stoutly as they afterward confessed, wounding many of them.”

Mason further says: “That about a fortnight after his return home, which was about one month after the fight at Mystic, there arrived in Mystic River several vessels from the Massachusetts Colony, Capt. Israel Stoughton being commander in chief, and with him about one hundred and twenty men, being sent by that colony to pursue the war against the Pequots, the enemy being all fled before they came, except some few stragglers, who were surprised by the Moheages and others of the Indians and by them delivered to the Massachusetts soldiers. Connecticut Colony being informed thereof, sent forthwith forty men, Capt. Mason being chief commander, with some other gentlemen to meet those of the Massachusetts to consider what was necessary to be attended respecting the future, who meeting with them of the Massachusetts in Pequot Harbor, after some time of consultation, concluded to pursue those Pequots that were fled towards Manhatance and forthwith marched after them, discovering several places where they had rendezvoused and lodged not far distant from their several removes, making but little haste by reason of their children and want of provisions, being forced to dig for clams and to procure such other things as the wilderness afforded, our vessels sailing along by the shore. In about the space of three days we all arrived at New Haven Harbor, then called Quinipiag, and seeing a great smoke in the woods not far distant we, supposing that some of the Pequots, our enemies, might be there, hastened ashore, but quickly discovered them to be Connecticut Indians; then we returned aboard our vessels, where we stayed some short time, having sent a Pequot captive upon discovery; we named him Lux, who brought no tidings of the enemy, which proved true, so faithful was he to us, though against his own nation. Such was the terror of the English upon them that a Moheage Indian named Jack Eatow, going ashore at that time, met with three Pequots, took two of them and brought them aboard. We then hastened our march towards the place where the enemy was and coming into a corn field, several of the English espied some Indians, who fled from them and they pursued them, and coming to the top of a hill saw several wigwams just opposite, only a swamp intervening which was almost divided into two parts, Sergeant Palmer hastening with about twelve men, who were under his command, to surround the smaller part of the swamp, that he might prevent the Indians flying. Ensign Davenport and Sergeant Jeffries, entering the swamp, intended to have gone to the wigwams, were there set upon by several Indians, who in all probability were deterred by Sergt. Palmer. In this skirmish the English slew but few, two or three of themselves were wounded, the rest of the English coming up, the swamp was surrounded. Our council being called, and the question propounded, how we should proceed, Capt. Patrick advised that we should cut down the swamp, there being many Indian hatchets taken, Capt. Trask concurring with him, but was opposed by others; then they would have a hedge made like those of Gotham, all of which was judged by some almost impossible and to no purpose and that for several reasons and therefore strongly opposed, but some others advised to force the swamp, having time enough, it being about three of the clock in the afternoon, but that being opposed it was then propounded to draw up our men close to the swamp, which would have much lessened the circumference and withal to fill up the open passages with bushes, that so we might secure them until morning and then we might consider further about it.

"But neither of these would pass, so different were our apprehensions, which were very grievous to some of us, who concluded the Indians would make an escape in the night as easily they might and did. We keeping a great distance, what better could be expected. Yet Capt. Mason took order that the narrows in the swamp should be cut through, which did much shorten our leagues. It was resolutely performed by Sergeant Davis.

"We being loath to destroy women and children, as also the Indians belonging to that place, whereupon Mr. Thomas Stanton, a man well acquainted with Indian language and manners, offered his services to go into the swamp and treat with them, to which we were somewhat backward, by reason of some hazard and danger he might be exposed unto, but his importunity prevailed, who going to them did in a short time return to us with near two hundred old men, women and children, who delivered themselves to the mercy of the English. And so night drawing on, we beleaguered them as strongly as we could. About half an hour before day, the Indians that were in the swamp attempted to break through Capt. Patrick's quarters, but were beaten back several times, they making a great noise as their manner is at such times; it sounded round about our leaguer, whereupon Capt. Mason sent Sergeant Stears to enquire into the cause and also to assist if need require. Capt. Trask coming also to their assistance, but the tumult growing to a very great height we raised our siege and marching up to the place at a turning of the swamp, the Indians were forcing out upon us, but we sent them back by our small shot. We waiting a little for a second attempt, the Indians in the meantime facing about, pressed violently upon Capt. Patrick, breaking through his quarters and so escaped. They were about sixty or seventy as we were informed. We afterwards searched the swamp and found but few slain. The captives we took were about one hundred and eighty, whom we divided, intending to keep them as servants, but they could not endure the yoke, few of them continuing any considerable time with their masters. Sassacus, his brother Mononoto and several of his sachems did not surrender to the English, but fled to the Mohawks for protection and personal safety, but contrary to their expectations the Mohawks, remembering their old-time wars with the Pequots, put Sassacus and several of his refugee sachems to death, but his brother Mononoto escaped, though seriously wounded by them. After taking the life of Sassacus the Mohawks cut off his head and sent it by special messenger to the Connecticut authorities as a token of their friendship for the English."

In the foregoing history of the Pequot Indians, I have consulted Broadhead's Dutch history of New York, and have closely followed Capt. John Mason's history of the causes that resulted in the declaration of war by the Connecticut Colonial General Court against the Pequots and the successful progress and consummation of the expedition that he conducted against them. After the close of the Pequot war, Uncas, Miantonomo and Ninigret, with the remaining captive Pequots, on the 21st day of Sept., 1637, met the magistrates of Connecticut at Hartford, and after mutual friendly intercourse, a treaty was entered into between the colony of Connecticut and the Mohegan, Narragansett and Niantic Indians, which by its terms established perpetual peace between the colony of Connecticut and the Mohegan, Narragansett and Niantic Indians, and then with imposing ceremonies the magistrates divided the remnant of the Pequots among the Mohegan, Narragansett and Niantic Indians as follows: They gave eighty to Uncas, to Miantonomo they gave eighty, and to Ninigret they gave twenty, upon condition that the Pequots were no longer to be known by their tribal name, and were debarred from ever again dwelling in their old homes or occupying their old hunting and planting grounds. This treaty stipulation did not control the Pequots, for as soon as those assigned to Miantonomo reached Rhode Island, they left him and were afterward joined by those who were assigned to Ninigret, and in disobedience of the terms of the treaty with the Connecticut magistrates, they located themselves at a place called Massatuxet in Westerly, R. I., about three and one-half miles north of Watch Hill, where they built a wigwam village and planted adjoining lands with Indian maze or corn.

In order to compel these Pequot Indians to live with Miantonomo and Ninigret according to their treaty obligations of 1637, the Connecticut authorities sent Capt. John Mason and forty men to break up their settlement at Massatuxet, and drive them back to the tribal homes of the Niantics and Narragansetts, but they refused to go, whereupon Mason burned their wigwams, seized and carried off in his vessel all of their canoes, corn and wigwam furniture, but all to no purpose; the Pequots would not leave their Massatuxet home. They rebuilt their wigwams and planted the adjoining land and lived peaceably with the neighboring Indian tribes, claiming that their place of abode was on some of the old Pequot tribal lands, where they continued to reside from 1637 to 1661, when a renegade Pequot captain, Sosoa, who lived with the Narragansetts, claimed that Massatuxet and nearly all of the present town of Westerly, which he called Misquamicut, belonged to him by virtue of a gift of the Narragansett sachems for his valiant services for them in their previous wars with the Pequots, before Mason overthrew them in 1637.

The original Indian title to Massatuxet, and in fact to Misquamicut, claimed by Sosoa as his property by virtue of a gift from the Narragansett sachems, never belonged to that tribe, but was the tribal lands of the Niantic Indians, before their original territory was seized and held by the Pequots and the Nantas suffered to live on the east and west ends thereof, which is now known as Niantic, Rhode Island, and Niantic in Connecticut. These Pequots remained at Massatuxet until 1660, when they were driven from their homes where they had lived for over twenty years (long enough to have acquired a title thereto by possession in any civilized community) over Pawcatuck River into Stonington, Conn., and occupied land at Causet Point, on the north side of Pawcatuck or Little Narragansett Bay, for a few years. Subsequently they occupied land at Taugwonk and Cosatuc Hill, then in Stonington, and finally on a reservation, now in North Stonington, provided for them by the Connecticut Colony in 1686, and there the remnants of Miantonomo and Ninigret, and Pequots resided, until nearly all of them found homes elsewhere or departed this life, subject to more or less annoyance by some of the surrounding English settlers and yielding a passive obedience to their overseer, appointed by the Connecticut General Court at first, and later by the Superior Court of Connecticut. The eighty Pequots who were assigned to Uncas by said magistrates would not live with him and his tribal clan at Mohegan, now Montville, Conn. To offset his enforced obedience to Sassacus, he lorded it over them with a high hand, which caused them to leave him and pitch their wigwam tents in the present town of Groton, where they continued to live until a reservation was provided for them by the Connecticut Colony at Mashantuxet, in the present town of Ledyard, Conn., which they reluctantly consented to accept in lieu of their Noank homes, reserving the right of fishing in Mystic River, Conn.

In this reservationary home they were more or less annoyed by the surrounding English neighbors and for relief repeatedly petitioned the General Assembly of Connecticut, which resulted in very little benefit to them.
Pending the French and Indian war and the American Revolutionary struggle, a number of them enlisted and served with our Connecticut soldiers, and during their absence from home their families were provided for by the towns and General Assembly. The Pequot reservation in Ledyard and North Stonington do not at the present time contain a single wigwam house, nor a residence of any Pequot descendants. A large part of the Ledyard reservation has been sold with the timber of the rest of it, and the avails thereof have been safely invested under the care and control of their overseers. The North Stonington reservation remains intact and is leased as pasture land and the yearly income of both reservations is applied by the overseers thereof for the benefit of the sick and feeble old men and women of both of the clans of the Pequots, wherever they may reside.

AVERY FAMILY.

1. CHRISTOPHER AVERY, the emigrant ancestor and progenitor of the Avery family, was born in England about 1590. He was a weaver by trade, and came to this country and located at Gloucester, Mass., where he was selectman in 1646, 1652 and 1654. At a court in Salem he took the freeman's oath, June 29, 1692, and was chosen clerk of the band, constable, and clerk of the market. His wife did not come to this country. In 1658 he sold lands at Gloucester and removed to Boston, where on the 16th of March, 1658-9 he purchased land, a small lot, about twenty-six by forty-six feet. It was located in what is now the centre of the post-office building, facing on Devonshire street. The famous old spring, which gave the name to Spring Lane and which is now preserved under the post-office, was near. This Avery plot was a part of, or at least adjoined, the site of two notable resorts of later days—the well known restaurant whence first came the famous "Julien soup," and the "Stackpole House," not much less famous. The Winthrop estate was not far away, and near by, in after years, Benjamin Franklin was born. Christopher Avery did not long retain this property, for March 22, 1663, he sold land to Ambrose Dew, for forty pounds. There had evidently been no increase of value in the five years that he had held possession. After being owned by two or three different persons, it was bought by Mr. Stackpole about 1790. Christopher Avery now followed his son James to Connecticut, and August 8, 1665, purchased a house, orchard and lot of Robert Burrows in New London. Here he claimed exemption from watching and training, on account of age, in June, 1667, and was made freeman of the colony October, 1669. He died March 12, 1670, by Minor diary.

HAD SON:

2. Capt. James Avery, the only child of Christopher, was born in 1620. Came to America with his father, and lived at Gloucester for several years. The Rev. Mr. Blinman, who had been the minister of Gloucester for eight years, was engaged to become the minister of the Pequot Plantation. A party of his friends proposed to move with him, and came on to make preparatory arrangements, Oct. 19, 1650. It appears that James Avery went back to Gloucester, sold his possession there to his father, and in 1651 returned to New London. In March of that year the principal body of these eastern families arrived. Capt. James acquired large tracts of land at what is now Poquonoc Bridge, Groton, east of New London. About 1636 he built the hive of the Avery's at the head of Poquonoc Plain, a mile and a half from the river Thames. In 1684, the old Blinman edifice, first church of New London, the unadorned church and water-tower of the wilderness, which had stood for thirty years, was sold to Capt. Avery for six pounds, with the condition that he should remove it in one month's time. According to tradition, the church was taken down, its materials carried across the river, and added to the house he had already built at Poquonoc. In spite of this analytic and synthetic process, the ancient dwelling seemed to have retained some of its sacred character, for a century later it was occupied until July 21, 1894, when a spark from a passing locomotive ignited its well-seasoned frame, and in a short time only the ancient chimney remained to mark the spot of this historic house of Eastern Connecticut. A few years later the chimney was taken down, the grounds graded, and a tasteful monument was erected by the descendants of James Avery. He was ensign, lieutenant and captain of the New London companies and served throughout King Philip's war in command of forty Indians from Stonington, New London and Lyme. In 1676 he was captain of one of the four companies which protected the frontier, and for twenty-three years an officer of the town, and twelve times deputy to the General Court, 1656-80; also assisting judge in the Prerogative Court, and was most prominent in matters relating to the church, as references to him in such connections are numerous. He m. 1st, Nov. 10, 1643, Joanna Greenslade, b. about 1622; she d. after 1693. He m. 2nd, Mrs. Abigail (Ingraham) Chesebrough, widow of Joshua Holmes, July 4, 1698, (No. 2) Holmes family. He d. April 18, 1700. His widow was living at late as 1714.

BREWSTER FAMILY.

1. ELDER WILLIAM BREWSTER, son of William Brewster, was b. in 1560, a graduate of Cambridge College, England, afterward the confident friend of William Davison, Queen Elizabeth's ambassador to Scotland, then joining the independent church, he entertained their meetings at his house, fled with them to Amsterdam and Leyden, was appointed their elder, sailed in the Mayflower and landed on Plymouth Rock, Dec. 20, 1620. He drafted in the cabin of the Mayflower the first written constitution. He served in the early Indian wars under Capt. Myles Standish. The Plymouth Church Records say of him that with the most submissive patience he bore the novel and trying hardships to which his old age was subjected; lived abstemiously, and after having been in his youth the companion of ministers of state, the representative of his sovereign familiar with the magnificence of court, and the possessor of a fortune, sufficient not only for the comfort but for the exigencies of life, this humble Pilgrim labored steadily with his own hands in the field for daily subsistence; yet he possessed that happy electricity of mind which could accommodate himself with cheerfulness to all circumstances; destitute of meat, of fish, and bread, even with his single meal of clams would he return thanks to the Lord, that he could suck of the abundance of the seas and treasures hid in the sand. He enjoyed a healthy old age and was sick but one day, when he d. Apr. 16, 1644. He m. Mary ————, before 1592, who came to this country with him, and d. Apr. 17, 1627.

REV. CHAD BROWN FAMILY.

I. REV. CHAD BROWN, not related so far as known to the three Brown Brothers, of Lynn, Mass., came as we learn from his deposition to New England with his wife Elizabeth and their son John, in the good ship Martin, and landed in Boston, Mass., in the year 1638. He located himself and family in Salem, Mass., where he did not long reside. Entertaining religious and political sentiment in sympathy with Roger Williams, he went to reside with him in Providence, R. I. Mr. Brown soon rose to prominence in Providence Plantation, where he merited and enjoyed the confidence of his fellow townsmen to an unlimited extent, receiving some of the highest positions of honor and trust in their power to bestow upon him. Having previously studied for the ministry, he was called to the pastorate of the First Baptist Church of Providence, where he was ordained in 1642 as the first settled minister of that church, (a disputed point by some, who claim that Roger Williams was the first minister of that church). Be that as it may, it is very evident that their labors with and for the church were harmonious and their ministry may have been an ideal, dual, coadjuting pastorate.

BURCH FAMILY.

Owing to the neglect of many of the progenitors of this family to place on Church, Probate, Town or Family records a correct statement of their marriages and birth dates of their children, it makes it very difficult, if not well nigh impossible, to write and compile a full and correct genealogy of the family. The first knowledge we have of the Burch family in this country is found in Savage's Genealogical Dictionary, Vol. 1st, Page 300, thus:

1. GEORGE BURCH appears in the town of Salem, Mass., where he m. Elizabeth ——

WILLIAM CHESEBROUGH FAMILY.

WILLIAM CHESEBROUGH, the first white man who made what is now Stonington, in Connecticut, his permanent place of abode, was born in Boston, Lincolnshire, England, in the year 1594, where he m. Anna Stevenson, December 6th, 1620. He was a gunsmith, and worked at his trade in England, and in this country, until he came to Stonington in 1649, when he changed his occupation to that of farming and stock raising, occupying and improving the large grants of land given him by the town of Pequot, now New London.

In the early part of the year 1630 he joined a large party of immigrants who came with John Winthrop, Esq., to this country. Mr. Chesebrough located himself in Boston, Mass., and soon after became a member of the first church. He was admitted a freeman of the Massachusetts Colony in May, 1631, and afterwards took an active part in public affairs. In 1632, Mr. Chesebrough was elected as “one of two” from Boston to unite with two from every plantation to confer with the court about raising a public stock, and “Prince” in his “Annals” says that this seems to pave the way for a house of representation in the General Court.

In 1634, Mr. Chesebrough was elected constable of Boston, where he continued to reside for several years. Previous to 1640 he removed to Braintree, and that year was elected deputy to the Massachusetts General Court. Soon after which he removed his residence to Rehoboth, Plymouth Colony, where in 1643 his list was returned at £450. The next year lots were drawn for a division of the woodland near the town, and Mr. Chesebrough received lot No. 4. During this year the planters of Rehoboth drew up and signed a compact by which they agreed to be governed by nine persons, “according to law and equity until we shall subject ourselves jointly to some other government.” Mr. Chesebrough was a party to that transaction, which was participated in by thirty of the planters of the new settlement. He had taken an active and prominent part in organizing the town of Rehoboth, and at a public meeting held July 12, 1644, his services were recognized by the town in ordering that he “should have division in all lands of Seakunk, for one hundred and fifty three pounds, besides what he is to have for his own proportion, and that in way of consideration for the pains and charges he hath been at for setting off this plantation.” He was propounded for freeman at the General Court in Plymouth in 1645, but was not admitted till 1648. Notwithstanding the prominent part he acted in establishing the plantation of Rehoboth, and the recognition of his services by the new town, he was not treated with much favor by the General Court of that colony, which ordered him to be arrested for an affray with an Indian by the name of Vassamequine, and harshly treated him in other respects. This led him to look further for a permanent place of abode. About this time Mr. John Winthrop, Jr., acting under a commission from the Massachusetts General Court, commenced a settlement at Nameaug, afterward called Pequot, and then New London. Mr. Chesebrough visited the place in 1645 for the purpose of making it his future home. He was kindly treated by Mr. Winthrop, and urged to settle there; but finding the place in several respects unsuitable to his expectations, he concluded not to stay. Subsequently he examined the Pawcatuck region, and finally concluded to settle at the head of Wequetequock Cove. He shared the friendship of Roger Williams, and was encouraged and assisted by him in removing his habitation to Pawcatuck. He did not, however, immediately remove his family there, and not until he had provided for them a comfortable place of abode. It was during the summer of 1849 that his family came to Wequetequock and occupied their new house in the wilderness. The marsh land bordering on Wequetequock Cove furnished hay for his stock in abundance.

He brought his entire family with him, which consisted of his wife and four sons, namely, Samuel, Nathaniel, John and Elisha. The two eldest and the youngest subsequently married and had families, and after the death of each, their widows married again. John died single in 1660.

Mr. Chesebrough, like most of the early planters, traded more or less with the Indians, and was also engaged in trade with people of Long Island and elsewhere. The first act of the General Assembly of Connecticut was an order prohibiting all persons from selling firearms and ammunition to the Indians; another act was passed in 1642 "forbidding smiths from doing any work for the Indians, or selling them any instruments or matter made of iron or steel without a license from two magistrates." Various other acts were passed regulating and in some cases prohibiting trade with the Indians. Mr. Chesebrough while living at Rehoboth, had incurred the displeasure of certain parties in the Plymouth Colony, and no sooner was he located here, than they infomed the General Court of Connecticut that he had removed here for the purpose of selling firearms to the Indians; whereupon the Court, in November, 1649, issued a warrant "to the constable of Pequot to repair forthwith to Chesebrough of Long Island (where he was trading at the time), and to let him understand that the government of Connecticut doth dislike and distaste the way he is in and trade he doth drive among the Indians, and that they do require him to desist therefrom immediately; and that he should repair to Capt. Mason of Seabrook or some of the Magistrates upon the river (Connecticut) to give an account to him or them of what he hath done hitherto." Mr. Chesebrough at first disregarded this order, claiming that his new home was within the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, but subsequently, acting under the advice and assurance of Mr. Winthrop and other friends at Pequot, he so far yielded to the authorities of Connecticut as to engage to appear at the General Court at Hartford in March, 1651, some sixteen months after the issue of said order, and related to them the reason why he had taken up his abode at Wequetequock, and that he was not engaged in any unlawful trade with the Indians, and assured them that his religious opinions were orthodox, neither did he intend to remain alone in the wilderness, and was in hopes that in a short time he should be able to procure a competent company of desirable persons for the planting of the place. The court reluctantly permitted him to remain on condition that if he would give a bond of £300 not to prosecute any unlawful trade with the Indians, and that he would furnish them with the names of such persons as he could induce to settle at Pawcatuck before the next winter, they would not compel him to remove. While the planters of Pequot were friendly to Mr. Chesebrough, they preferred that he should become an inhabitant of that settlement, rather than to establish a new township. In September of the same year, Mr. Chesebrough again visited Hartford for the purpose of obtaining a legal title to the land he occupied. Mr. Winthrop and the deputies from Pequot engaged that if he would put himself on the footing of an inhabitant of Pequot he should have his lands confirmed to him by a grant of the town. To this he acceded, but the bounds of Pequot did not include his lands, whereupon "on request" the court extended the bounds of the settlement to Pawcatuck River, and the town in November following gave him a house lot at Pequot, which he never occupied. In January, 1652, a large tract of land was given him by the town of Pequot, which was afterwards liberally enlarged until it embraced between two and three thousand acres, and was included within the following boundaries, namely, beginning at the harbor of Stonington, running northerly up the same, and Lambert's Cove, and Stony Brook to the old Post Road, thence following said road easterly to Anguilla Brook; thence down said brook and Wequetequock Cove and the Sound, to the place of beginning. Mr. Chesebrough succeeded in drawing around him a sufficient number of "acceptable persons" to satisfy the General Court; and the settlement of the town was begun, went on in a flourishing condition until 1654, when the planters here desired a separation for religious, as well as civil purposes. This measure was resisted by the planters at Pequot. Meantime, Massachusetts laid claim to the settlement, and the controversy went up to the court of the Commissioners of the United Colonies, and terminated in 1658 in awarding all the territory east of Mystic River to the Massachusetts Colony, under the name of Southertown, and so remained until 1662, when it was included in the new charter, and again became a part of the colony of Connecticut. In 1665, the name of Southertown was changed to that of Mystic, and in 1666, it was again changed to Stonington. Mr. Chesebrough was a man of more than ordinary ability, and held positions of trust not only in the Massachusetts Colony, but was prominent in the settlement of the town of Rehoboth, in Plymouth Colony. After his place at Wequetequock was included in the township of Pequot, he was elected deputy thereof to the General Court at Hartford in 1653-4-5-6, and on one occasion rate-maker or assessor.

When in 1658 the Massachusetts General Court asserted jurisdiction over this town, Mr. Chesebrough with others were appointed to manage the prudential affairs thereof, and one of the Commissioners to end small causes and deal in criminal matters. He held the office of Townsman (Selectman) until Souther-town was annexed to Connecticut, and was the first man elected deputy after the reunion, 1653, '55, '57, '64, and succeeded in restoring amicable relations with the Court which had been seriously disturbed by the jurisdictional controversy. After his return he was elected first selectman of the town, and re-elected every year up to the time of his death, which took place June 9, 1667. His dwelling house stood on the west side of Wequete-quock Cove, near the head of tide water.

John Davis (No. 6) was a farmer at East Hampton, L. I., and carried on, in connection, an extensive business in manufacturing leather, and shoe making. In 1765 he hired a farm in Stonington, Conn., situated on the east bank of the Pawcatuck River, near Osbrook, which he afterwards purchased, and put his eldest son John, then only seventeen years of age, in charge of. He came to Stonington with his family in 1772 to reside, having purchased said farm from Robert Stanton. "The Old Mansion House," with its spacious fireplace in the dining room, and hand carved solid mahogany staircase, is still in good preservation; the farm having been handed down from father to son, and is now occupied by his great great-grandsons, John J. and Alphonso W. Davis. John Davis (No. 6) returned to East Hampton in April, 1784, that he might have better opportunity for educating his younger children, at Clinton Academy, which had been established about that time. He carried on the business of cordwainer and shoe making, in connection with his farming in Stonington. He m. 1st, Catharine Talmage, Dec. 31, 1744; she d. April 11, 1759. DEAN FAMILY.

1. JAMES DEAN, the first person of this family who came to Stonington to reside, was the son of Walter Dean and wife, Eleanor Cogoes Dean, of Somerset, South County, England, and the grandson of William Dean of said county, England.

Walter Dean, the father of Mr. James Dean, after he reached New England in 1638, lived for about one year in Dorchester, Mass., after which he moved with his family to Taunton, Plymouth County, Mass., where his son, James Dean, was born in 1647, and married Sarah Tisdale, daughter of John and Sarah (Walker) Tisdale, in 1693, and for a short time resided in Scituate, Mass. In 1675, James Dean came to Stonington and entered into an arrangement with the town by which it was agreed and made obligatory on both parties by a vote of the town, legally warned and held Feb. 28th, 1676, and publicly assented to by him. He was a blacksmith, and agreed to do the smith work of the inhabitants of the town in consideration of a grant of land and pledge, on the part of the most prominent persons then residing here, to assist him in money and material for building him a dwelling house and smith shop. In 1677 the town granted him another tract of land of one hundred acres. Mr. Dean continued to do the smithery of the town until 1682, when at a legal town meeting it was passed by a vote that Mr. Dean had performed all of the conditions of his agreement with the town.

Mr. James Dean erected him a dwelling house a short distance east of the Quarry Ledge at Quiambaug, with his shop nearby, and commenced business there in the latter part of the year 1676. Subsequently he received other grants of land from the town and individuals, and became a prominent man in the affairs of the town, until 1698, when, with several planters here, he went up and joined the settlement of the town of Plainfield, Conn., and was chosen town clerk there in 1699.

When Mr. James Dean had in contemplation his migration to Plainfield, he sold and turned over his smithing business to his son, James Dean, who was his oldest child.

12 JONATHAN, b. in 1694, m. at New London, Conn., Jan. 17, 1716, Sarah Douglass, and they became the parents of nine children.

Our Stonington records show that Mr. James Dean, Sr., conveyed by deed to his son, James Dean, Jr., two of his land grants in Stonington, Conn., and James Dean, Jr., remained in Stonington and built the old Dean House in the year 1700, which was destroyed by fire in 1848. Mr. James Dean, Jr., did not confine himself to the smithing business, but learned the business or trade of fulling and dressing woolen cloth, and for that purpose erected a dam and fulling mill on the Mistuxet brook, about one-half of the distance from the old Post road down to the dam of the Dean mill pond. There he continued his business until his son, John Dean, reached manhood, when he and his father built a new dam and erected another fulling mill near his dwelling house, where the dam now crosses the Mistuxet brook. Afterward they devoted their time and attention to cloth dressing until 1807, when the fulling mill was enlarged into what was known as a factory building, with a grist mill, with new and improved machinery, for cloth dressing, wool carding and for the manufacturing of cotton and woolen goods. The new deal was consummated mainly by James Dean, the son of John Dean, with whom he had been in business from his early manhood. Mr. James Dean continued in business until 1830, when he retired.

7 GEORGE, bapt. at Stortford March 17, 1582.

William Denison (No. 3) m. Margaret (Chandler) Monck at Stortford, Eng., Nov. 7, 1603. He was very well seated in Stortford or Stratford, but hearing of the then famous transplantation to New England, unsettled himself and recalling his son Daniel from Cambridge, removed himself and family in the year 1631 to New England, and brought over with him his son Daniel, then aged about 19 years, and two younger brothers, Edward and George, leaving his oldest son, John, who had also been bred at Cambridge and was then a minister, married, with a good portion, and who lived about Pelham or in Hartford shier, not far from Stratford, where they were all born. He was Vicar of Standon, County Herts, 1660 to 1670. William Denison brought with him into New England a very good estate and settled himself at Roxbury, Mass., and there lived till Jan. 25, 1653, when he died, having buried his wife about 8 years before, viz., 1645.

38 HANNAH, b. May 20, 1643, m. Nathaniel Chesebrough, 1659 (No. 9), that family. She m. 2d, Joseph Saxton July 15, 1680.
This Capt. George Denison having buried his wife in the year 1643, went back to England the same year, where, as we learn from a letter of his brother, Maj. Gen. Daniel Denison, published in the April number of the New England Historical and Genealogical Register of 1892, in which he says: “My brother George was a soldier there above a year, was at the battle of York, or Marston Moor, where he did good service, and was afterwards taken prisoner, but got free and married a second wife, Miss Ann Borodell, and with her returned to New England in the year 1645, and took up his abode again in Roxbury, Mass., where he continued to live until 1651, when he came with his family to Connecticut and located himself at New London, Conn., where he resided until 1654, when he came to Stonington with his family to live, and remained there until his death, which took place at Hartford, Conn., Oct. 24, 1694.” We learn from the records of Massachusetts and Connecticut that Capt. George Denison was not only distinguished as a civilian, but became the most distinguished soldier of Connecticut in her early settlement, except Maj. John Mason. His military services are on record in our Colonial archives where his eminence is recognized and portrayed. Also, you will find his name in the History of New London and Stonington, where his services are acknowledged and described in full. There is no date of the marriage of Capt. George Denison and Ann Borodell, but he was doubtless married in England. Pending their courtship an agreement was made between them, which was afterwards ratified and confirmed at Hartford, Conn., May 3, 1662, as follows: “This witteseth that I, George Denison, of Souther town, in Connecticut jurisdiction in New England, for and in consideration of a jointure due unto my now wife, Ann Borodell Denison, upon marriage and upon my former engagement, in consideration of the sum of three hundred pounds by me received of Mr. John Borodell, which he freely gave to my wife, his sister, Ann Borodell Denison, and I have had the use and improvement of and for, and in consideration of conjugal and dearer affection moving me, thereunto.” This jointure agreement may be seen on the First Book of Connecticut State Records, in Hartford, Conn., page 274. This recorded instrument is proof positive of the marriage of Capt. George Denison and wife, Ann Borodell, to say nothing of the births of their children and his will in his own handwriting bequeathing to them his entire property.

NOTE.—Capt. George Denison (No. 14) was captain of New London County forces in King Philip's war, with Capt. John Mason, Jr., under Maj. Robert Treat, in the great swamp fight Dec. 19, 1675. Also served the next year in command of the forces raised by him as Provo-Marshal, who pursued the remnant of the Narragansett and Wampanaug Indians, and succeeded in defeating them and capturing the Indian Chief Canonchet, who was brought to Stonington, and on his refusal to make peace with the English, was shot. He assisted as magistrate to enable the Pequot chiefs designated by the English to control the remnants of the Pequots. He was assistant and deputy from Stonington to the General Court for fifteen sessions.

The Town of New London granted Capt. George Denison 200 acres of land in the Pequot-se-pos valley at Mystic in 1652, upon which he subsequently built him a dwelling house (May 3, 1663, it was raised), wherein he and his family made their permanent, final home, known as the Oliver Denison house, and which stood a few feet west of the present residence of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Ford (1899). He d. Oct. 24, 1694, and his widow d. Sept. 26, 1712, aged 97, by the gravestone, which may be found in the Elm Grove Cemetery at Mystic.

NOTE.—One of the ancestors of Admiral George Dewey was a Stonington man, viz., Capt. His wife afterwards said he used to pray five times a day; he was a dutiful child, a loving husband and father, a loving friend, a good man in all his ways and he departed most Christian-like and comfortable, to the unspeakable grief and loss of all his friends.” On the beginning of April, 1672, Mrs. Martha (Symonds) Denison m. for her second husband, Mr. Richard Martyn, and went to live at Portsmouth taking with them two children, Daniel and Martha, and leaving the son John with his grandparents.

Rev. Nathaniel Eells (No. 14) was the third ordained minister of Stonington, a graduate of Harvard College in 1728. After he was ordained in 1733, he pursued his labors with unremitting zeal and success. He lived on Hinckley Hill, and preached in the Center meeting house until 1762, when Mr. Rossiter d. in 1762. Then, upon the request of the east and west parishes in Stonington, he preached at the Centre and Agreement Hill or Road meeting house for a year or two, after which he preached at the Road in the morning, and in the old Academy at Stonington Point, in the afternoon, until the Centre meeting house was taken down, and re-erected in the village of Stonington. When the war of the Revolution broke out, and the news of the battle of Lexington set the patriotism of the country on fire, Putnam left his plough and Mr. Eells his pulpit, and rushed to Boston to defend with their lives if need be, the liberties of their country. Mr. Eells was a great favorite, especially among the young people, and an able devoted preacher of the Gospel. FANNING FAMILY.

1. EDMUND FANNING, the emigrant ancestor of the Fanning family of this region round about, d. in Stonington, Conn., in Dec., 1683. He left a widow, Mrs. Ellen Fanning, five sons and one daughter.

He was doubtless of Irish origin, but his native place cannot be defined, for there are two storied traditions relative to it, which are so variant in their conditions and locality, that it is impossible to determine his nativity. One tradition speaks of him as escaping from Dublin in Ireland, in 1641, at the time of the great rebellion in which 100,000 Protestants fell victims to the fury of the Roman Catholics, which tradition followed him in his travels over the ocean and to America, where after a few years he located himself in that part of New London, now Groton, in 1652. Later on he removed to Stonington, Conn., where he lived the remainder of his life. The other tradition would make him a descendant of Dominicus Fanning, who was mayor of a city in Ireland under Charles the First, and was taken prisoner at the battle of Drogheda in 1649. All of the garrison except himself was put to the sword. He was beheaded by Cromwell, and his head was stuck on a pole at the principal gate of the city. His property was confiscated, because when Charles the First made a proclamation of peace, he was a member of the Irish Council. He advised not to accept, unless the British Government would secure to the Irish their religion, their property and their lives. His son Edmund, was born in Kilkenny, Ireland, and m. Catharine, daughter of Hugh Hayn, Earl of Connaught, and emigrated to this country with two sons, Thomas and William, and settled in Stonington, Conn. This tradition is taken from an old tombstone at Riverside, Long Island, and is claimed by many as the ancestral connecting line of Edmund Fanning, who d. in Dec., 1683, neither of which storied traditions are to be relied upon as correct, for they are so variant in their descriptions of his ancestry, marriages and names of his wives that places them beyond an intelligent belief.

Capt. Nathaniel Fanning (No. 10) was a midshipman commanding the maintop of the ship called Good Man Richard, under Capt. John Paul Jones, in her famous fight with the English ship Serapis. He so distinguished himself in that action as to draw from Capt. Jones the following certificate: "I do hereby certify that Nathaniel Fanning of Stonington, State of Connecticut, has sailed with me in the station of midshipman eighteen months, while I commanded the Good Man Richard, until she was lost in the action with the Serapis, and in the "Alliance" and Ariel frigates. His bravery on board the first mentioned in the action with the Serapis, a King’s ship of fifty guns, off Flamborough Head, while he had command of the maintop, will, I hope, recommend him to the notice of Congress in the line of promotion with his other merits. "JOHN PAUL JONES.”

Dec. 17th, 1780.

He was promoted to a lieutenantcy in the United States Navy, and d. of the yellow fever while in command of the United States Naval Station at Charleston, South Carolina, Sept. 30, 1805.

FISH FAMILY.

1. It has not yet been ascertained when Mr. John Fish, whose mature life and declining years were spent in Groton and Stonington, came to this country, or of what nationality he was. Miss Caulkins, in her History of New London, speaks of a John Fish of Lynn, Mass., as early as 1637, but the history of Lynn does not mention his name. Miss Caulkins gives no further account of him until 1655, when he appeared with his wife and children, John, Jonathan and Samuel Fish. She gives no account of Mr. Fish between 1637 and 1655, when she locates him and his family in New London, prior to 1655. A Mr. John Fish was living in the town of Stratford, Conn. How long he made that town his abiding place does not appear, nor when he was married to Miss Eland, whose ancestral home was Yorkshire, Eng. He sold out his home lot and about six acres of land in Stratford to John Willcockson, Sept. 29, 1655, the same year that Miss Caulkins locates him and family in New London. She was doubtless mistaken in saying that his son Samuel Fish was one of his family when he came to New London to live, for the epitaph on his gravestone shows that he was not born until 1656. How long Mr. Fish lived in New London is not certainly known, but his residence there was of short duration, for the Stonington records show that he had lived here long enough in 1668 to become an inhabitant of Stonington, which requires a two years' residence to obtain. The following biographical sketch of Mr. John Fish, written by Mr. John D. Fish, one of his descendants, was carefully prepared by him, and is doubtless correct:

"In 1654, and probably for several years previously, John Fish lived in the town of Stratford, Conn. He was a young man and impulsive. The family name of his wife was probably Eland, as Sarah Eland, his sister-in-law, was a young woman and a member of his household. The Elands were an ancient and knightly family of Yorkshire, Eng. John Fish’s house lot of about six acres, where he lived, was at the northerly end of the present village of Stratford, and bounded on the west by Main street, on the north and east by Ferry road and on the south by land of Daniel Titterson. The location of his house lot is shown on a map drawn by Rev. Benjamin L. Swan, and printed in the 'Hawley Record' at page 432, where it is marked as belonging to John Willcockson, the person to whom it was sold by Mr. Fish. In the autumn of 1654, a controversy commenced between John Fish and some young men in the town, growing out of unwarranted accusations which he made against them. This trouble was carried into the courts and very probably was the cause of his selling all his property in Stratford a year later, to John Willcockson, and leaving town. The town records contain four different entries of separate parcels of land so sold. The date of the deeds of sale was Sept. 29, 1655, but the records were not made until 1662-1671. Miss Caulkins in her History of New London says that John Fish appeared there early in 1655 with wife and children, whose names she gives as John, Jonathan and Samuel. There are no records of the birth of these children in Stratford. I judge that Samuel was the second of John Fish's children who reached maturity, and as he d. Feb. 27, 1733, in the 77th year of his age, he appears to have been born soon after his father came to New London. The records of the Congregational Church of Stonington, under date of March 13, 1680, show the baptisms of Samuel, son of John Fish; Mary, daughter of John Fish, and John, son of John Fish. These were all adult persons at that time. Of John Fish's children, I have further records of only Samuel and John, Junior. At what date John became a resident of the town of Stonington, I cannot say, but in 1668, when a census was ordered by the colonial authorities to be taken of the inhabitants or heads of families in Stonington, John Fish was one of forty-three persons enumerated. A home lot was laid out to each of these inhabitants, upon condition that it should be built upon within six months and inhabited. A twelve-acre home lot was granted to John Fish, being allotment No. 5, and was retained by him through life. His son, Samuel Fish, under date of Dec. 26, 1710, conveyed this lot to James Dean, who afterwards, on Nov. 8, 1711, conveyed it to Ebenezer Searles, as is shown by the Stonington land records. The first wife of John Fish was doubtless the mother of all his children named above. Aug. 6, 1674, John Fish was acting town clerk at a town meeting held in Stonington. See town records.”

In 1675 was the Narragansett war, or expedition against the Indians under King Philip. The colony of Connecticut contributed about three hundred volunteers to this expedition from her white settlers, besides a large number of friendly Pequot Indians. Both John Fish and his son Samuel were among these volunteers, and about 1700, when the colony set apart the town of Voluntown to be allotted to the Indian war volunteers, there were grants made for each of them. As John Fish had then been dead several years his grant came into the possession of his son Samuel, who in his will, dated Aug. 7, 1730, bequeathed his own grant to his son Samuel, and divided his father's grant between his sons Moses and Aaron. Two of Samuel's grandsons settled on these lands in Voluntown, and their descendants are still owners thereof. Aug. 22, 1679, the same day Mr. John Fish was chosen and unanimously voted schoolmaster for the town of Stonington, to instruct children in reading, writing, arithmetic and grammar, such as shall be inclined. December 5, 1680, Mr. John Fish was admitted a member of the Congregational Church of Stonington, Aug. 25, 1681, Mr. John Fish and widow Hannah (Palmer) (No. 7) Hewitt Sterry were married. She was a daughter of Walter and Rebecca (Short) Palmer, and was married April 26, 1659, to Capt. Thomas Hewitt, who was a seafaring man. He sailed upon one of his voyages and was never heard of again. In 1670, Mrs. Hewitt petitioned the General Court for permission to marry again, which was granted, and on Dec. 27, 1671, she was married to Roger Sterry. Mr. Sterry died before 1680, and on Aug. 25, 1681, she became the third wife of John Fish. Mr. Fish seems not to have any children who survived except by the first wife. He was a land surveyor, and laid out some of the public grants as the Stonington records bear witness. His brother-in-law, Gershom Palmer, was associated with him in such work in 1680 and 1681. By grant and by purchase he himself became proprietor of considerable tracts of land in Groton and Stonington and other towns near by.

2. John Fish (No. 2), eldest son of John Fish, Sr., m. Margaret, family name and birth unknown. He was bapt. as an adult in the First Congregational Church of Stonington, April 18, 1680, but did not unite with the church until April 18, 1695, when his wife Margaret, joined the church, and their children bapt. John Fish probably died not very long after this. His widow, Margaret Fish, m. Samuel Cleveland of Canterbury, Conn., and had two more children, Abigail and Timothy. From the fact that John Fish's widow went to Canterbury so soon after his death and m. again, it is thought that she may have come from that neighborhood, or have had relatives there.

GALLUP FAMILY.

The name is said to be derived from the German words "Gott" and Lobe"—God and Praise, as Godfrey comes from "Gott" and "Frende"—God and Peace. In the old English records the name is spelled in different ways, as Gollop, Gollopp, Golloppe, Golop. The present English family still retain Gollop. In the Boston records, we find almost as great a variety of spelling as the ancient England records, Gallup preponderating, however, by the large majority in this country.

1. JOHN GALLUP, the ancestor of most of the families of that name in this country, came to America from the Parish of Mosterne, County Dorset, England, in the year 1630. He was the son of John Gollop, who m. Crabbe, who was the son of Thomas and Agnes (Watkins) Gollop, of North Bowood and Strode, and whose descendants still own and occupy the manors of Strode. He m. Christobel ———, whose full name does not appear. He sailed from England March 20, 1630, in the ship Mary and John, arriving at Nantasket (the name was changed to Hull in 1646), May 30, 1630. He first went to Dorchester, but soon after he was a resident of Boston. The family being again united, they became members of the first church, the old South, in Boston. He became a landholder, owning land in the town, and an island of sixteen acres in Boston Bay, which still bears his name. He owned Mix's Mate or Monumental Island, as sometimes called, where he pastured sheep. He was a skillful mariner, well acquainted with the harbor around Boston. He achieved great distinction by piloting in the ship Griffin, a ship of three hundred tons, in Sept., 1633, through a new found channel, when she had on board the Rev. John Cotton, Rev. Thomas Hooker, Rev. Mr. Stone and other fathers of New England, among her two hundred passengers. Perhaps the most notable and interesting episode, if it may be so called, in the life of the sturdy captain, was his successful encounter with a boat load of Indians, whom he captured and destroyed off Block Island. They had murdered John Oldham, a man of ability, and they were having a hilarious time in his boat when they were overtaken by Capt. Gallup, and after a brief encounter, were captured. This has been called the first naval battle on the Atlantic coast. He was accompanied by his two sons and a hired man. This battle gave the captain a colonial, and later a national reputation, and more than anything else made him famous. This incident and what is revealed of the purpose of the Indians was the beginning of the great Pequot war.

Mr. and Mrs. Gallup both died at Boston, he in 1649, as an inventory of his estate was made Dec. 26, 1649. She died July 27, 1655. An inventory of her estate was made Oct. 31, 1655. Their wills are the earliest on record. (See Appendix.)

CHILDREN:

2 JOHN, b. in England about 1615, m. Hannah Lake in 1634.
3 SAMUEL, b. in England; came to this country in 1633, m. Mary Phillips.
4 NATHANIEL, b. in England; came to this country in 1633, m. Margaret Eveley.
5 JOAN, b. in England; came to this country in 1633, m. Thomas Joy in 1627.

John Gallup (No. 2) came to this country with his mother, two brothers and sister Joan, in the ship Griffin, arriving at Boston on the 4th day of Sept., 1633. He married Hannah Lake, daughter of John and Margaret Lake, and sister of Elizabeth Read, who married John Winthrop, Jr., Governor of Connecticut. She also came to this country with her mother, in the ship Abigail, arriving Oct. 6, 1635, after a passage of ten weeks.

He left Boston in 1640, and went to Taunton, then a part of Plymouth Colony, where he remained until 1651, when he removed with his family to New London, where he lived until 1654, when he came to what is now Stonington, then a part of New London, and settled upon a grant of land given him by that town in 1653, in recognition of the distinguished services of himself, and father in the Pequot war.

His dwelling house where he resided, was situated near where there is now (1899) an old well, in an orchard, on the farm recently owned by the Messrs. Greenman brothers, under the improvement and management of Dea. Warren Lewis. Capt. John Gallup's land grant was bounded on the west by Mystic River, on the south by Capt. John Stanton's homestead place and Capt. George Denison's land, on the east by said Denison's land and the so-called town lots, and on the north by Thomas Park's land, which he purchased of the Rev. Richard Blinman. He represented the town at the General Court in 1665, 1667. He was also an In-
GALLUP FAMILY.

When King Philip's war broke out, although he was over sixty, age had not quenched his martial ardor, New London County having raised seventy men under Capt. John Mason of Norwich, and Capt. George Denison of Stonington, Capt. Gallup joined with them at the head of the Mohegans. These troops forming a junction with those of the other colonies, were engaged in the fearful swamp fight at Narragansett, Dec. 19, 1676, within the limits of the present town of South Kingston, R. I. In storming the fort he led his men bravely forward, and was one of the six captains who fell in this memorable fight, and was buried with his fallen comrades in one grave, near the battle ground. A complete victory was gained over the savage foe, but with great loss of life on both sides. The General Court afterwards made several grants of land to his widow and children, in consideration of the great loss they had sustained by his death and for his public services.

Capt. John Gallup (No. 25) m. Elizabeth Wheeler of Stonington in 1709 (No. 13), Wheeler family. He removed to Voluntown about 1710, and was one of the early settlers of that town, taking up a large tract of land there. At the first town meeting held in the town June 20, 1721, he was chosen one of the selectmen, was active in securing religious privileges for the early settlers, giving three acres of land as a site for a meeting house and burial ground, and one of a committee to build a house of worship, and was chosen one of the ruling elders of the first church formed in the town, 1723, which was Presbyterian. He d. Dec. 29, 1755; his wife d. April 14, 1735. From his will it appears he m. again, but no record of it has been found.

54 DOROTHY, b. March 22, 1721, m. John Read in 1744.
55 JOHN, b. June 9, 1724.

Thomas Gallup (No. 26) was bapt. at Stonington, Conn., April 30, 1682 (Voluntown Town Records). "Thomas Gallup and Hannah French were lawfully joined in marriage the 4th day of Jan., 1721-22, by Capt. Thomas Williams, justice of the peace.” He probably came to Voluntown with his brother John, or soon after, and was a large land owner there. His name is appended to a call to the first minister of Voluntown, Rev. Samuel Dorrance, April 17, 1723. He also gave liberally for his support. He left no children.

Reliable, available evidence establishes the fact that there were two Thomas Gallups, born in Stonington, within a few years of each other. Thomas Gallup, the son of John Gallup and wife, Elizabeth Harris, was probably b. in 1681. The other Thomas Gallup was undoubtedly the son of Benadam Gallup and wife, Hester Prentiss, and was probably born between the birth date of their children, viz.: Marcy Gallup, b. Aug., 1687, and Benadam Gallup, Jr., b. April 18, 1693. For reasons not now fully understood the birth dates of their children, Marcy and Thomas, does not appear among their other children on our Stonington town records.

Thomas Gallup, the son of Benadam and Hester (Prentiss) Gallup, was reared to manhood in Stonington, and went with two of his cousins up to what is now Windham County, where they purchased and received large tracts of lands, the proposed boundaries of which overlapped the premises of the adjoining proprietors’ lands, resulting in a controversy, which ended in reducing the area of the land purchased and received to such an extent before the deeds thereof were obtained, that the said Thomas Gallup, son of Benadam, retired from the land speculation and went to Gloucester, Mass., where he was engaged to build a breakwater for parties there. The location and construction of which were so ill advised that the breakwater received the name of Gallup’s Folly, which it still retains, and so appears on the map of Babson’s history of that town. After the completion of the breakwater, Thomas Gallup left Gloucester and went to Ipswich, Mass., where he had relatives, but did not remain there long, and went from Ipswich to Boxford, where he m. Love Curtis, widow of Zachariah Curtis, in 1719.

Latham was second in command at the massacre of Fort Griswold, and was severely wounded, but recovered. He d. Jan. 27, 1792, his wife d. March 5, 1799. Lucy Latham, afterwards Mrs. Gallup, was 12 years old at the time of the battle, and often related to her children the story of that memorable day. When the British appeared at Eastern Point, Lambo, the colored servant, gathered the family and drove them to the Avery house, two miles away, then hurried back to the fort with his gun. He fought at the side of his master, Capt. Latham, and fell. His own name is on the monument at Groton, as “Sambo,” but it should be Lambo, as his name was Lambert. Samuel Gallup, father of Nathaniel, removed with his family to Albany County, New York, soon after the war of the Revolution. Nathaniel returned to Groton and was m. there. NOTE.—The Greenman family has been prominently identified with shipbuilding in Mystic. In 1827 George and Silas Greenman 3d, having learned shipbuilding from their father, went into partnership at Old Mystic (the head of the river), and remained there till 1835, when Silas removed to Westerly, R. I., and carried on the business there. His brother George carried on the shipbuilding alone for one year, when he took his two younger brothers, Clark and Thomas S., into partnership with him. In 1838, being solicited to build larger vessels than their yards would accommodate, they bought and removed their plant to Adams Point, near Mystic, and established the first shipyard in that place, and the list of vessels which they built is found under “Shipping” in this book. In 1849 the Greenman brothers organized the Greenmanville Manufacturing Co., which they established at Adams Point, giving the name of Greenmanville to the village, which had grown up there by their enterprising business capacity. They erected a large mill for the manufacture of fine woolen goods, which was successfully operated and subsequently enlarged to its present size, and in 1863 they established a store there to supply their many employees and others. The Greenman brothers believed that in “union there is strength,” and the perfect confidence between them and their strong opinions of right and justice have made them worthy of notice among their fellow men.

HALLAM FAMILY.

1. MR. JOHN HALLAM, who was born in Barbadoes, West Indies, in the year 1662, came with his mother and younger brother, Nicholas Hallam, and his stepfather, Mr. John Liveen, of New London, Conn., in the year 1676, where he continued to reside, until he came to Stonington, soon after 1680, when and where he became acquainted with the family of Mr. Amos Richardson, one of the most prominent families in the town, whose daughter, Miss Prudence Richardson, he m. March 15, 1683. Mr. Hallam at once engaged in the mercantile business, which was the employment of his stepfather, in the West Indies, and at New London, after they had taken up their residence there. Mr. Hallam enlarged his business here and opened commercial relations with merchants at Barbadoes, which he very successfully prosecuted for several years. His mother, Mrs. Alice Hallam, when she m. John Liveen had an estate of about one thousand dollars, which she placed in her husband's hands, with the assurance from him that he would give the same, with its accumulations, to her two sons, the said John and Nicholas, after his death, which assurance he did not fulfill, but gave the same to the ministry of New London. This disposition of the property by Mr. Liveen was so at variance with his repeated promises, made to their mother before her marriage to him, and to her sons afterward, that they would receive their mother's property after his death, that they refused to abide by his will and appealed therefrom, which appeal after an extended controversy both here and in England, was disallowed, and the validity of Mr. Liveen's will was contested and finally confirmed by all the Courts having jurisdiction of the same.

Mr. Hallam, in prosecuting his commercial relations with Barbadoes and the West Indies, acted as super-cargo of the vessels conveying his goods to these islands, and in person superintended the sale thereof, and exchange of the same for goods of the islands, which he brought home and sold to the merchants in this region round about. During the year 1700 Mr. Hallam purchased and fitted out one of his vessels with the products of neighboring farms and went with the same to the West Indies as super-cargo. Somewhere on his return he caught the smallpox, with which he d. Nov. 20, 1700. Mr. Hallam, after his marriage with Miss Prudence Richardson, purchased a large and valuable tract of land of her brother, the Rev. John Richardson, whose father, Mr. Amos Richardson, had given him as a wedding present, on his marriage. The land embraced in said purchase, included the land lying between Stonington Harbor, Lambert's Cove and Stony Brook on the east, Fisher's Island Sound on the south and Quiambaug Cove on the west up to a point, from which a direct line easterly passing about thirty rods south of the residence of Mr. Henry M. Palmer to Stony Brook, constituted the north boundary line of said tract of land.

The protracted lawsuit, concerning Mr. Liveen's will, was not concluded until after Mr. Hallam's death. His brother Mr. Nicholas Hallam continued the litigation to its close, incurring a large amount of additional expense, which he charged to his brother's estate, which claim was considered exorbitant, and payment thereof refused. He then instituted legal proceedings which resulted in a recovery by him of a moiety of the entire expense of the litigation, concerning said will, which was so heavy that it required the sale of a large part of said purchase to liquidate the same, as related before. Mr. John Hallam (No. 1) m. Prudence Richardson, daughter of Amos Richardson, March 15, 1683.

HART FAMILY.

1. REV. IRA HART, who was installed pastor of the First Congregational Church of Stonington Dec. 6, 1809, was b. at Farmington, Conn., Sept. 18, 1771, and graduated at Yale College in 1797.

He was lineal descendant of Dea. Stephen Hart of Braintree, Essex County, England, who was b. in 1605, emigrated to this country and d. at Farmington, Conn., in March, 1682. His son Capt. Thomas Hart in 1644, m. Ruth Hawkins of Windsor, Conn., and d. at Farmington, Conn., Aug. 27, 1726. Their son, Lieut. Hawkins Hart, b. at Farmington, Conn., in 1667, m. Sarah Royce of Wallingford, Conn., Sept. 7, 1701. Their son, Thomas Hart, b. at Farmington, Conn., Sept. 29, 1714, m. Hannah Coe March 23, 1743. Their son, Jonathan Hart, b. at Farmington March 22, 1746, m. Mary Coe, date not recorded. They became the parents of eight children. After the death of his first wife, he m. Lucie Clark, and became the parents of seven children. His son, Rev. Ira Hart, who was settled at Stonington in 1809, was the oldest child of his father's family, m. Maria Sherman at New Haven Dec. 3, 1798, and they became the parents of five children.

CHILDREN:

2. DAVID SHERMAN, M. D., b. at Middlebury, Conn., Sept. 26, 1799; lived and d. unmarried in Stonington, Conn.

3. CHARLES THEODORE, b. June 14, 1801, at New Haven, Conn.; lived and d. at Stonington unmarried.

4. HARRIET ELIZA, b. at Middlebury, Conn., March 12, 1803, m. Benjamin F. Palmer (No. 349), that family.

5. LOUISE MARIA, b. at Middlebury, April 11, 1805.

6. HENRY AUSTIN, b. at Middlebury Sept. 25, 1809.

The wife of the Rev. Ira Hart was a lineal descendant of Capt. John Sherman of Dedham, Essex County, England, b. in 1613, d. at Watertown, Mass., Jan. 25, 1691. He m. Martha Porter and became an inhabitant of Watertown, Mass., in 1634, where he became a prominent and useful citizen. His son, Joseph Sherman, b. at Watertown, Mass., May 14, 1650, m. Nov. 18, 1673, Elizabeth Winship of Cambridge, Mass., b. April 16, 1652. He became a prominent man, and held the responsible offices of that
HART FAMILY.

The Hon. Roger Sherman, son by his second wife, b. at Newtown, Mass., April 19, 1721. He resided at New Milford and New Haven, Conn., and d. at the latter place July 23, 1793. During his career he became one of the most prominent and eminent men of the United States. His name appears on the most important papers that made this country the land of freedom. The Articles of Federation and Declaration of Independence contained his signature, attached by him to those undying and immortal State papers. For his first wife he m. Elizabeth, oldest daughter of Dea. Joseph Hartwell Nov. 17, 1749. His 2d wife was Rebekah Prescott, whom he m. May 12, 1763. John Sherman, son of Roger and Elizabeth (Hartwell) Sherman, b. at New Milford, Conn., July 8, 1750, d. at Canton, Mass., Aug. 8, 1802. He m. 1st, Rebecca Austin at East Haven, Conn., Dec. 16, 1753. After her death he m. 2d Annie Tucker of Milton, Mass., in 1793. Mrs. Maria Sherman, daughter of John Sherman, and first wife, b. at New Haven, Conn., Sept. 30, 1774, d. at Stonington, Conn., Sept. 21, 1857. During the pastorate of Mr. Hart he devoted himself to his profession with earnest and untiring labors, not only for his church and society, but in a wider field of usefulness. He became prominent, particularly so in the organization of the Congregational Churches of New London County, which was formed at Preston, Conn., by pastor and delegate of the churches May 31, 1815. Mr. Hart represented this church as its pastor, with Mr. William Woodbridge as its delegate. After the organization of the consociation, Mr. Hart, acting in union with other prominent clergymen of the county, exerted a powerful influence in renovating their sister churches, which had felt the all-prevailing declensions that followed the "New Light" revival of the previous century. Mr. Hart held the position of chaplain of Col. Randall's regiment at the battle of Stonington in Aug., 1814. He also held educational positions, and succeeded in promoting our common school system.
HEWITT FAMILY.

So far as is known from reliable sources, Thomas Hewitt, who was a seafaring man, was the first person of the Hewitt name that made Stonington his abiding place. The first we know of him is from the diary of Thomas Miner, Sr., who speaks of him as in command of his vessel in Mystic River in the year 1656, where he was receiving the surplus products of the early planters here, in exchange for Boston goods. In his business transactions he made the acquaintance of Walter Palmer, whose daughter, Hannah Palmer, he m. April 26, 1659. In order to make Stonington his abode for life he purchased a tract of land on the east side of Mystic River, which embraced the present site of the Elm Grove Cemetery in Stonington, Conn., on which he erected a dwelling house of primitive dimensions, pending which he continued his coasting trade, extending his business to the West Indies. During the year 1662 he purchased a cargo of neat stock, sheep and poultry, designed for the West Indies market, with which he set sail for that place, expecting a pleasant voyage and successful exchange of his cargo for goods in merchandise suitable for the inhabitants of this region round about. Months and years passed, and no glad tidings came of his safe arrival in the West Indies, nor any trace of him anywhere, which forced the conclusion upon his wife and friends, that amid some fearful storm, his vessel had foundered and all on board had found a grave in the cold, dark, heaving sea.

Thomas Hewitt (No. 1) was lost at sea in 1662.

Pending the session of the General Court of Connecticut in 1670, a hearing was had for the consideration of a petition of Mrs. Hannah Hewitt, the widow of Thomas Hewitt, for liberty to marry again, setting forth that she had not heard from her late husband for the space of eight years, and better, and her neighbors also testifying that the said Hewitt had so long been absent and that they had not heard of him, or the vessel or company he went with since their departure. "The court having considered the premises, declare that the said Hannah Hewitt is at liberty to marry again if she see cause." So on the 27th day of Dec., 1671, she was united in marriage with Roger Sterry. He d. before 1680; she m. 3d, John Fish Aug. 25, 1681, she being his 3d wife.

HOLMES FAMILY.

1. ROBERT HOLMES, the progenitor of the Stonington Holmes family, came to this town before the town was named Stonington, and purchased large tracts of land, and made this his permanent place of abode. He was registered here as an inhabitant Dec. 25, 1670, which implied previous residence, besides being a land holder and taxpayer. He served in the Colonial Indian wars. Where he resided is not certainly known, nor who he m., nor her family name and m. date. He had one child, whose name was:

2. Joshua Holmes, whose birth date does not appear in town or church records. He was doubtless b. before his father settled in Stonington. He did not long remain here after his m. with the widow Abigail (Ingraham) Chesebrough, widow of Samuel Chesebrough (No. 6), that family, June 5, 1675. He purchased land in Westerly, R. I., upon which he built him a dwelling house, which he occupied during his life, and by his will gave it, with all his land, to his widow, children and son-in-law. He served in King Phillip's war. After his death his widow m. Capt. James Avery, for his second wife, and her third husband (No. 2), Avery family.

Joshua Holmes (No. 4) lived with his father's family in Westerly. During his youth and young manhood, and before he reached his majority, he became acquainted with Miss Fear Sturges of Yarmouth, Cape Cod, Mass., whose house he often visited with increasing pleasure, until they were m. Nov. 21, 1698. Miss Sturges was the daughter of Edward Sturges, who came to this country from England to Charlestown, Mass., in 1634, and settled in Yarmouth. He was the son of Phillip Sturges of Hamington County, Northampton, and a descendant of Roger Sturges of Clifton County, Northampton, England, who was a resident there in 1530. He bought and received large tracts of land in Stonington, now North Stonington, which is intersected by the highway from Pawcatuck Bridge to Voluntown, at, above and below the junction of the highway leading therefrom to the Wyassup Reservoir, upon which he built him a dwelling house, which he occupied during life.

KELLOGG FAMILY.

The Kellogg family originated in Scotland, in the British Empire, and came to New England not long after 1630. The earliest resident of the family in Connecticut was Nathaniel Kellogg, who appears in Hartford, Conn., in 1639, and afterwards removed to Farmington, Conn., where Lieut. Joseph Kellogg lived, who joined the church there Oct. 9, 1653.

There was also a Samuel Kellogg, supposed to have been a brother of Joseph Kellogg, and also a Daniel Kellogg of Norwalk, Conn., in 1655, but the exact relationship of these various branches is not known.

The first that is known of the family of Kelloggs who made Stonington their permanent place of abode is:

1. DAVID KELLOGG, of whose birth we have no record. (Tradition says that he m. Eunice Brown.) His home was on the west bank of the Mystic River, at a place called "The Narrows." He died at the siege of Boston, in 1776, and was buried at Dorchester Heights. He left a wife and two children:

MALLORY FAMILY.

There is perhaps no one family more worthy of notice than that of Charles Mallory, son of David and Amy (Crocker) Mallory, born in Waterford, Conn., Feb. 24, 1796. His father was a native of Milford, Conn. When but 16, David Mallory was in the Continental army and served three years under Washington, being in several engagements. Afterwards he shipped from New London as sailor on a privateer. He was a prisoner three times on prison ships, and each time exchanged. He m. when about 20 years old, Amy Crocker, and had ten children: Frances Mallory, Sally, who m. Nathan Beebe; Rebecca, who m. a Mr. West, and went out West; David, and Amy, who m. John Rogers; Richard, Amos, Charles, Benajah and Nathan, who d. young. Mr. David Mallory d. at the age of 79, and his wife lived to be 93, and she was cared for by her son, Charles, who inherited a strong constitution and persistency of purpose, which enabled him to rise to a true type of a successful Christian man. When but 14 years old he was indentured to his brother-in-law, Nathan Beebe, for seven years, to learn the sailmaking trade. He remained there till the expiration of his time, and at 18 he was foreman of the establishment. On Christmas morning, 1816, he came to Mystic and engaged to work on a vessel, and Jan. 1, 1817, he commenced his remarkable business career in Mystic, first as a sailmaker, which he continued until he was about 40 years old. During this time he became interested in numerous vessels, and at one time he owned ten whalers, which were all successful. About 1848 he purchased the lease of the Mystic shipyard and begun shipbuilding. He built 50 steamers and many sailing vessels. When the Mystic River Bank was organized he was made its president; he also founded the First National Bank of Mystic Bridge, and owned the entire stock of $100,000. From the time he came to Mystic he has been identified with its best growth. On Feb. 22, 1818, he m. Eliza Rogers, daughter of John and Hannah Rogers, of New London, and for 63 years this worthy couple walked hand in hand in the enjoyment of life, until the sudden death of Mrs. Mallory, Sept. 4, 1886. They were members of the Mystic Congregational Church, and ever helpful in all good causes. Their children were: Charles Henry, David D., George W., Franklin O., Benjamin E., and Anna M. Mallory. These children were all b. in Mystic, and spent the greater part of their lives there, with the exception of Charles Henry, who was b. Sept. 30, 1818, spent his childhood in Mystic, where he secured a common school education, also one year's tuition at the private school of John Kirby, one of the best teachers of his day. He was early taught the sailmakers' trade, and worked with his father till he was fifteen, when he went to sea, and before he was of age he became master of a brig. His life was passed on the water from 1833 to 1846, when his father's business needing a competent manager in New York, he was selected for the position and proved himself satisfactory in every particular. In 1865 the firm of C. H. Mallory & Co., a shipping and commission firm, was established in New York, and continued till 1870, when Mr. Mallory's two sons, Charles and Henry, were admitted members, and the firm has been very successful. It also runs and owns several steamship lines. Mr. Charles Henry Mallory m. Eunice Denison Clift (No. 44), daughter of Nathaniel and wife, Eunice (Denison) Clift, and they had five children. Although his life has been full of business activities, he has borne a conspicuous part in all works of morality, education and religion. His wife was a true help meet, full of good deeds and works, generous and benevolent. She made many of her friends and townspeople comfortable and happy during their lives, and the cemetery, near her old home at Mystic, bears testimony of her love for them in the grand arched gateway at the entrance to the silent city.
MANNING FAMILY.

I. WILLIAM MANNING, the emigrant ancestor of the Manning family of Stonington, and wife, Susannah Manning, came to New England with its early planters and settled in Cambridge, Mass., where he purchased valuable real estate in 1638. The residence of this family in England is not certainly known, nor is it known how many children they became the parents of in the old country, or how many in this country. Only one child, viz.:

2 WILLIAM, Jr., is known to have survived them, who was b. in England in 1614, and came with his parents to Massachusetts, and after their decease inherited their mansion place in Cambridge. He engaged in and pursued the mercantile business and became a prominent and successful merchant.

Samuel Manning (No. 8) came back in early life to Cambridge, Mass., to live, when his father in 1698 gave him a deed of the real estate which his great-grandfather purchased there in 1638. For reasons not now fully understood he did not enjoy the ancestral home in Cambridge as well as he anticipated, which unrest caused him to seek a home for himself and family where they could enlarge their possessions and live more agreeably to their taste and comfort. So, in order to consummate his plans, he sold nearly all of his real estate in Cambridge, Mass., between the years of 1720 and 1724, and during this interval he removed his family to that part of the town of Windham known now as Scotland, Conn., where he spent the remainder of his life, dying Feb. 24, 1755. His wife departed this life before him, dying June 30, 1723.

ANDREW S. MATHEWS.

The history of this town would be incomplete without a sketch of the life of Andrew S. Mathews, who was so long and closely identified with the construction and management of the Providence and Stonington Railroad. He was b. at Elk Ridge, Anne Arundel Co., Md., Sept. 1, 1814. His father, Dr. William P. Mathews was a native of Ireland, and was educated and graduated at the University of Dublin, and shortly after came to America. He m. Eliza Sterritt of Maryland and had seven children, of whom Andrew was the sixth, his parents dying when he was but 7 years old. He early commenced to look out for himself. He left school when 12 years old and went to work with his brother, Charles, who was a railroad constructor. At 16 he was assistant engineer in the service of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. He was next superintendent of a gang of men on the Hudson Railroad, also in the same capacity on the Paterson & Hudson Railroad. Afterward he went to Boston and was civil engineer for the Boston & Providence Railroad Co., for three years. Also civil engineer for the Taunton Branch Railroad Co. As he grew older he filled even more responsible positions. In 1836 Mr. Mathews entered the service of the New York, Providence & Boston Railroad. In 1837 the road was finished to Stonington, and he was chosen chief engineer and road master, and at the same time was assistant engineer on the Boston & Albany Railroad. From 1840 to 1848 he was acting superintendent and master of transportation on the same road. In 1848 he was appointed general superintendent, which he held till on account of ill health, he resigned in 1878. He was immediately after appointed chief engineer, which office he held till his death, which occurred Feb. 8, 1884. Mr. Mathews m. Eliza A. Smith of Marlboro, Mass., in 1836, and came to Stonington to live in 1837, and was a resident here for nearly half a century, and none stood higher than he in the estimation of the community. It has been said, "If there was any blemish or fault in his personal or official life it was never discovered."

MINER FAMILY.

The surname of Miner originated in England during the reign of King Edward the Third, whose reign continued from 1327 to 1377. When preparing for war with France he took progress through Somerset, and coming to Mendippe Hill, where lived a man by the name of Bullman, whose extraordinary and successful efforts to aid the king in the munitions of war, with one hundred powerful men of volunteers in the service, so pleased the king that he granted him a coat-of-arms, with the name of Henry Miner thereon, in recognition of his loyalty and patriotic devotion to him and his cause.

1. This HENRY MINER died in the year 1359, leaving four sons, heirs-at-law of the realm.

MORGAN FAMILY.

1. JAMES MORGAN, the emigrant ancestor and progenitor of the Morgan family, was born in Wales in 1607. He m. Margery Hill of Roxbury, Mass., Aug. 6, 1640. He was made freeman there, May 10, 1645. Early in 1650 he had lands granted him in Pequot, now New London, as New London records show, which was soon occupied by him as a homestead, “on the path to New street or Cape Ann street,” as it was called in honor of the Cape Ann Company, who chiefly settled there. On the 25th day of December, 1656, he sold his homestead and removed soon after, with several others, across the river, upon large tracts of land previously granted them by the town. The spot where he built his first house in Groton in 1657, and where he ever resided and died, is a few rods southeast of the dwelling of Elijah S. Morgan, about three miles from Groton ferry, on the road to Poquonock Bridge. He was one of the townsmen or selectmen of New London for several years, and one of the first “Deputies sent from New London Plantation” to the General Court at Hartford, May session, 1657, and was nine times afterwards chosen member of the assembly, the last in 1670, and he was also an active and useful member of Rev. Richard Blinman’s church, as his name is prominent in every important movement or proceeding. He also served in the early Colonial wars. He d. in 1685, aged 78 years.

Rev. William Noyes, ancestor of the Stonington family of this name, was born in England in 1568. He was instituted rector of Cholderton in 1602, and continued so for about 20 years. He m. Anne Parker about 1595, who was b. in 1575, and buried at Cholderton, England, March 7, 1657, aged 82 years. William Noyes departed this life about 1616, and his son, Nathan Noyes, succeeded him to the rectorship and continued so for 32 years, dying in 1651, Sept. 6, aged 54 years.

NOTE.—It seems the statement that the family name of Noyes in England was originally Noye is a mistake. From all that has been ascertained, the name originated in Normandy and the family name there was Des Noyers, the latter word meaning "Walnut Tree." The tendency being always to shorten rather than lengthen family names. The Doomsday book has recorded as one of the followers of William the Conqueror "William Des Noyers," William of the Walnut Tree.

It has been supposed and currently stated that Rev. William Noyes, rector of Cholderton, was related to the William Noyes who was Attorney General to Charles the First, but I have never seen proof of it, and I find that Prof. James Atkins Noyes and Col. Henry E. Noyes, who have made an exhaustive study of the Noyes family, are of the same opinion.

I. REV. WILLIAM NOYES and Anne Parker, sister of Rev. Robert Parker, were m. about 1595.

James Noyes (No. 4) and Nicholas Noyes (No. 6) came to New England, and from them sprung the line of Noyes' whose descendants are found nearly all over the United States.

James Noyes (No. 4) m. in 1634 Sarah, eldest daughter of Mr. Joseph Brown of Southampton, Eng., and in March of that year embarked for New England, in company with his brother Nicholas and his cousin, Thomas Parker, in the "Mary and John" of London. He preached for a short time at Medford, and then for a while at the Watertown church, but in 1635 went to Newbury, Mass., and preached there till his death, Oct. 22, 1656. Mrs. Sarah Brown Noyes d. Sept. 13, 1691. Mr. James Noyes was very much loved and honored in Newbury, and it was said of him that "He was of so loving and compassionate and humble carriage that there never was any one acquainted with him, but did desire the continuance of his society and acquaintance." He had a fine voice, and with his cousin Thomas Parker spent much time in singing and praising God, both at home and at divine worship. He had a long and tedious sickness, which he bore patiently and cheerfully, and died joyfully in the 48th year of his age. He left six sons and two daughters, all of whom lived to be m. and have children. His will, dated Oct. 17, 1656, which was six days before his death, is preserved, and his inventory showed a good estate.

Rev. James Noyes (No. 9) came to Stonington to preach on an invitation of the town in 1664. The meeting house in which he preached was a short distance southwesterly of the present residence of Mr. Henry M. Palmer, west of Montauk avenue. Traditionally, we learn that he resided in the family of Thomas Stanton, Sr., until he was ordained Sept. 11, 1674, and the next day he was married to Miss Dorothy Stanton (No. 8), of Stanton family, daughter of Thomas and Ann (Lord) Stanton. He made his permanent place of abode upon a large tract of land in Stonington, Conn., which he purchased of Samuel Willis of Hartford, Conn., where he erected him a dwelling house on the site of the present first house, south of Anguilla on the highway from there to Wequetequock, which became the first parsonage of the First Congregational Church of Stonington, where he lived the remainder of his life, dying Dec. 30, 1719. For the first ten years of his ministry he preached as a licentiate, and the last 45 years as an ordained clergyman. He was chaplain with Capt. George Denison's expedition that captured Canonchet, chief sachem of the Narragansett Indians, April, 1676.

PALMER FAMILY.

1. WALTER PALMER, the progenitor of the family of his name, who first settled in Stonington, Conn., came to New England as early as 1628, with his brother, Abraham Palmer, a merchant of London, England, and nine associates. They went from Salem, Mass., through a pathless wilderness to a place called by the Indians Mishawam, where they found a man by the name of Thomas Walford, a smith. Here they remained until the next year, when they were joined by nearly one hundred people, who came with Thomas Graves, from Salem and laid the foundation of the town, which they named Charlestown, in honor of King Charles the First, June 24, 1629. It is claimed that Walter Palmer built the first dwelling house in Charlestown after it was organized as a township, on the two acres of land that were assigned and set to him by the authority of the new town. Walter Palmer's inclinations tended to stock raising and farming, but he soon found his land was inadequate to his business, notwithstanding which he continued to reside in Charlestown until 1643. During his residence there he purchased additional real estate, which he improved in his line of business as best he could. While thus engaged he became acquainted with William Chesebrough, who lived at the time in Boston and Braintree, whose business pursuits were similar to those of Mr. Palmer, and after repeated interviews and consultations, they both decided to remove to the Plymouth Colony, and did so remove their families and with others, joined in the organization of the town of Rehoboth, as an independent township, which was continued as such until they should subject themselves to some other government. Such an organization, largely composed of strangers and situated in a remote part of the colony, was not very well calculated to secure their approval. It does not appear that they intended to establish this new township wholly as an independent organization, for as soon as the preliminary steps necessary for its formation were taken, and after its organization was effected, they elected deputies to the General Court of Plymouth. Walter Palmer was a prominent man when he lived in Massachusetts, and was admit-tated a freeman there May 18, 1631, and held several local offices in that colony, and such was the estimation in which he was held by the first planters of Rehoboth and the confidence that they reposed in him, that his fellow townsmen elected him as their first representative to the General Court of Plymouth, and subsequently re-elected him to that office and also conferred upon him repeatedly the office of selectman and other local offices. His friend Chesebrough, not relishing the way and manner in which he was treated by the General Court of the Plymouth Colony decided to look farther westward for a permanent place of abode. He visited the then new settlement of New London, by the advice of Mr. John Winthrop, which after a thorough examination thereof, it did not answer his expectations, so he concluded to return homeward, and on his way came through the town of Stonington, Conn., where he visited the beautiful valley of Wequetequock, with which he was so well pleased that he decided to make it his future place of abode. When he reached home and described to his wife and family the situation and advantages of this valley, they all approved of it as a desirable place for their home. Mr. Chesebrough and sons immediately commenced operations for the erection of a dwelling house, fixing its site on the west bank of Wequetequock Cove. The salt marsh lands adjoining the cove furnished hay for the stock, and Mr. Chesebrough and Palmer and all the early settlers until they could clear up land and reduce it to cultivation by English grasses for their cattle. Mr. Chesebrough so far finished his house that he occupied it with his family during the year 1649, and so became the pioneer English planter of the new town now called Stonington.

The Connecticut General Court were not satisfied with his locating himself in the wilderness so far away from any English settlement, so they ordered him to report his proceedings to Maj. John Mason, which resulted in a compromise later on between him and said court, wherein and by which he was to remain in his new habitation on condition that he would induce a reasonable number of creditable persons to unite with him in organizing a new township as hereinbefore stated more at large.

Thomas Stanton, the interpreter general of New England, was the first to join Mr. Chesebrough in the new settlement, and obtained a grant from the General Court in March, 1650, of six acres of planting ground on Pawcatuck River, with liberty to erect a trading house thereon, with feed and mowing of marsh land, according to his present occasions, giving him the exclusive trade of the river for three years next ensuing. Mr. Stanton located his six-acre grant on the west bank of Pawcatuck River, around a place known as Pawcatuck rock, upon which grant he erected his trading house; and subsequently built him a dwelling house thereon, to which he moved his family in 1651, establishing it as his permanent place of abode, where he lived the remainder of his days. (For further particulars see Stanton family). William Chesebrough, in pursuance of his arrangement with the General Court, invited his friend Walter Palmer, then living in Rehoboth, to come and join him here in the organization of another new township. While Mr. Palmer was considering this proposition, Thomas Miner, who had married his daughter Grace, and was then a resident of New London, was also invited to join the new settlement, which he did, by obtaining a limited grant of land of the town of New London, which he located on the east bank of Wequetequock Cove, and built him a dwelling house thereon, to which he moved his family in the year 1652. The town of New London at the time claimed jurisdiction of the town of Stonington and had granted large tracts of land to William Chesebrough and Thomas Miner, and being anxious to assist Mr. Chesebrough in his efforts to induce a suitable number of prominent men to unite with him in settling a new township here, induced Gov. Haynes to accept of a grant of land of three hundred acres, for a farm lying east and southeast of Chesebrough's land, on the east side of Wequetequock Cove. This grant bore date April 5, 1652. Walter Palmer, who was then prospecting for a tract of land suitable for farming, with salt marsh grass land for his stock, ascertained that Gov. Haynes's grant covered the land he wished to obtain, and so visited the governor, with his son-in-law, Thomas Miner, and his eldest son, John Miner, who had previously learned that the Haynes grant of land embraced in its boundaries his son-in-law's land. But after a friendly interview with the governor, Walter Palmer purchased his grant of land in Stonington, by a contract deed which was witnessed by Thomas and John Miner, agreeing to pay the governor one hundred pounds for the place, with such cattle as Mr. Haynes should select out of Walter Palmer's stock. If any disagreement should arise, as to the price of the stock, it should be decided by indifferent persons. Their contract recognized the title to the house and lands occupied by Mr. Miner, and was dated July 15, 1653. Thomas Miner, Sr., was selected to put Mr. Palmer in possession of the land purchased of Gov. Haynes, and did so by a written instrument, embodying therein a conveyance of his own land, and dwelling house, included in the boundaries of the Haynes land (to Mr. Palmer), reserving the right, however, to occupy his said house until he could build another at Mistuxet, now known as Quiambaug, in Stonington. So 1653 marks the time when Walter Palmer came to Stonington to reside. He and his friend Chesebrough lived within a stone's throw of each other, and after life's fitful fever was ended, departed this life, and both lie buried in the old Wequetequock burial place, with Thomas Stanton, the interpreter general of New England. Walter Palmer was a man well advanced in life when he came to Stonington to reside with his family. He was born in London, England, as early as 1585, and at the time of his settlement here had reached the rugged steep of life's decline. The rough exposure of pioneer life, with its deprivations, seriously affected his health, which was so much impaired that as the chill November days had come, "the saddest of the year," he was gathered not to his fathers, but laid to rest in the old Wequetequock burial place, dying Nov. 10, 1661. Of his family, it may be said that he married in England, long before he came to this country. The name of his first wife has never been recorded. He m. 2d, Rebecca Short, who came to this country in 1632. They were joined in marriage June 1, 1633.

CHILDREN BY FIRST MARRIAGE:

2 GRACE, b. in England, of whom it is traditionally said that she was of the same age as her husband, Thomas Miner, born in 1608 (No. 11), Miner family.

3 WILLIAM, b. in England; the eldest son came with his father's family to New England, and lived with them in Charlestown, Mass. He remained with his brother John, in Charlestown, after his father removed to Plymouth, and continued to reside there until after his father's death. Soon after he sold the land his father gave him in Rehoboth, and came to Stonington, and stayed with his brother-in-law, Thomas Miner, nearly a year, when he left here and went to Killingworth, Conn., where he lived the remainder of his days. The time of his death in not known. His brother, Gershom Palmer, under date of March 27, 1697, entered on record the following instrument: "Know all men by these presents, that, whereas, my brother, William, now deceased, did give and bequeath unto me his house, and all his lands in Killingworth, forever, I settling one of my sons thereon, and in compliance with my deceased brother's will, I do order my eldest son, Gershom Palmer, Jr., to settle in said house upon said land. I, the said Gershom Palmer, Senior, do give and bequeath the afore said house and lot, with all its privileges and appurtenances thereto belonging, to my eldest son, Gershom Palmer, to him forever, actording to the tenor of the will of my brother, William Palmer, deceased." This will renders it certain that he left no wife or children.

4 JOHN, b. in England in 1615; came to this country in 1628. He was admitted a freeman of Massachusetts Colony in 1639, and d. Aug. 24, 1677, aged 62 yrs. He left a will, giving the bulk of his property to his brother, Jonah and sister Elizabeth. He was never married.

5 JONAH, b. in England, m. Elizabeth Grissell.

6 ELIZABETH, b. in England, m. Thomas Sloan before 1663. He d. soon after, leaving no children of record. She m. for her 2d husband,

CHILDREN BY SECOND MARRIAGE:

7 HANNAH, b. in Charlestown, June 18, 1634. She came with her parents to Stonington, and m. 1st, Thomas Hewitt April 26, 1659 (No. 1), that family; m. 2d, Roger Sterry Dec. 27, 1671; m. 3d, John Fish, Aug. 25, 1681 (No. 1), Fish family. An interesting jointure between them is preserved in our old Stonington records.

8 ELIHU, bapt. (Charlestown church records), Jan. 25, 1636, and came to Stonington with his parents, via Rehoboth, and d. here Sept. 5, 1665.
It is not probable that he ever married, for no children can be traced to him. He left a will in which he gave his property to his nephews.
His will was lost in the burning of New London, Sept. 6, 1781, and the only knowledge we have of it, is from a deed on the Stonington records, where was set to his executor and vested in his nephews certain real estate in Stonington. If he had surviving children at the time of his death they would have been the subject of his bounty, but dying at the age of 29 years, and leaving such a will is proof positive that he had no offspring of his own.

9 NEHEMIAH, b. Nov. 2, 1637, m. Hannah Lord Stanton.

10 MOSES, b. April 6, 1640, m. Dorothy Gilbert.

11 BENJAMIN, b. May 30, 1642, in Charlestown, Mass., and came to Stonington via Rehoboth with his father and family and joined the church and subsequently became a large land holder. He m. and brought his wife home Aug. 10, 1681. All that is now known about his marriage we learn from Thomas Miner’s Diary. He does not give her name, nor where she lived, nor is there any known record of his children, if any there were. He d. April 10, 1716, aged 74 yrs. In February before he died, he gave a deed of all his lands to two of his nephews, on condition that they should take good care of him during life and give him a Christian burial with headstones at his decease which care was administered, and the headstones mark his last resting place in the old Wequetequock burial ground.

12 GERSHOM, b. in Rehoboth, m. Ann Denison; 2d, Mrs. Elizabeth Mason.

13 REBECCA, b. in Stonington, m. Elisha Cheebsrough (No. 12), that family;
2d, John Baldwin (No. 15), Baldwin family.

Jonah Palmer (No. 5) came with his father to this country in 1628; lived in Charlestown until 1657, when he m. Elizabeth Gris-sell, May 3, 1655, and moved soon after to Rehoboth, where he remained the rest of his life. He m. 2d, Abigail Titus.

CHILDREN ALL BY FIRST MARRIAGE:

14 HANNAH, b. Nov. 8, 1658.

15 SAMUEL, b. Nov. 22, 1659, m. Elizabeth Kingsbury.

17 MARY, b. Feb. 23, 1664.
18 MARTHA, b. July 6, 1666.

Nehemiah Palmer (No. 9) came to Stonington with his parents from Charlestown, Mass., via Rehoboth, and m. Hannah Lord Stanton, Nov. 20, 1662 (No. 5), that family. He was a prominent man in the church, town and the State, and was of the Governor's Council, of the Connecticut Colony for several years. He d. Feb. 17, 1717. She d. Oct. 17, 1727.

CHILDREN:
21 ELIHU, b. March 12, 1666, d. young.
22 JONATHAN, b. Aug. 7, 1668, m. Mary Manwarring.
23 DANIEL, b. Nov. 12, 1672, m. Margaret Smith; 2d, Mrs. Mary (Avery) Denison.
25 HANNAH, bapt. April 11, 1680, m. Ichabod Palmer (No. 33).

Moses Palmer (No. 10) b. in Charlestown, Mass., came to Stonington via Rehoboth, with his father's family, and m. Dorothy, daughter of John and Amy (Lord) Gilbert, a direct descendant of William the Conqueror, in 1672.

CHILDREN:
26 MOSES, bapt. Nov. 15, 1674, m. Abigail Allen.
27 DOROTHY, b. Nov. 7, 1675, m. William Wilcox (No. 8), that family.
28 JOHN, b. Dec. 2, 1677, m. Ann Chesebrough; 2d, Dorothy Noyes.
30 REBECCA, b. April 30, 1682.

Dea. Gershom Palmer (No. 12) came to Stonington with his father and family. He served in early Colonial wars. He m. 1st, Ann, daughter of Capt. George Denison and wife, Ann (Borodell) Denison, Nov. 28, 1667 (No. 40), that family. She d. in 1694. He m. 2d, Mrs. Elizabeth (Peck) Mason, widow of Maj. Samuel Mason, Nov. 11, 1707 (No. 4), that family. The preliminaries of this union must have been interesting, not only in their reciprocal affections, but in their mutual financial interests, as appears by a jointure, bearing the date of their marriage. (See Appendix.) Soon after his last marriage he fixed his permanent place of abode on the eastern slope of Taugwonek, here in Stonington, placing his dwelling house on the site of the residence of Elias H. Miner, occupying and improving large tracts thereabouts, which after his death descended to his children by operation of the law, except what thereof had been transferred to them when in life. Subsequent to his marriage with Mrs. Elizabeth Mason, Dea. Gershom Palmer, as a condition precedent to a transfer of real estate to two of his sons, viz., George and Walter Palmer, had bound and obliged them, in consideration of said transfers, to pay to his then wife, the twenty pounds mentioned in the original jointure to be paid to her by his executor or administrator from his estate.
When Mrs. Mason married the deacon she had two minor children, viz., Elizabeth and Hannah Mason, who went with their mother to reside in Dea. Palmer's family, where they were kindly entertained and treated with distinguished consideration by all, in recognition of their father's and grandfather's eminent services in the settlement of the State of Connecticut and also in consideration of the support and education of her daughters, their mother entered into a supplemental jointer with the deacon, by which she released and discharged his sons Walter and George Palmer from their liability to her for one-half of the twenty pounds mentioned in their first jointure. During the year 1719, Dea. Gershom Palmer departed this life, and in December of that year, in consideration of the affection and kindness to her daughters, and without any additional payment or favor of any kind to her from his heirs-at-law, she released his sons Walter and George Palmer from any and all liability to her, for the full consideration of the stipulations of the original jointure between her and Dea. Palmer. Miss Elizabeth Mason, who went with her mother to live with Dea. Palmer, after her mother's marriage to him, was at the time in her eleventh year. She was rarely endowed by nature, with pleasing accomplishments, which made her the idol of her social circle, and in her 23d year she became the wife of the Rev. William Worthington, Oct. 13, 1720. Her sister, Hannah Mason, was less than nine years old, in delicate health, with which she grew up to womanhood, afflicted with incipient consumption, until Nov., 1724, when she departed this life. (No. 17), Mason family.

NOTE.—William Henry Palmer (No. 463), son of Alexander and wife, Adella (Billings) Palmer, was born in Stonington, Conn., Aug. 17, 1840. He graduated from Yale College and some years succeeding he spent in Cleveland, Ohio, and afterwards in New York city, where he engaged in the study of medicine. He was valedictorian of the class of 1866 at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York city. Returning to Cleveland, he commenced the practice of his profession there. Was Professor of Ophthalmology in Cleveland Medical College and visiting physician in Cleveland City Hospital. He died at Hartford, Conn., June 19th, 1871, of consumption. He married at Hartford six months before his death Miss Frances Collins Dec. 13, 1870.

A classmate, Mr. G. S. Merriam, has kindly furnished the following brief obituary:

"Remembrances of all his classmates as to Palmer will substantially agree, I think, differing only as some knew him more fully than others, but to all he was the same faithful, kindly, manly fellow. He was known at first as a very industrious student, who earned high rank by hard work. I remember the general surprise when this quiet scholar distinguished himself by a particularly audacious and successful raid against the Sophomores. He was as hearty in his enjoyment of a joke or a frolic as in his devotion to a hard lesson. He worked his way steadily upward in the scholarship list and took a Philosophical at commencement. His pleasant face, his big brown eyes, his pleasant smile and hearty laugh will come vividly back to all, telling their story of the man he was. Class of '64."

PARK FAMILY.

1. ROBERT PARK, the first of the name who appeared in this country, came from Preston, Lancashire, England; sailed from Cowes, Isle of Wight, in the ship Arabella, March 29, 1630, and landed at Salem, Mass., June 12, and at Boston June 17, 1630, with seventy-six passengers all told. He settled with his son, Thomas, in Wethersfield, Conn., in 1640, and was Deputy to the General Court in 1641-2. He removed to Pequot, now New London, in 1649, where he resided six years, and his new barn which stood on the corner of Hempstead and Granite streets, was used as the first house of worship in the new town, and the call to service was by the beat of drum. He finally settled at Mystic in Stonington, as he was one of the men appointed by the General Court of Massachusetts to an official position, in the organization of the town of Southertown in 1658. He died, and his will was probated in March, 1665, and son, Dea. William Park of Roxbury, Mass., was his executor. He served in the early Colonial wars. He m. 1st, Martha, daughter of Capt. Robert Chapen, in Edmundsbury, England; m. 2d, Mrs. Alice Thompson; they were doubtless m. in Roxbury, and soon after removed to Wethersfield, Conn. We cannot say which marriage took place first, whether it was that of Robert Park with the mother, or his son Thomas, with the daughter Dorothy. His wife d. before 1660.

PHELPS FAMILY.

We learn from the annals of Dorchester, Mass., that William Phelps, the emigrant ancestor of the Phelps family of New England, came to this country in the good ship “Mary and John” in 1630, with one hundred and forty passengers; most of them were constituent members of the church formed in Plymouth, England, in 1629. On reaching this country they transplanted their church in Dorchester in 1630, where they continued to reside until 1635, when the Rev. John Warham and a large majority of the church migrated overland to the Connecticut River, and formed the town of Windsor, in Connecticut, and transplanted their church there. Mr. Phelps and wife were prominently active, not only in reorganizing the church, but also in establishing a social centre for their new town. Later on Mr. Phelps rose to prominence and eminence, and was repeatedly chosen Deputy to the General Court, and held other important official positions. Hon. William Randall (No. 71) was lieutenant colonel commandant of the 30th regiment of Connecticut militia during the war of 1812 (that office corresponding with colonel in later organizations), and had command of his regiment when it was called out in 1813-14, for the defence of the State, notably at Stonington in August, 1814. In the General Assembly of Connecticut during six sessions, he was member of the Lower House, and in 1822 he had a seat in the Upper House, as one of the twelve Senators elected by the general ticket, of which that body was then composed. In 1818 he was a member of the convention which framed the Constitution of the State of Connecticut, as delegate from the town of Stonington. During sixteen consecutive years, from 1818 to 1833, inclusive, he held the position of associate judge of the county court of New London county, by annual appointment by the General Assembly of the State of Connecticut, by which authority he was also annually appointed a justice of the peace during twenty-eight years, and he held responsible offices in the town of Stonington. RHODES FAMILY.

In the old town graveyard at Newport, R. I., is the heraldic tombstone of John Rhodes, Esq., who died March 31, 1746, aged 75 years, grandson of Sir Godfrey Rhodes of Rowden, in Yorkshire, Eng., and according to Burke’s Extinct and Dormant Baronetcies, “Francis and Charles Rodes, grandsons of Sir Francis Rodes, Bart, a nephew of Sir Godfrey, went to America.” As these are familiar names in the Rhodes family, which came to Stonington, Conn., we feel that this John Rhodes, Esq., may be the connecting link in the family between England and America, as he might have been the father of Capt. Simon Rhodes, who was born Jan. 24, 1716, and was of Newport, R. I., when he was married by Elder Joseph Park on Dec. 15, 1756, to Anne, who was the daughter of Capt. James and second wife, Content (Maxson) Babcock of Westerly, R. I. Tradition says that he had been married before and as he was 40 years old at the time he married Anne, this might have been so. The first mention of Capt. Simon Rhodes on the Stonington records is “A distribution of lands between Jonathan Babcock and his sister, Ann Rhodes, the wife of Capt. Simon Rhodes of Stonington, Oct. 24, 1759.” Afterwards there are several deeds showing that he purchased large tracts of land. He built a house on the land owned by his wife, which is standing at the present time, and known as the Rhodes Mansion Place. It is situated not far from Westerly, R. I. Capt. Simon’s wife, Anne Babcock (No. 46), Babcock family, was born March 30, 1732, and died Nov. 7, 1768, aged 37, and then Capt. Simon married Aug. 27, 1769, Martha Babcock (No. 100), Babcock family, who was born Dec. 8, 1729, daughter of George and Susannah (Potter) Babcock. Capt. Simon Rhodes died April 22, 1784, aged 68 years, and Mrs. Martha Babcock Rhodes married May 12, 1800, Col. James Rhodes, b. Aug. 5, 1730, (not known to be any relative of Capt. Simon Rhodes). He died June 21, 1806, and she died March 30, 1809, aged 80 years. Col. James Rhodes’ first wife was Anna Crandall who he m. Dec. 14, 1752. After her death he married 2d, Abigail Greenman Feb. 21, 1768 (No. 22), of Greenman family. She died Dec. 17, 1799, aged 59 years.
RHODES FAMILY.

Then for his third wife he married, as mentioned before, Mrs. Martha Babcock Rhodes. Some of the best people of Stonington have descended from Col. James Rhodes.

24 HANNAH, b. May 31, 1746, d. Aug. 23, 1753.

Col. Giles Russell (No. 15) was graduated at Yale College and was admitted to the bar in Hartford, Conn., after which he came. to Stonington about 1760. He commanded a company of Rhode Island and Connecticut men in the expedition against Havana in the early part of the year 1762, under Admiral Pococke and Lord Albemarle. The company of which he was the captain consisted of 55 men, of whom 37 were either killed or died of wounds and disease, so that only 18 reached home to die with friends.

After his safe return he was m. Dec. 8, 1762, to Prudence Stanton (No. 279), Stanton family, daughter of Thomas Stanton and wife, Thankful (Denison) Stanton. She had been previously m. to Juda Coleman March 4, 1747, and had two children, viz.: Mercy Coleman, b. July 18, 1748, and Robert Coleman, b. Oct. 26, 1749.

Capt. Russell purchased the John Denison house, now owned and occupied by Mrs. Eliza P. Noyes and son, Joseph Noyes. He built a lean-to on the east side of the house for an office, which was subsequently enlarged and was used as the town clerk and probate office by John D. Noyes during his service as town clerk, and until the office was removed to Stonington borough. Giles Russell was nominated and appointed a tavern keeper or inn keeper there as early as 1763, which position he held by subsequent yearly appointments at the old place until he entered the army of the American Revolution as lieutenant colonel in the third battalion, Wadsworth brigade, which was raised in June 1776, to reinforce Washington at New York; served there and on Long Island; suffered in the retreat from the city and engaged in battle at White Plains. He re-entered the fourth regiment Connecticut line, Jan. 1, 1777, went into camp at Peekskill in the spring and in September ordered to Washington's army in Pennsylvania; engaged in battle of Germantown, was assigned later to Varnum's brigade and continued the brave defence of Fort Mifflin on the Delaware. At this time he is reported by Varnum as a "veteran of four campaigns in the French and Indian wars, in one of which he was wounded. Is now a sensible and excellent officer, but totally destitute of health, and had requested to be relieved, but was promoted to colonel of the Eighth regiment March 5, 1778, which was that winter at Valley Forge, and the next June was at the battle of Monmouth."

Col. Russell d. at Danbury, Conn., Oct. 28, 1779, from effects of service, and is buried in Stonington in the cemetery near the Road Church.

JOHN SMITH FAMILY OF STONINGTON, CONN.

1. DANIEL SMITH of Watertown, Mass. (probably son of John and wife, Isabel), m. Elizabeth Rogers of Watertown, Mass., (daughter of Roger and Grace Porter by her former husband, Thomas Rogers), for her will mentions grandson Daniel Smith. He d. July 14, 1660, which is the date of his will and he makes wife, Elizabeth, executrix, and names son Daniel and brother Abraham, who, with Rev. John Sherman, he makes overseers. The town records show Daniel was the only CHILD OF DANIEL AND ELIZABETH SMITH.

2 DANIEL, b. Sept. 27, 1642, m. Mary, daughter of Christopher and wife, Sarah —— Grant of Watertown, Mass., Feb. 22, 1668. He d. Jan 7, 1681, and in his will (see Appendix) made eight days before his death, he mentions wife and three sons, "My two eldest sons, Daniel and John, and my third son, Joseph." The will of Daniel Smith speaks of his three sons as being under age at the time of the date of his will, and as his son John was born July 13, 1672, it corresponds with the age recorded on the gravestone of John Smith, buried in North Stonington, Conn., east of the farm owned by Mr. Nathan Stewart, proving conclusively that this Stonington John Smith is the son of Daniel Smith of Watertown, Mass. The gravestones of both John and wife, Susannah Smith, bear the following inscriptions: "Mr. John Smith departed this life May the 8th, A. D. 1739, in the 67th year of his age." Also by the side of this grave is another stone of "Susannah Smith, who died Sept. 28th, 1746, in the 78th year of her age." Here are also found the stones of their son, Daniel Smith and wife Thankful, who died in the years 1740 and 1741. The original will of John Smith is found at New London. (See Appendix.) The maiden name of his wife Susannah is not known, but a Susanah Chesley and John Smith were m. in Massachusetts in 1694, which would be about the time of the m. of this John Smith to Susannah

They came to Preston, Conn., about 1709, as a deed is on record (and herewith appended) conveying land from William Denison and wife, Mary of Stonington, Conn., to John Smith of Preston, May 3, 1709, which land is bounded south and west by lands of Samuel Prentice. In 1715 the earmark of the cattle of John Smith of Stonington is on record, and in 1718, more land is purchased of William Denison by John Smith of Stonington, Conn. At that time Stonington’s north line extended to the south line of Preston, Conn.

THOMAS STANTON FAMILY.

1. THOMAS STANTON, who became distinguished among the first planters of Stonington, Conn., was in early manhood in England designed and educated for a cadet, but, not liking the profession of arms, and taking a deep interest in the religious principles of the migrating Puritans, he left his native land, embarking on board of the good ship "Bonaventure," in 1635, and landed in Virginia, but left there almost immediately for Boston, mingling with the natives on the way, and rapidly acquired a knowledge of their language and customs. On arrival in Boston he was recognized by Winthrop and his associates as a valuable man, worthy of the most unlimited confidence, for the very next year he was selected by the Boston authorities to accompany Mr. Fenwick and Hugh Peters, as interpreter on a mission to Saybrook, Conn., to hold a conference with the Pequot Indians relative to the murder of Capt. Stone and Newton. After the close of the conference Mr. Stanton went up to Hartford, and there fixed his permanent abode in 1637. Mr. Stanton's accurate knowledge of the language and character of the Indians soon gave him prominence in the new settlements of Connecticut, for the very first year that he came to Hartford, the General Court gave him ten pounds for the service he had already done for the country, and declared that he should be a public officer, to attend the court upon all occasions, either general or particular, at the meetings of the magistrates, to interpret between them and the Indians, at a salary of ten pounds per annum. Mr. Stanton did not always agree with the policy of Capt. Mason and the court relative to the treatment of the Indians, and drew upon himself their displeasure; but being a man accustomed to speak his own mind and act upon his own convictions, maintained his position, though they discontinued his salary for two years, alleging long absence as the cause, and appointed Mr. Gilbert to take his place, but in 1648 they restored him to the place with its compensation. He became the intimate and especial friend of
Gov. Winthrop of Connecticut, acting as his interpreter in all of his intercourse with the Indians. It was while thus employed, in an interview with Ninigret in the Narragansett country that Mr. Stanton became acquainted with the Pawcatuck Valley, and selected it for his future residence. He was the first white man who joined Mr. William Chesebrough in his new settlement. He petitioned the General Court of Connecticut for liberty to erect a trading house there, which was granted in February, 1650. In the spring following he came to Pawcatuck and erected his trading house on the west bank of Pawcatuck river, in Stonington, in 1651, near a place ever since known as Pawcatuck Rock, for the reason that the deep water channel in the river touched the east side of said rock, where vessels trading with him could easily receive and discharge their cargoes without any expense for the erection of a wharf. Mr. Stanton did not remove his family to Pawcatuck in Stonington until 1657, where he had previously erected a dwelling house. The precise site of this house cannot now be ascertained, but no doubt it was conveniently near his trading house on Pawcatuck River. The object of building the trading house was to open trade with the coasting vessels which were cruising along our New England shores, gathering furs from the Indians and purchasing the surplus products of the planters, and selling the same either in Boston or in the West Indies. After the articles of confederation between the New England colonies had been established in 1643, among all of the distinguished interpreters of New England, Mr. Stanton was selected as interpreter general, to be consulted and relied upon in all emergencies. In this capacity and in their behalf he acted as interpreter, especially between the ministers employed by the Commissioners of the United Colonies, acting as agents of the London Missionary Society, and the Indians, to whom they preached. He also aided the Rev. Abraham Pierson in the translation of his catechism into the Indian tongue, certifying to the same in his official capacity. After Mr. Stanton became an inhabitant of Pawcatuck in Stonington he took an active part in town affairs, he became prominent, and was elected to almost every position of public trust in the new settlement. In 1658, when Pawcatuck was included in the town of Southertown, under the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, he was appointed selectman and magistrate. After Pawcatuck was set off to the Connecticut Colony by the charter of 1662, Mr. Stanton was appointed magistrate and commissioner, and re-appointed every year up to the time of his death. He was elected deputy or representative to the General Court of Connecticut in 1666 and re-elected every year up to 1675.

When courts were first established in New London County in 1666, Major Mason, Thomas Stanton, and Lieut. Pratt of Saybrook, were appointed judges. Thus it appears that Mr. Stanton took a prominent part in town, county and State affairs from 1636, when he acted as interpreter at Saybrook, until near the close of his life. His name is connected with the leading measures of the colony, and with almost every Indian transaction on record. In 1670, Uncas, the Mohegan sachem, went from Mohegan to Pawcatuck for Mr. Stanton to write his will, taking with him a train of his noblest warriors to witness the same, giving to the occasion all the pomp and pageantry of savage royalty. He d. Dec. 2, 1677, aged 68 years. His will was probated in June, 1678. His widow survived him about eleven years, making her home with her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Noyes, at Anguilla in Stonington, Conn. He m. Anna, daughter of Thomas and Dorothy Lord, in 1637.

June 19, 1673, Hannah Mead, daughter of William Mead of Roxbury, Mass., and settled upon a tract of land which his father, Mr. Thomas Stanton, had purchased of an Indian chief, "Cassawshett," alias Harmon Garret, Jan. 14, 1659. The consideration mentioned in the deed of land is as follows: "For good reasons leading me hereunto, have and do give a neck of land to Thomas Stanton called Quaccontaug, &c." Thomas Stanton took immediate possession of the land purchased of Harmon Garrett and built him a house thereon. Subsequently he ascertained that his title to the land so purchased was imperfect; that Harmon was not a sachem, invested with power to sell the tribal lands of the Niantic Indians, and on consulting with the Commissioners of the United Colonies, he found that the land in question had been previously purchased by the Maj. Humphrey Atherton Land Company (of which Thomas Stanton was an associate member), of Ninegret, Suncquash and Scuttup, three Niantic sachems, on conditions, introduced by the purchasers, that no associate member of said Atherton Company should sell out his share thereof until he had given the company an opportunity to buy it. Mr. Stanton assured them that he should hold possession of the land in question for himself and the company, with the result that they should regard it favorably to have his share of said company's land include his Harmon Garrett purchase, which was subsequently assented to by the company, and Mr. Stanton retained the possession thereof and gave it to his son, Joseph Stanton, in and by his last will and testament, who after his marriage took possession thereof, and occupied the same during the rest of his life. 260 MARY, b. Nov. 6, 1814, m. James H. Kenyon Aug. 22, 1838.

The farm on which Samuel Stanton (No. 255) lived in Charlestown, R. I., was in 1858 the only remaining portion of the tract of land originally conveyed by Harmon Garret to Thomas Stanton in 1659. It had never been owned outside of this Stanton family, having been transmitted from father to son. Maj. Samuel Stanton (No. 256), that family, and Matilda Clark, both of Charlestown, R. I., were m. Jan. 6, 1838. She d. Sept. 13, 1866; he d. July 5, 1879. Mr. Stanton came here and bought a farm at Wequetequock in Stonington, where he spent the remnant of his days.

THOMAS STANTON FAMILY.

Daniel Stanton (No. 7), b. in 1648, m. and lived in Barbadoes, West Indies. He had one child 285 RICHARD.

This is the child mentioned in Mrs. Ann (Lord) Stanton's will, made in 1688, as the "fatherless child in Barbadoes," which indicates that Daniel Stanton was dead when that will was made. He d. in 1687. There is no further record of this child, Richard, except that he came to Stonington and sold his right to certain ancestral estate.

After the death of Thomas Stanton, Sr., his sons decided to enlarge their business through their trading house, and arranged with their brother, Daniel Stanton, to take up his residence on the island of Barbadoes, so as to dispose of their goods, furs and farm products in the West Indies in exchange for an equivalent in goods and groceries requisite for the needs of the New England planters. Before Mr. Daniel Stanton left for the West Indies to reside, and to enlarge his business there, he sold a portion of his real estate here in Stonington to his brother, Thomas Stanton, in 1681, describing it in the deed thereof as land willed to him by his father, Thomas Stanton, the interpreter general, which he failed to acknowledge before a magistrate. This omission subsequently led to a good deal of trouble. An effort was first made to correct it by an affidavit of two of the witnesses of said deed under date of Feb. 9, 1699, which did not prove satisfactory to the grantee of the deed. So, in 1715, Oct. 8th, Nicholas Cottrell made oath before a magistrate in Westerly, R. I., saying therein that he saw Daniel Stanton the grantor in the deed sign and seal the same, and that he, together with Mr. John Stanton, Mr. Samuel Stanton and Mrs. Anna Stanton, set their hands thereto as witnesses thereof. The proceedings was followed in a few days, to wit, Oct. 12, 1715, by an affidavit of Mr. Robert Stanton, before Nathaniel Chesebrough, a justice of the peace of Connecticut, testifying to his brother Daniel's handwriting, affixed to the deed, and to the possession of the land embraced therein by his brother, Thomas Stanton. These proceedings were doubtless instituted for the purpose of being used as evidence before the General Assembly of Connecticut in support of an application of Thomas Stanton the said grantee, praying for the confirmation of his said deed by the assembly, which ap-application was presented thereto and considered at its October session of 1715, as follows:

"Upon application made by Thomas Stanton, representing that Mr. Daniel Stanton, sometime of Stonington, deceased, having signed and sealed a deed bearing date in the year of our Lord 1681, conveying to him, the said Thomas Stanton, a certain tract of land containing sixty acres in quantity, lying in the limits of the town of Stonington aforesaid, bounded on the north by a small run of water adjoining to the land belonging to the said Thomas Stanton, on the east by Pawcatuck River, on the south by a small brook called the Hot House brook, and on the west bounded all along by the west side of the swamp out of which the northermost brook runneth; and that the said deed was lawfully witnessed. The said Daniel Stanton died before a lawful acknowledgement of it, prayed an act of the Assembly to supply that defect. It appearing to this Court that Mr. Samuel Stanton and Nicholas Cottrell made oath before Samuel Mason, assistant, Feb. 9, 1699, that they signed as witnesses thereto, and further the said Nicholas Cottrell made oath before Thomas Hiscox, Justice of Peace in Westerly, in the Colony of Rhode Island, Aug. 1, 1715, that he did verily believe that he saw Daniel Stanton, the subscriber to the aforesaid deed, sign and seal the same, and that he, together with Mr. John Stanton, Mr. Samuel Stanton and Mrs. Anna Stanton, set their hands thereto as witnesses, which was ordered to be endorsed and signed by the secretary. HEZEKIAH WYLLYS, Secretary."

"Be it thereupon enacted by the Governor, Council and Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the said deed be taken as good and effectual to all intents and purposes in the law as it might or could have been if the said deed had been acknowledged by the grantor as the law directs, and this act be indorsed upon the said deed, and shall be signed by the secretary and received as a good, sufficient testimonial of the authentication of the said deed."

"HEZEKIAH WYLLYS, Secretary."

Notwithstanding the pains taken by the grantees to authenticate this deed, it all failed to perfect the title thereof, for the reason that none of the parties in interest, either grantees or grantors, had the authenticated provisions of the local authorities or those of the General Assembly recorded in the Stonington land records, so the original deed of said premises did not vest the title of the land embraced therein in the grantee thereof, and the failure to have said proceeding regularly recorded in our land records for twenty years after the original deed, left the title thereof remaining in Daniel Stanton, and in case of his death in his heirs-at-law. All that is known of this family is that he had a son, Richard Stanton, Jr., who, with him, claimed the land his grandfather, Daniel Stanton, sold to Thomas Stanton, his brother, in 1681, on account of his said grandfather's, Daniel Stanton, failure to acknowledge the deed thereof to his brother, Thomas Stanton, and his failure to have all of the authenticated proceedings in confirmation of said property recorded. After an extended and exhaustive correspondence between Richard Stanton and his son, Richard Stanton, Jr., of Barbadoes, party of the first part, and Samuel Stanton, the son of the said Thomas Stanton of Pawcatuck, Conn., deceased, who lived upon and claimed the land in question at the time, of the second part, it was finally arranged between them that Samuel Stanton should give the said Richard Stanton, Sr., £46 for a quit-claim deed of all his interest in said tract of land. So, giving his son, Richard Stanton, Jr., a full and adequate power of attorney to transfer his title in said land to his cousin, Samuel Stanton, the said Richard Stanton, Jr., came to Stonington Feb. 12, 1736, and by virtue of said power conveyed the disputed premises to Samuel Stanton, fifty-five years after the execution of the original deed thereof to the said Thomas Stanton, by his brother, the said Daniel Stanton, who had other lands in Stonington given him by his honored father, in and by his last will and testament. One tract of 200 acres he sold to Capt. George Denison of Stonington, by a deed thereof executed in Barbadoes in 1682. Before Mr. Stanton went to the island of Barbadoes to reside he united with Mr. Alexander Pygan and Samuel Rogers of New London, and they together employed Mr. Joseph Wells, then of Westerly, but later on of the Mystic Valley, on the Groton side, to build them a vessel in 1681, called the "Alexander and Martha." The dimensions, but not the tonnage, stated in the contract are as follows: "The length to be 40 and one foot by the keel from the after part of the post to the breaking afore at the guardboard, 12 foot rake forward under her load mark, at least 16 foot wide upon the midship beam, to have 11 flat timbers and 9 foot floor, and the swoop at the cuttock 9 foot, and by transom 12 foot, the main deck to have a fall by the mainmast, with a cabin, and also a cook room with a forecastle." For payment the builder was to receive one-eighth of the vessel and £165, of which £16 was to be in silver money and the rest in merchantable goods, the spikes, nails and iron work were to be at the charge of the owners. After the vessel was launched, rigged and fitted for sea Daniel Stanton bought the builder's share thereof, as per the stipulations of the contract and annex. When the vessel had received her cargo, Mr. Stanton and his family embarked on board and went to Barbadoes in the vessel, where he continued to reside the remainder of his life. He opened a store there for the transaction of the Stanton Brothers' business which he successfully prosecuted. The said vessel continued to run between the West Indies and the trading store on Pawcatuck River, doing a successful business for several years. But the West Indies' climate did not agree with Mr. Stanton's health, which so impaired it that he did not live but a few years, dying before 1688, which fact we learn from his mother's will.

Robert Stanton (No. 9) m. Joanna Gardiner Sept. 12, 1677, daughter of Thomas and Lucy (Smith) Gardiner of Roxbury, Mass. He lived in Pawcatuck, Stonington, Conn., and d. Oct. 24, 1724.

NOTE.—Robert Stanton was a soldier in King Philip's war, as was his older brothers, Capt. John and Joseph Stanton. In 1676, Capt. George Denison, with a large company of subordinate officers and men, who were raised in New London county, went in pursuit of the remnant of King Philip's army, and while a portion of them, under the command of Canonchet, the last of the Royal Narragansett Sachems, were encamped on the banks of the Pawcatuck River in Rhode Island, they were attacked by the English, under Capt. George Denison, accompanied by some of the friendly Pequot and Mohegan Indians, when most of the Narragansett and Wampanoag Indians fled, leaving Canonchet almost entirely alone. As soon as he realized his situation, he too sought safety in flight. The Indian allies of the English and a few of the fleetest whites pursued him, and as he saw his pursuers were gaining on him he threw off his blanket, then his silver-laced coat and belt of peage, and ran with all possible speed, to escape from his enemies, and as he crossed the river ford he fell and wet his gun, which so embarrassed him in his flight that he was soon overtaken and surrendered to Robert Stanton, son of the Interpreter General Thomas Stanton, then not 22 years old. Being questioned by the young man, whom he personally knew, about a treaty of peace, between the English and Indians, and not wishing to recognize the authority of his youthful inquisitor, he looked upon him with lofty and defiant contempt, and said you are a child, you cannot understand matters of war; let your brother, Capt. John Stanton, or your chief, Capt. George Denison, come, then I will answer. But when the officers whom he had requested to see came up, he refused to enter into any negotiations with them, so he was brought a prisoner to Stonington, where a council of war was held, which he declined to recognize, and after his absolute refusal to enter into and abide by a treaty of peace with the English, who, after considering their defenseless conditions and his ferocious temper, he was condemned and ordered to be shot, and when told of his fate he said that "he liked it well, and should die before his heart had grown soft or he had said anything unworthy of himself," and so he was shot near Anguilla in Stonington.

NOTE.—John D., Daniel D., Benjamin F., 2d., Paul B. and Mason M., children of Benjamin F., and Maria (Davis) Stanton of Stonington after the death of their father associated themselves in a business partnership under the firm name of the Stanton Brothers, and as such became the proprietors of five large productive farms, which they jointly cultivated successfully through life, establishing a reputation for honorable dealing in all of their business intercourse with their fellow citizens, characterized with the strictest integrity and economical industry.

Their sister, Miss Maria, was so constituted as to be a controlling force in society. She was from early life a person of honest purpose and strong convictions, a Christian by profession, and, in fact, from the commencement of the Sunday school at the Road Church, she was a member, and continued so till her death. She was also an earnest and enthusiastic teacher for many years, and unfailing in her desire to serve in any capacity. The library, the church building and grounds about the church all bear witness to her love and zeal. She was deeply interested in missionary and temperance work, not only at home, but in the world at large. Her life was full of good works, the memory of which are an inspiration to go and do likewise.

SWAN FAMILY.

1. RICHARD SWAN, the emigrant ancestor and progenitor of the Swan family of Connecticut and Rhode Island, appears first on this side of the Atlantic Ocean in Boston, Mass., where he joined the church Jan. 6, 1639, and had one child, John, probably his youngest, baptized the Sunday after his admission. It is not certainly known when he came to New England, nor in what ship he came. His wife d. in England before he came to this country. Upon application he was dismissed with many others from the Boston church to join a church at Rowley, Mass. Soon after his discharge he removed his family to Rowley, where he remained during life, becoming a prominent citizen in that place, representing the town in the Massachusetts, General Court in 1666, and many years after. He served in King Philip’s war and expedition to Canada. He m. for his second wife Mrs. Ann Trumbull. She m. for her first husband Michael Hopkinson, who was buried Feb. 28, 1648; and for her second husband, John Trumbull in June, 1650, and for her third husband, Richard Swan March 1, 1658. John Swan (No. 16) m. Mrs. Susanna Wood Aug. 1, 1699, daughter of Philip Eastman and granddaughter of Roger Eastman. She m. Thomas Wood May 16, 1693. Thomas Wood and child, Susanna, were killed by the Indians March 15, 1697. They lived in Haverhill, Mass., until 1707, where three of their children were born. The following sketch of her heroism appears in the history of Haverhill, Mass.: "During the Indian war, when so many of the inhabitants of Haverhill were killed, the Indians attacked their house, which stood in the field now called White's lot, nearly opposite to the house of Capt. Emerson. Mr. Swan and his wife saw them approaching, and, determined, if possible, to save their own lives and the lives of their children from the knives of the ruthless butchers. They immediately placed themselves against the door, which was so narrow that two could scarcely enter abreast. The Indians rushed against it, but finding that it could not be easily opened, they commenced their operations more systematically. One of them placed his back to the door so that he could make his whole strength bear upon it, while others pushed against him. The strength of the besiegers was greater than that of the besieged, and Mr. Swan, being rather a timid man, almost despaired of saving himself and family and told his wife that he thought it would be better to let them in, but this resolute and courageous woman had no such idea. The Indians had now succeeded in partly opening the door, and one of them was crowding himself in, while the other was pushing lustily after. The heroic wife saw that there was no time for parleying; she seized her bake spit, which was nearly three feet in length, and a deadly weapon in the hands of the woman, as it proved, and collecting all the strength she possessed, drove it through the body of the foremost. This was too warm a reception for the besiegers; it was resistance from a source, and with a weapon they little expected, and, surely, who else could ever think of spitting a man? The two Indians thus repulsed immediately retreated and did not molest them again. Thus, by the fortitude and heroic courage of a wife and mother, this family was probably saved from a bloody grave.”

Mr. Swan and his family came to Stonington in the year 1707, locating himself on what is now known as Swan Town Hill, North Stonington, where the rest of his children were born. He d. May 1, 1743, aged 75; she d. Dec. 20, 1772, in the hundredth year of her age.

THOMPSON FAMILY NO. 2.

1. JOHN THOMPSON, in the year 1626, was living at "Little Preston," in the Parish of Preston Capes, Northamptonshire, England, with his wife Alice, and children. On the sixth day of November in that year, 1626, John Thompson made his will, signing his name to that form; both forms of spelling, with and without the "h" are, however, used indiscriminately in the body of the will, and on the parish register. When the eleventh of April 1627, came around, John Tompson was dead, and at that date his will was probated in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury. Alice was probably the second wife of John Thompson. The son Thomas, who is mentioned in his will, was, doubtless, a child of the first wife, and the eldest son, by reason of a better inheritance than the others received. Thomas probably remained in England. We do not know what date the widow with her children came to America, but previous to 1640 she was living at Roxbury, Mass. Probably it was there that the daughter Mary was m. to Rev. Richard Blinman of Gloucester, Mass. The Tompson family in their English home held a high position, their social status being next to that of the county families. Mistress Alice must have been a lady of character and refinement. Her success in bringing her children through all their troubles and so well preparing them for the duties of life which they assumed, testifies to this. She m. 2d, Robert Park (No. 1), that family.

MATTHEW WEST FAMILY.

From the New England Historical and Genealogical Register we find that the family of Wests as early as 1587 were at the village of Wherwell in Hants, three and one-half miles from Andover, near the trouting stream of "The Test" in Hampshire, England.

The Vicar of the parish of Wherwell having died, William West, Lord Lawarr or De La Warr (as it was later called) presented the place to Stephen Bachiler.

Later on in 1687, the will of William West of Eaton in Bucks County, mentions son Thomas West, with his son and daughter Thomas and Anna; also mentions his son, William West, deceased, who lived in Virginia and left son William and daughters, Margaret and Mary. His will also mentions brother, Francis West, with his sons Edward and William.

A Thomas West, Lord De La Warr, was the First Lord Governor and Captain General of Virginia in 1610.

A Francis West was Admiral of New England after 1607, and on Dec. 20, 1627, he was appointed Governor General to succeed Sir George Yeardly.

The name of Richard West, Lord Chancellor of Ireland, and the friend of free suffrage in America, should not be forgotten. He was appointed King's Counsel in 1717, and sat in Parliament in 1721. He m. Elizabeth, daughter of Bishop Burnet, and sister of Gov. Burnet of New York and Massachusetts. He lived in Dublin and d. Dec. 3, 1726, much lamented.

In 1633 Thomas West came to New England in the ship "Mary and John," and two years later John West, aged eleven years, Nathaniel West, aged fifteen, Thomas West, aged seventeen, and Twiford West, aged nineteen, came to New England, and may have been the sons of Thomas West, who came in 1633.

Also in 1635 Richard and John West came to Virginia from Gravesend. The similarity of names in all these families, Francis, William, Richard and John, show that they were the ancestors (though not here fully explained) of the families whose descendants came later to Stonington, viz.: Francis West, who m. Margery Reeves in 1639, and was at Duxbury in 1641, came to Preston and then to Stonington, and after removed to Tolland and many of the descendants went to Stockbridge, Mass.; also Matthew West, who was probably brother or cousin to Francis, as he was at Lynn in 1636 and at Newport in 1646. This Matthew West is the ancestor of the West family whose descendants lived in Stonington and Quiambaug.

WHEELER FAMILY.

1. THOMAS WHEELER, the ancestor of the Wheeler family of Stonington, Conn., and region round about, was doubtless of English origin, but the place of his birth and nationality are not certainly known, nor has the time of his migration to this country been ascertained, so as to associate him with any of the passengers of the early emigrant ships. The first knowledge that we have of him in this country is when he appears as a resident of the town of Lynn, Mass., in 1635, when and where he was elected constable, and held other official positions later on. In 1642 he was admitted to the privilege of a freeman of the commonwealth of Massachusetts, purchasing large tracts of land there, including a mill site, upon which he built and operated a saw and grist mill. During his residence in Lynn he m. Mary ———, a young lady of his acquaintance, whose family name is unknown, but our family traditions represent her as a woman of pleasing and attractive accomplishments, and in every way worthy of her liege lord; she graced her domestic duties with cheerful loveliness, filling his home with light and love. They were m. in 1645, and became the parents of three children.

CHILDREN:
2 ISAAC, b. in 1646, m. Martha Park.
3 ELIZABETH, b. in 1648, m. Josiah Witter (No. 2), Witter family.
4 SARAH, b. in 1650, m. June 1, 1671. This record is taken from the Diary of Thomas Miner, without the name of her husband, but it is believed for various reasons that her husband was Daniel Stanton (No. 7) of the Thomas Stanton family.

What induced our ancestor, Thomas Wheeler to leave Lynn, Mass., and sell out his business and real estate there, and take up his abode in the town of Stonington in 1667, is not fully understood, but whatever motive actuated him in coming this way it is plainly evident that he intended to make Stonington his final home. He was an intimate friend of Rev. James Noyes, who came to Stonington the same year that he did, and it has been supposed that the friendship between them was the cause of his coming. Be that as it may, there were men of his name that lived in the English home of the Noyes family, and crossed the ocean about the same year that he did. Thomas Wheeler was made freeman in the Connecticut Colony in the year 1669, and was nominated and elected one of the Stonington representatives to the Connecticut General Court in the year 1673. The next year his name appears among the immortal nine who organized the First Congregational Church of Stonington, June 3, 1674, and his wife, Mary Wheeler, was one of the partakers with the church in their first communion service. Soon after Thomas Wheeler and his wife came to Stonington to live, he and his son Isaac built them a residence in North Stonington, where Col. James F. Brown now resides, where they lived and died. Thomas Wheeler left a will, which was lost by being burned when the infamous Arnold burned the city of New London, Sept. 6, 1781. The existence of his will is proved by his descendants referring to it in later instruments conveying the real estate that belonged to him and given to them in his will. They are both buried in the old Whitehall burial place, situated on the east bank of the Mystic river. He d. March 6, 1686, aged 84 years, consequently he was b. 1602.

Isaac Wheeler (No. 2) m. Martha, daughter of Thomas and Dorothy (Thompson) Park, Jan. 10, 1667, by Thomas Stanton (No. 19), Park family. He served in the Colonial Indian wars. He d. June 5, 1712, aged 66 years; buried in Whitehall cemetery. She d. Feb. 14, 1717.

CHILDREN:

5 MARY, b. Nov. 22, 1668, m. Ebenezer Williams (No. 38), of that family.
6 MARTHA, b. Feb. 6, 1670, m. John Williams (No. 25), that family.
7 THOMAS, b. Dec. 1, 1671, d. at the age of 20 years. He was murdered by the Indians, under the supposed leadership of a chief known as the black sachem. Mr. Wheeler was away from home, out on a hunting excursion, traversing the forests of the town of Preston, and when near Quinebaug River he met a squad of Indians, who were hunting in the same region, who ordered him to clear out and leave the game to them, as they were the original owners of it. He refused to obey their orders, when they told him if he did not leave the game of the forest to them they would kill and scalp him on the spot. He bid defiance to their threats, when they attacked him with their tomahawks and scalping knives. He defended himself as best he could, and a terrible struggle ensued which resulted in his death, and that of five of the Indians.
8 ISAAC, b. Aug. 6, 1676, m. Mary Shepard.
9 ANNA, b. Aug. 20, 1675, m. John Tongue, son of George and grandson of George Tongue, Nov. 21, 1702.

Isaac Wheeler (No. 8) m. Mary Shepard, b. 1679, daughter of Rev. Jeremiah Shepard, first pastor of Lynn, Mass., and wife, Mary Wainwright, and granddaughter of the Rev. Thomas Shepard, first pastor of Cambridge, Mass., and third wife, Margaret Borodel, Sept. 8, 1647, sister of Ann Borodel, who m. Capt. George Denison, for his second wife. Isaac Wheeler erected him a house in Stonington, on lands given him by his grandfather, Thomas Wheeler, where he brought his bride on their wedding tour, and commenced life at farming. But his wife aspired to a more active business life, and to gratify her wishes he changed and enlarged his house, making it two stories on the south, and one on the north, with show windows on the west, which were utilized for a variety store, by Madam Wheeler, who became the leading merchant of the town, buying all of the surplus farm products of the region round about, which she sent to Boston and the West Indies for a market, exchanging the same for goods necessary for the planters of the town. She made equestrian trips to Boston alone, where she purchased her dry goods. She was not only the leading merchant of the town, but her mansion house was the centre of all the neighborhood families. Her store was not only a place of business, but a political center, where slates were made for all the offices of the town. She became wealthy, and at her death was the richest woman of the county. They both united with the First Congregational Church in 1771, and were active and useful members. He d. June 25, 1737; his widow d. Sept. 20, 1761, aged 83 years. They are buried in the graveyard west of Frank Mattison's present residence.

WITTER FAMILY.

WILLIAM WITTER, the first of this family of whom we have any certain knowledge, was evidently one of the early settlers of Lynn, Mass. He appears there in court in April, 1657. In his depositions he said that he was a farmer in Swampscot, Mass., which was a short distance from Nahant, Mass. The court proceedings to which he was a party at this time related to the title of the land upon which he had erected his then dwelling house. The contention was between him and an Indian, called Duke William, who claimed that his house site was the ground where his wigwam formerly stood. After a conference and compromise the affair was settled satisfactorily to both parties.

1 WILLIAM, b. in the year 1584, and d. in the year 1659, as his will is dated May 6, 1659, he was, therefore, 75 years old. He m. Annis, doubtless before he came to this country, and they became the parents of two children, viz.:

2 JOSIAH, b. ______.
3 HANNAH, b. ______, m. Robert Burdick, and 2d, Edmund Chamberlain, and she d. in 1696. Her father, William Witter, left a will which gave one-half of his estate to his wife and the other half to his son, Josiah Witter, simply giving his daughter Hannah an ewe and lamb, in one year after his death.

Josiah Witter (No. 2) m. for his first wife, Elizabeth (No. 3), daughter of Thomas and Mary Wheeler, in Lynn, Mass., Feb. 25, 1662, and soon after came to Stonington, Conn., to reside. He purchased large tracts of land and built him a dwelling house thereon, situated a short distance from the residence of Thomas Wheeler, his father-in-law, where he lived the remainder of his life, and where all of his children were born. The house was situated in what is now North Stonington, a short distance north of the present residence of Col. James T. Brown, which occupies the homestead site of Thomas Wheeler, born in 1602. The house was more recently occupied by James Irish, and before that owned by Jeremy Wheeler. Mrs. Elizabeth (Wheeler) Witter d. Aug. 5, 1672, and Mr. Josiah Witter m. 2d, Sarah Crandall, daughter of Elder John Crandall of Rhode Island, date not known. He d. before 1690, and his widow m. for her second husband Peter Button, and had four children, viz.: Peter, Mary, Matthias and Eliphal Button. Josiah Witter’s two sons, Ebenezer and John, after their father’s death, relinquished all their right, title and interest in and to their late father’s estate, by giving to the administrator thereof a receipt in full discharge in the year 1689. The son John Witter, also by his receipt, relinquished all right, title and claim against his mother, Mrs. Sarah Crandall Button, and her husband, Peter Button. After the death of his father, Mr. Ebenezer Witter moved to the town of Preston, Conn., where he became a prominent and useful citizen.

58 WILLIAM, b. March 16, 1759, m. Esther Breed (No. 62a), daughter of Dea. Nathan and Lucy (Babcock) Breed, date unknown, and moved with his family to Eastern New York State.

Ezra Witter (No. 25) while in a state of mental aberration, conceived the idea that his wife and children were alienated from him, which alienated him from them, in consequence of which he determined to end their existence and his own, and before his friends and neighbors suspected his purpose he succeeded in taking the lives of his wife and three oldest children, but before he consummated his determination to take the life of his youngest child, William Witter, and his own life, he was seized and bound by his friends, which had been attracted to the awful scene by the heartrending screams of his wife and children. Almost immediately after the consummation of this awful tragedy he became a raving maniac, followed by idiocy. During the remnant of his life his friends made an enclosure of timber in one of the rooms of his dwelling house, in which he was kept confined, until death ended all of his besetting horrors. His uncle, Joseph Witter (No. 24), was appointed guardian of the surviving son, William Witter (No. 58), who took him to Stonington, Conn., and by a proper business indenture bound him to Richard Wheeler in 1760, to live with him until he became 21 years of age, and to learn the farmers' occupation and weavers' trade, which he faithfully performed, growing up to manhood a model young man and subsequently becoming a prominent and useful citizen. He m., as told above, Esther Breed.

WOODBRIDGE FAMILY.

Rev. John Woodbridge, a follower of Wickliffe, b. not far from 1492, and his descendants by the name of John to the fifth generation, braved the dangers of the same faith. The fifth in succession was the Rev. John Woodbridge, pastor of a Puritan church in Stanton, Wilts, England. He was the father of the first

1. REV. JOHN WOODBRIDGE in America. The family on this side of the water has also been illustrious by a long line of ministers.

Rev. John Woodbridge (No. 1), b. 1613, bred at Oxford, but left the university and was brought to New England by his uncle, Rev. Thomas Parker, in company with his cousin, Rev. James Noyes, in 1634, and were some of the first at Newbury, Mass. He seems to have had but little tendency to preach, for in 1637, the same year his father died in England, he was made Surveyor of the Arms and Representative to the General Court. Afterwards he taught school in Boston. He was living in Newbury when his father-in-law, Gov. Thomas Dudley, stirred him up to seek advancement as a minister, and on Oct. 24, 1645, he was ordained as first minister at the new town of Andover. In 1647, he went to England and remained there sixteen years. He was employed while there as a minister and teacher, but returned to Boston July 27, 1663, and was engaged with his uncle Parker in the ministry for a few years, until some dissension arose in the church, when he was dismissed before 1670. He d. March 17, 1695. He m. in 1639, Mercy, daughter of Gov. Thomas Dudley, who was the son of Capt. Roger Dudley, b. in England in 1576, came to New England in 1630, was several years Governor of Massachusetts Colony, and d. at Roxbury July 31, 1653, aged 77 years. His first wife, or the one who came with him, d. in 1643. He m. again before 1645, and had five more children, four by the first wife, of which Mercy, the wife of Rev. John Woodbridge, was one; she was b. Sept. 27, 1621, and d. July 1, 1691, aged 70. Her sister, Patience, m. Maj. Gen. Daniel Denison, and so this family is connected and related to both Denison and Noyes, as the mother of this Rev. John was daughter of Rev. Robert Parker and sister of the wife of Rev. William Noyes of Choulderton, Eng. Through this name of Dudley comes the favorite baptismal name into the Woodbridge family.

35 JULIA, b. ——, and m. a Mr. Eddy.
June 20, 1635, there embarked on board the good ship “Philip,” Richard Morgan, master, forty-two passengers, who were to be transported from England to Virginia, in America. They had been previously examined by the minister of Gravesend as to their conformity to the orders and discipline of the Church of England and had taken the oath of allegiance.

1. JAMES YORK, SR., was one of the passengers of the good ship “Philip” in 1635, rated therein at the age of 21 years, consequently he was born in the year 1614. It is not known at what place in Virginia Capt. Morgan landed his passengers, or whether he landed them in that colony at all. If they were landed there, our James York did not remain there long. He doubtless soon after his arrival in this country, came north, whether by land or water, we do not know, but the first record we have of him is in Braintree, Mass.

James York, Sr., came to Stonington, Conn., in the year 1660, when this town was under the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, and called by the name of Southertown, and settled on grants of land which then included the present farm of Gideon P. Chesebrough, east of Anguilla or Wequetequock brook, also the farm of Erastus D. Miner and the Simon Rhodes place, now owned by Clark Chapman, and there he built him a dwelling house on the north side of the then Indian path, now known as the old Post road, where he lived the remainder of his life, dying in 1683, aged 69 years. His widow died in 1685.

James York (No. 1) m. Joannah ———, the family name of his wife is not known, neither the place of their marriage, but the date thereof must have been about 1637.

CHILDREN:

2 ABIGAIL, b. about 1638 or 1639; she m. John Beebe of New London, Conn; she d. March 9, 1725, aged 86 or 87 years. Their children were John, Benjamin and Rebecca Beebe. Rebecca Beebe married Richard Shaw of Easthampton.
JAMES, JR., b. June 14, 1648. He doubtless came to Stonington, Conn., with his father, when under age, for his name is mentioned in the town records several times before the date 1672, when Savage says, "He sold his estate in Boston, Mass., where he was engaged in business, and came to Stonington." For on the Stonington town records, under date of Jan. 15, 1667, "100 acres of land layed out to James York, Jr.," and he was also one of the men who received land grants for service in Indian wars. He was made a freeman in Connecticut in 1673, and died Oct. 26, 1676, and his widow m. for her second husband Henry Elliot, March 12, 1679.

Know Ye, That I James Babcock, son to John Babcock of the Town of Westerly in the Colony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, and King's Province & Deceased, who died Intestate. I being the rightful heir by law unto all my Father's inheritance, consisting of lands, doe by these presents declare that for and in consideration of the premises hereafter to be expressed, I doe covenant and agree with my loving, natural mother Mary Babcock to except of the one-halfof the Farm that we are now dwelling on, my part to begin at the west end of the farme and go to extend eastward until the complement be made by upon an equal division.

And also the value of a double portion of the moveable estate to be divided among my brothers, and the new dwelling house now standing upon the farme, I say, I doe except of what is aboved, in full satisfaction for my parte, or portion of my deceased father's estate. And doe further declare by these presents that I doe freely surrender up to my loving mother my whole right, title and interest unto all the rest of the lands, belonging to my deceased father, with all the privileges and appurtenances thereunto belonging, or any wise appertaining, to have and enjoy and dispose of as she shall see it meet during the term of her life or after her decease, provided, that she shall see it meet during the time of her life or after her decease, provided she shall dispose of it unto my father's male children, I say, given, granted and surrendered by me, James Babcock, from me, my heirs, assigns, forever, upon the condition aboved. In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and seals.

DISTRIBUTION OF ESTATE OF JOHN BABCOCK BY TOWN COUNCIL.

These are to certify all persons whom it may concern, that whereas John Babcock of the Town of Westerly, deceased without a will, whereby the care of the widow and orphans respecting the settlement of the deceased man's estate is by law commanded to the cognizance of the Town Council. We, therefore, who are the Commissioners appointed by the Towne, according to trust committed unto us, having taken an inventory of the deceased's persons estate and likewise finding a settled agreement between the widow and the eldest son, James Babcock, the son of John Babcock, respecting his own portion out of his deceased's father's estate, judge it meet to make no alteration of the said agreement. and likewise finding the remaining part of the moveable estate to amount to the sum of 790 pounds, 3 s. 0 pence, we do order and appoint unto the widow of the deceased John Babcock, the sum of 263 pounds, seven shillings and 8 pence for her part of the aforesaid sum, it being one-third part; and whereas there are nine children more, to wit: Ann Babcock, Mary Babcock, John babcock, Job Babcock, George Babcock, Elihu Babcock, Robert Babcock, Joseph babcock, Oliver babcock, we do order and appoint to the several children the sum of sixty seven pounds, two shillings and four pence for each child, out of the remaining parts of the aforesaid sum as they come of age.

And furthermore we doe by these presents, order, constitute and appoint, Mary Babcock, the widow of the deceased John Babcock, executrix of all the orphan's estate consisting of lands or cattle or houses or monies and whatsoever else valuable according to inventory. And likewise to charge care of the orphans, drawing their monies, and in case any one or more of the orphans die before they come of age, then his or their portion to be equally divided among those that survive; we doe hereby also order and appoint that the widow shall pay or cause to be paid the several legacies unto the children as is before expressed in the meantime To give in bonds to the Council for the performance thereof.

JOINTURE OF CAPT. GEORGE DENISON.

During the courtship of Capt. George Denison and wife Ann Borodell, he made a jointure which became a part of their marriage vows; their agreement in after years was fulfilled by Capt. Denison, as follows:

[Extract from 1st Book State Records, Vol. 1, Pages 273 and 274.]

This witnesseth that I, George Denison of Southerton, in Queenecticut Jurisdiction, in New England, for and in consideration of an Jointure due unto my now wife Ann Denison, upon marriage, and upon my former engagement, in consideration of the sum of three hundred pounds by me received, of Mr. John Borodell, which he freely gave to my wife, his sister Ann Denison, and I have had the use and improvement of, and for and in consideration of conjugal and dearer affection moving me thereto, have for the reasons above said, and for the only use and benefit of my said wife Ann Denison, her heirs, and assigns, and by these presents do fully and absolutely give, grant, alien, make over and confirm unto my brother Edward Denison, all that my farm, which, I now dwell upon, consisting of five hundred acres, more or less, as it lyeth at Mystic in Southerton upon the East side of Mystic River, together with all the housing that at present are, or hereafter may be raised upon the said farm, with the household furniture, together with all the fencing privileges, and appurtenances belonging to it, with all the stock upon that farm aforesaid, reserving only to myself there, my baldfaced mare and all my goats, and the present use and improvement of the said farm, housing household stuff, lands, stock, fencing, and privileges according to my pleasure during my natural life, to have and to hold the said farm, housing, lands, furniture, stock, and fences, with all the privileges and appurtenances for the only use of the said Ann Denison, under him the said Edward Denison his heirs and assigns forever, to his and their own proper use and behoof for the only benefit of the said Ann Denison, and the said George Denison, for himself, his heirs, executors and administrators, doth further covenant and grant to and with the said Edward Denison, his heirs and assigns, that he, the said George Denison, his heirs and executors, shall at all times forever hereafter warrant the said bargained premises, against all persons whatsoever claiming any right thereunto by from or under me. In witness hereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal. Dated according to a former deed of the same to my wife, May the third, One thousand six hundred and sixty-two. GEORGE DENISON, (Seal.)

THE WILL OF CAPT. GEORGE DENISON.

Stonington, Nov. 20, 1693.

I, George Denison of Stonington, in the county of New London and Colony of Connecticut in New England, being aged and crazy in body, but sound in mind and memory, and being desirous to make preparation for death, and to set my house in order before I die, I do, therefore, as it becometh a Christian, first, freely and from my heart, resign my soul, through Christ, into the hands of God who gave it to me, and my body to the earth from whence it came, and to be buried in decent manner by my executor and friends, in the hope of a joyful and glorious resurrection, through the perfect merits and mediation of Jesus Christ, my strong Redeemer.

And as concerning my outward estate, which the Lord hath still entrusted me with after all my just debts are paid, I give and dispose of as followeth: First, I give and bequeath unto my dear and loving wife, Ann Denison, my new mansion place, to wit, the house we live in, the barns and buildings, the orchards, and the whole tract of land and improvements thereon, as far as Mistuxet eastward, and it is bounded upon record, south, west, and north, except only thirty acres given to my son, John Denison, which is to lie on the south side next to Capt. Mason's, east of our field, and also one hundred pounds in stock, prised at the county price, all which is and hath been under our son William Denison's improvement and management for these several years to mutual comfort and content, which I do will and bequeath unto my said wife for her comfortable supply during her natural life.

And I give unto my said wife, all the household stuff that was and is properly belonging unto us, before my son William took the charge of the family, to be wholly at her disposal, to bequeath to whom she pleaseth at her death.

Unto my eldest son, John Denison, I have already given his portion, and secured to him by a deed of deeds, and I do also give unto him, his heirs or assigns, forever, a county grant of two hundred acres of land or two hundred pounds in silver money, which grant may be found on the General Court Records. Also I give unto him, my great sword and the gauntlet which I wore in the wars of England, and a silver spoon of ten shillings, marked G. & A. Unto my son, George Denison, I have formerly given a farm, lying and being at the northwest angle of Stonington bounds, and adjoining the ten mile tree of the said bounds, which farm contained one hundred and fifty acres, more or less, as also, the one half of a thousand acres of land, lying to the northward or northwest of Norwich, given to me as a legacy by Joshua the son of Uncas, the same time Mohegan sachem, the same land to be divided as may more fully appear in the deed, which I then gave him of both those tracts in one deed, signed and sealed with both my own and my wife's hand, and delivered to him and witnessed, and I have several times tendered to him to acknowledge it before authority, that so it might have been recorded according to the formality of law, the which he had wholly neglected or refused, and will not comply with me therein, and yet hath sold both those parcels of land and received pay for them; what his motive may be I cannot certainly divine, but have it to fear they are not good, nor tending to peace after my decease. Wherefore, to prevent further trouble, I see cause herein to acknowledge said deed, and to confirm those said parcels of land unto him, according to the date of said deed, and the conditions therein expressed, but do hereby renounce any other deed not herein expressed, the which two tracts of land before mentioned, with two Indian servants, to wit, an Indian youth or young man, and a woman, together with a considerable stock of neat cattle, horses, sheep and swine I then give him, and permitted him to have and carry with him, I do now confirm to him, the which was and is to be, the whole of his portion, I either have or do see cause to give him, and I give unto him twenty shillings in silver, or a cutlass or rapier, the which I leave to the discretion of my executors, to choose which of them to do.

Unto my son William Denison, I have formerly given him one hundred and thirty acres of land, be it more or less, to wit, all of the land to the eastward of Mistuxet brook which did originally belong unto my new mansion place, and is part of three hundred acres granted unto me by New London, as may appear upon record, and three hundreds of acres of land, lying and cutting upon the North boundary of Stonington, as may more fully appear upon record in Stonington, and the native right thereof, with some addition, confirmed to me by Oneco (as may more fully appear by a deed under his hand and seal, acknowledged before Capt. Mason, and recorded in Stonington. Also, I then gave him two Indian servants, viz., John whom I bought of the county, and his son Job, which was born in our house, together with one third part of stock which we have together, all which as aforesaid we formerly give unto my son William Denison by a former deed, unto our hands and seals, and I see just reason to confirm the same unto my son William in this my last will, that so I may take off all scruple or doubt respecting the said deed. Moreover I give unto my son William Denison, fifty acres of land, as it was laid out and dounded unto me by Stonington surveyors, and joins upon the before-mentioned three hundred acres, on south side thereof, cuts also upon lands belonging to my son John Denison, to be to him my said son William Denison, and his heirs forever. Also, I give unto my son William Denison, and his heirs forever, the one half of my allotment at Windham, to wit., five hundred acres of land, which is a part of a legacy given me by Joshua, the son of Uncas, the same time sachie of Mohegan, as may more fully appear upon the Court Records at New London, as also, upon that former experience we have had of his great industry and child-like duty in the management of all our concern, for our comfort and comfortable supply &c., it is therefore my will, and in confidence of his love, duty and wonted care of his loving mother, my dear wife, after my decease, I say, I do still continue him in the possession and improvement of my new mansion place, with the stock mentioned herein in my deed to my loving wife, he taking care of his said mother for her comfortable supply, with what may be neccessary for her comfort during her natural life, and do, or cause to be paid to his said mother, forty shillings in silver money yearly, or half-yearly, while she shall live, and at her decease, I fully and absolutely give and bequeath that my aforesaid mansion place, together with the stock mentioned before, unto my said son, William Denison and his heirs forever.

Also, I give unto my son, William Denison, my rapier, and broad buff belt, and tin cartridge box, which I used in the Indian wars, together with my long carbine, which belt and sword I used in the same service.

Unto my eldest daughter Sarah Stanton, as I have given her formerly her portion as I was then able, I do now give her ten pounds out of the stock as pay, and one silver spoon of ten shillings price, marked G. & A. Unto my daughter Hannah Saxton, as I have given unto her also, her portion as I was then able, so I do now give unto her ten pounds out of the stock, as pay.

Unto my daughter Ann Palmer, besides that I have formerly given her, I do now give her ten pounds out of the stock as pay.

Unto my daughter Margaret Brown, I have given already her portion, and give ten pounds out of the stock as pay.

Unto my daughter Borrodel Stanton, I have formerly given, and do now give her five pounds out of the stock as pay, and command it to my beloved wife, that at or before her death, she would give her silver cup, which was sent us from England, with brother Borrodel's name, J. B., under the head, to her.

Unto my grandson, George Denison, the son of my oldest son John Denison,
I give my black-fringed shoulder belt, and twenty shillings in silver money, toward the purchase of a handsome rapier to wear with it.

Unto my grandson, George Palmer, I give the grant of one hundred acres of land, which was granted unto me by the town of Stonington, not yet laid out, or forty shillings out of my stock, as pay, at the discretion of my executor to choose which. And whereas there is considerable rent due me for a house of my wife in Cork, in Ireland, which was given unto her as a legacy by her father, John Borrodel, at his death, and no doubt may appear upon record in Cork, which house stands upon lands which they call Bishop's land, and was built by our said father, he to have lived in the same, whereof my said wife was next to himself, as may also appear there upon record; and whereas I have a right to land in the Narragansett country, which is mine by deed of the native right from the true proprietors thereof, as may appear upon rec-dord in Boston, and in the records of Stonington, the which, my rights, have been and are under the possession and improvement of those who have no just right to them, to which by reason of the many troubles, woes and difficulties which have arisen, together with our remoteness, we have not been able to vindicte our just rights, but have been great sufferers thereby; but if it please God to send peaceable times, and our rights be recordable in law, I do by this my last will, give and bequeath my said right unto my sons John Denison and George Denison, to be equally divided betwixt them, provided that they each one bear their equal share in the trouble and recovery of the same. Provided, also, that my son George Denison, do relinquish and deliver up any right he may pretend unto by a former deed which I gave him of the one half of Achagromeconsist, according as I formerly obliged him to do in a deed I gave him of the other farm, and gave him upon that consideration. And in reference with Nathaniel Beebe, who hath been a retainer and boarder in our family between thirty and forty years, and for his board at our last reckoning, which was March 20th, 1680, he was indebted to me forty-six pounds six shillings and three pence, I say £46, 6s. & 3d. as may appear under his hand to said account in my book, since which time he hath boarded in the family near upon fourteen years, which at four shillings and sixpence the week, amounts to one hundred and sixty three pounds, sixteen shillings, out of which I do give unto Nathaniel Beebe, fifty pounds, in way of gratification and satisfaction for his love to me and my children and officers of love shown unto myself and any of them, in mine or their sickness or weakness, which fifty pounds must be deducted from the one hundred and sixty three pounds, sixteen shillings, and the remainder will be one hundred and thirteen pounds, which one hundred and thirteen pounds, sixteen shillings, together with the forty-six pounds, six shillings and three pence due upon book, under his hand, at our last reckoning as aforesaid, being added unto one hundred and thirteen pounds, sixteen shillings, the whole will be £160, 2s. 3d. the which I give unto my son William Denison, and his heirs forever, for him or them or any of them, or if they cause to demand, receive and improve as their own proper estate.

Also, I give unto my son William Denison, all and singular, whatsoever that belongeth unto me, not already disposed of, to be to him and his heirs forever, whom also I do hereby constitute, appoint and make my sole executor, to pay all just debts, if any shall appear of which I know not any, and to receive all dues which either are or shall be due to me, and to pay all legacies according to this my will, within twelve months after my wife's decease, and to take care for my decent burial. But in case my son William Denison shall decease before he hath performed this my will, or before his children are of age, then my will is that the whole estate be under the improvement of his wife, our daughter-in-law Sarah Denison, during the time of her widowhood, for her comfortable supply, and the well educating and bringing up their children in religion and good learning; all which she shall do by the advice of the Reverend and my loving friend Mr. James Noyes, my son John Denison and my son-in-law, Gershom Palmer, them or any two of them, if three cannot be obtained; but without advice she may not act, which three my dear friends, I do earnestly desire and hereby appoint as overseers for the children, and to take effectual care that this my will may be performed according to the true intent thereof; but if my said daughter-in-law shall marry again, then this whole estate do fall into the hands of my overseers, and by them to be secured for my son William Denison's children, to wit, William Denison, George Denison and Sarah Denison, and by those overseers to be improved for their well bringing up as aforesaid, and faithfully to be delivered unto the children as they shall come of age, to wit: the males at twenty-one years of age, and the females at eighteen; and if any of the said children should die before they come of age, the survivors shall inherit the same, and if they should all die before of age, (the which God forbid, but we are all mortal), then it is my declared mind and true intent of this my will that my grandson George Denison, the son of my eldest son John Denison, shall be the sole heir of that estate, out of which he shall pay unto his four brothers, to wit, John Denison, Robert Denison, William Denison, and Daniel Denison, ten pounds apiece in current pay, and also ten pounds in current pay unto his cousin, Edward Denison, the son of my son George Denison; and in token that this is my last will and testament, I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 24th day of January, in the year of our Lord, one thousand six hundred and ninety-three-four.

GEORGE DENISON. (Seal.)
APPENDIX.

DEED.

To all People to whom these presents shall come, William Denison, Jr., of Stonington, in ye County of New London, in ye Colony of Connecticut, sendeth Greeting: Know ye, that I William Denison abovesd. with the consent of Mary, my wife, for and in consideration of ye sd. full and just sum of thirty pounds of current money (silver) of New England to me in hand well and truly payed by John Smith of Preston, in ye County and Colony abovesd. the reason whereof I acknowledge myself fully satisfied, contented and paid and of every part and parcel thereof, do exonerate and acquit and discharge him the abovesd. John Smith, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns forever, I ye sd. William Denison do therefore by these presents do fully, freely, clearly and absolutely give, grant, bargain, sell, alienate, enfeoff, make over and confirm from me, my heirs and assigns forever unto ye sd. Smith, his heirs, executors and assigns forever a certain parcel of upland and swamp land in estimation, three score acres, scituate and lying within ye Township of Stonington as it is butted and bounded, beginning at the southeast corner at an ash tree, by a brook and from thence running northerly fifty-four rods to a horn beam tree marked on four sides standing by sd. brook, thence running east to a white oak tree marked and keeping the same course until it comes to Elihu Chesebrough’s line, thence running south 54 rods to a white oak tree marked on four sides, thence running west 8 score rods to ye tree first mentioned. To Have and To Hold, possess and enjoy all and singular every part and parcel thereof to ye sd. William Denison, his heirs, executors and assigns forever, with all the rights, privileges, appurtenances hereunto belonging or any wise appertaining thereunto belonging or any wise appertaining of wood, timber, stones, rocks, mines, minerals, herbage and water and water courses, and that I ye sd. William Denison, on ye day of ye date hereof have full power and lawful authority to give, grant, bargain, sell, alienate, enfeoff and confirm all ye above bargained premises in manner and form as above mentioned, to ye sd. Smith, his heirs and assigns forever, so that he and they shall and may forever hereafter peaceably and quietly possess and enjoy the same free and clear and freely and clearly acquittted and discharged of and from all and all manner of gifts, grants, bargains, sale, lease, mortgage, executions, doweries, jointures, entail, entanglements or all other acts of incumbrances whatsoever had made or done or suffered—by me ye sd. William Denison or any other person, or persons, —— and I ye said William Denison do by these presents bind myself—executors, administrators or assigns for us to defend ye above bargained premises against all manner of person or persons whatsoever lawfully claiming ye sd. lands.

In witness whereof I have set my hand and affix my seal this the 23rd day of May, one thousand seven hundred and nine, 1709.

WILLIAM DENISON.

JOHN SMITH,
WILLIAM DENISON.
WILL OF MAJOR ISRAEL HEWITT.

In the name of God, AMEN. The 18th day of March, A. D. 1776. I, ISRAEL HEWITT, of Stonington, in the Co. of New London and Colony of Conn. in New England, being in a measure of health, and of sound mind and memory, and in the free exercise of my reason, Knowing that it is appointed unto man once to die, and calling to mind my own mortality, do make and ordain this my last Will and Testament. That is to say, principally and first of all, I give and recommend my soul to God, that gave it and my body I submit to the earth, to receive a christian burial, at the discretion of my executors, herein-after mentioned, hoping to receive the same again through the merits of Christ at the resurrection of the just. And touching such worldly estate as it has pleased God to bless me with, I give and dispose of the same, after my just debts are paid, out of my moveable estate by my executors in form and manner following: Imprimis, I give and bequeath to my beloved son, Israel Hewitt, the farm and buildings, and all the appurtenances thereof, where I now live, viz., all that land that was given to me by my honored father, Benjamin Hewitt, deceased, as by deed on record appears, also all that land and the appurtenances thereof that I bought of my brother, Henry Hewitt, as by deed on record may appear. Also, ten acres of the land which I bought of Mr. Henry Stevens, being the north part of the land that was formerly Mr. Thomas Hewitt’s, deceased, said ten acres are bounded, beginning at the north-west corner of said land which was the dividing line between said Thomas Hewitt and Benjamin Hewitt, deceased, and is at the southwest corner of a small orchard, thence running southerly as the fence now stands, so far as to include ten acres, thence easterly to lands that was formerly Samuel Utley’s, thence northerly, to the north east corner of Thomas Hewitt’s land, and is the south east corner of Walter Hewitt’s land, thence westerly to the bounds first mentioned, bolding the same width at the east end as at the west. Only reserving ten acres of the land which my said father gave me, which he bought of Mr. Thomas Rose, lying at the west end of said tract, and on the west side of an old rye field, being woodland, to be laid out in a handsome form with a convenient cart-way to said wood-land, which ten acres reserved as above, I give and bequeath to my son, Charles Hewitt, To him and to his heirs forever, with agrees and regress, and reserving one half acre of land westward of my house where I now dwell, in the orchard and where my late wife, Ann Hewitt, and my brother, Benjamin Hewitt, and his wife, Ann Hewitt, deceased, were buried, which half acre reserved as above I give and bequeath for a burying place, for the family of the Hewitt’s, so long as any of the name remain. Item—I give to my said son, the one half part of my house, and land in the Neck which I bought of Col. Amos Cheesbrough, deceased, and the one half of all the appurtenances thereof to be divided by judicious free-holders, according to quantity and quality and also the one half of a bed and furniture in said house, and also my silver sword and belt, all the above I give my said son, Israel Hewitt, to him and his heirs forever, except the ten acres of land and the half acre above reserved, and is to be the whole of his portion of my estate.

Item.—I give to my beloved son Rufus Hewitt and to his heirs forever, the farm, buildings and all the appurtenances thereof where he now lives, namely, all the land and appurtenances thereof, which I bought of Joseph Ayers of said Stonington, as by deed from him on record may appear; also all the land and appurtenances thereof which I bought of Richardson Avery, of said Stonington, as by two certain deeds from him on record may appear, and also my clock, and this to be the whole of his portion of my estate. I give and bequeath to beloved son, Charles Hewitt, to him and his heirs forever, the farm and buildings and all the appurtenances thereof, where he now lives, viz., which I bought of Capt. Joseph Hewitt, as by deed from his on record appears, also all the land and appurtenances thereof, which I bought of Henry Stevens, Jr., as per deed from his on record appears; also the remainder of the land which I bought of Henry Stevens, and also all the land which I bought of John Frink and Nicholas Frink and Samuel Utley, late of said Stonington, deceased, bounded as by deed from each of them may appear; also I give to my said son, Charles Hewitt, and to his heirs forever, the other half part of my house and the land in the Neck, and the one half of all the appurtenances thereof according to quantity and quality which I bought of Col. Amos Chesebrough deceased, to be divided by judicious freeholders as before, setting to Charles the south part and also one half the bed and furniture that is now in said house; also I give to my son Charles, and to his heirs forever, the land in the Neck, which I took a deed of from Mr. Nathaniel Palmer, containing about ten acres more or less, bounded as it has been divided by my sons Israel and Charles; also I give to my son, Charles, my best saddle and my gun or firelock, and my shot mould, this to be the whole of his portion of my estate. Item.—I give and bequeath to my beloved granddaughter, Ann Hewitt, ten pounds of lawful money, to be paid to her by my son, Israel Hewitt, within three months of my decease and also ten pounds lawful money to be paid by my son, Israel Hewitt in horses, cattle, sheep or swine as she shall choose within three months after my decease which ten pounds of lawful money and ten pounds in live stock as above, when paid shall be considered and allowed as so much paid on a certain note of hand, which I have upon my son Israel, said live stock shall be appraised by indifferent judicious men; also I give to my said Granddaughter Ann, all of my household goods or indoor moveables that are not already disposed of excepting four silver spoons, together with her grandmother's and her own natural mother's wearing apparel, this to be the whole of her portion of my estate. Item.—I give to my two granddaughters, Ann Ledyard, wife of Col. William Ledyard of Groton, and Amy Stanton, wife of Job Stanton of Stonington, a certain house lot or piece of land which I bought of Mr. John Hallam, lying on the west side of Stonington harbor and near to Capt. Israel Wodin's house, and lot containing one quarter of an acre, be it more or less, as by a deed of record may appear, said lot of land or the money which it shall be sold for to be equally divided between my two said granddaughters, Ann and Amy. I also give to my said granddaughters Ann and Amy four silver spoons, reserved as above to be equally divided between them, and is to be the whole of their portion of my estate.

I give to my beloved wife, Mary Hewitt ten pounds of lawful money, to be paid her by my son Israel Hewitt, in one month after my decease, also I give her my negro man servant, named Cato, or the money which he shall be sold for, if she sees cause to sell him, and she the said Mary, is to occupy and improve the west lower room in my now dwelling house and the north west bedroom, adjoining to the said west lower room and the east great chamber, together with such privileges in the kitchen as she shall need. All the above rooms to be improved by said Mary, for twelve months after my decease, if she sees cause to tarry so long; and I order my executors hereafter mentioned to provide and supply the said Mary Hewitt with a sufficiency of all kinds of provisions for her table, suitable for a person of her estate and condition, and to keep her riding beast well, both provision and keeping said beast as above to continue for twelve months after my decease or for so much of that time as she shall choose to tarry in my house. All of which I give to my said wife Mary Hewitt above and besides what she is to receive out of my estate, by virtue of a jointure or covenant made between me and the said Mary Hewitt dated Dec. 8th, 1773, which jointure or covenant is to be paid or fulfilled by my son Israel Hewitt, out of that part of my estate which I have as above ordered and given to him. Item.—Notwithstanding what is above mentioned particularly with respect to my household goods or indoor moveables, my will is that all my wearing apparel shall be to my two sons, Rufus and Charles Hewitt, to be equally divided between them, and also it is my will that my pew in the meeting house where the Rev. Mr. Joseph Fish officiates shall be to my two sons, Rufus and Charles Hewitt, to each an equal privilege. Finally,—I do hereby nominate, constitute and appoint my three beloved sons, Israel Hewitt,
HISTORY OF STONINGTON.

Rufus Hewitt and Charles Hewitt, to be my executors to this my last will and Testament, utterly revoking and disannulling all other and former wills by me made, hereby ratifying and confirming this and no others to be my last Will and Testament.

In witness whereof I do hereby set my hand and seal.

WILL OF THE REV. JAMES NOYES.

To all Christian people, Greeting: Know ye that I being sensible that days are upon me, and that in duty I am concerned to justly settle my estate upon my deare wife and children for their support and comfort when I shalldie, which great change I have no reason to be preparing for, I being at this time in good health, and perfect understanding, Doe first will and believing I bequeath my Soul to God, that gave it, and humbly and firmly relying upon my Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, for Life, righteousness and Eternal Salvation, and also hereby order my body to be decently buried in a lively hope of a glorious resurrection at the last day, by my Executrix or Executors without any great expense; unto my deare and loving wife I have and do hereby will and bequeath a third part of the profits of the farm I now live on, and the keeping winter and summer six cows, she shall choose out of my stock and their calves they shall have yeary, until their calves they shall have yeary be a year old, and two mares and their colts, until their colts shall be a year old. And I give and bequeath unto my loving wife, One half of the house, I now live in, with one of the cellars and one of the ovens, and two beds and their furniture, as bed-steads, and curtains, And all the household stuff and utensels, belonging to the house, except Seven pounds of household stuff within doors which I give my loving son, Thomas. Also I give my wife my sheep, and son Thomas must winter fourteen sheep yearly for my wife, and she must have three or four Swine to run on the farm, for her use. Also I give to my loving wife my bees, only I give one Stock of bees to my son Thomas if there be two, and my wife must have a garden, of some rod square, Sufficient, for a garden near the house, where she shall choose. Also I give my wife, after my debts are payed, my stock of neat cattle, not particularly disposed of. And son Thomas shall find my wife fire-wood and a boy if need be to goe to mill and on errands for her. The moveables above given, I give my wife, forever, the other profits and privileges I only gave my wife during her natural life. If my wife marrie I only give her the third of the profits of the farm whilst she lives, I now live on, and two beds and furniture and a third of the household stuff left to her and six cows, the other estate is to be divided amongst my children to help those that have least, by this will. It is to be understood I dispose not of those horse-kind and cattle, my wife calls her own, which are known to some of the children, but have them as her own proper estate to be disposed of by her as she sees cause. Also some cattle which are Anna Treat's, I dispose not of. Moreover, I give to my beloved wife and loving son, Joseph Noyes (my Executor as after mentioned), all estate I have not mentioned in this will. Unto my loving son James Noyes, I give and bequeath the farm he now lives on, with all appurtenances thereof called Muxquita Neck, to be his and his heirs forever, lawfully begotten of his body, together with what I have already given him of stock and other things, which farm I give to son James with this provision, that my son James pay three hundred and fifty pounds, and the use thereof which is yet due to Mr. John Gardner or his heirs or assigns according to the tenor of a mortgage I have given to Mr. Gardner, as was just I should to get money to pay to James Noyes, his honest debts, which were of thirty pounds or thereabouts, and I having with son James this knowledge and consent mortgaged one half of the farm to J. Gardner, I having full power so to do, I having never given him, sd James Noyes, a deed of his farme, and it being done with sd James his consent and to pay his just debts. Also I having been forced to sell a hundred and fifty pounds' worth of land in money and twenty pounds worth of Land unto Mr. John Chandler of Woodstock, which lands on the north of them, I allotted to be my son Joseph Noyes', his or part of his portion from me, I having paid said James' debts, faithfully putting myself to considerable charge and trouble, to pay sd James his debts, as appears on a paper of account what I paid and upon receipt from the Creditors I am necessitated to oblige and doe hereby oblige firmly son James Noyes to pay to my son, Joseph Noyes, one hundred and seventy pounds in New England silver money, at fifteen penniweight or bush of credit, I say I hereby oblige my son James Noyes, him, his heirs or assigns, to pay as above said, a hundred and seventy pounds to Joseph Noyes, his heirs and assigns, or otherwise if son James Noyes fail of the above said, I doe hereby order my son James Noyes, his heirs or assigns, to set out as much of the land as will pay said Joseph Noyes, a hundred and seventy pounds as above said. the land to be prized and set out by indifferent men. mutually chosen if they do not otherwise agree themselves, and this to be done within two years of the date thereof, if it be not done before that time. Also my son James Noyes owing two debts more that I have reason to take care that they should be payed out of son James, his estate, viz., About ninety six pounds, to her that was Mrs. Heath, I hear now Mrs. Burroughs, and to Mrs. Mary Cole of Newport, about thirty pounds and some use, as appears on a bond as I am informed, I doe hereby order my Executrix, Executors or Executor to see that those debts be honestly payed out of my son James, his estate, Or if need be out of the land of Muxquita Neck; unto my loving son Thomas Noyes, I give and bequeath, the farm I now live on with all the housing thereon the condition above said. viz., All my land on the East of the mill brooke and west of the brook according to the true boundaries thereof, viz., the land I bought of Mr. Willis, the land I bought of Mr. Samuel Richardson and the land I bought of Mr. Samuel and Elisha Chesw bough to be his and his heirs lawfully begotten of his body, After my wife's death or before my wifes death the housing and appurtenance and all the utensil aforesaid, as the cart, plows, chains, axes, hoes or any other utensil whatsoever of that nature and one hive of bees at least. Unto my son John, I give and bequeath my land at the wares, upland and meadow, the house and all the appurtenances thereof, the whole farm according to the true boundaries thereof, and my piece of meadow lying by the upland, a small creek compassing it southward, and a great creek northward, according to the boundaries on record. And my four acres of Salt meadow at the point according to the true boundaries on record.

Also I do give and hereby bequeath to my son John and his heirs a piece of swamp meadow lying on a brook northward of Joshua Holm's house, according to the boundaries appearing on the Record, he hath a bed and bedding and Stock already.

Unto my son Joseph Noyes, I give and bequeath all my books at home (except English Bibles and small English books which are of common use in the family) which I leave to my loving wife to dispose of as she pleaseth.

Also I give son Joseph, all my books at Lyme in my brother Moses custody. Also I give unto my son Joseph and bequeath seventy acres of land laid out to the Volunteers whether it be upland or meadow, to be sold Joseph Noyes, his, his heirs forever. The records will show the bounds thereof at New London. I leave my wearing clothes unto my son Treat and give two cows amongst my son Treat's children. Also it is always provided, that notwithstanding I have given son James, Maxquita Neck, Thomas the farm I live on, and son John his farm, that they shall not sell the farms they live on without the consent of my Executrix or Executors, whilst they live.

And I do hereby make my deare and loving wife my Executrix, and Capt. Nathan Chesebrough, my son Joseph Noyes, joynt Executors with my wife, to execute and fulfill faithfully this my last will and Testament, making void any former wills or Testaments.

Witness my hand and seale affixed November 12th, 1716. The word (settle) in the second line, and in the eleventh line, the words (until their calves) are so cancelled; and in the sixteenth line the word (winter) interlined. In the three and fortieth line the words (worth of lend) interlined, and in the three and fiftieth line the word (Order) interlined. In the six and hundredth line, some words are blotted out.

WILL OF CAPT. THOMAS NOYES.

In the name of God, Amen, The tenth day of Feb. in the Twenty-eighth year of the reign of George the 2nd, King of Great Britain, Anno que Domini, 1755.

I, Thomas Noyes, of Stonington in the County of New London, in the Colony of Connecticut in New England yeoman. Being of perfect mind and memory, thanks be given to God, and calling to mind the mortality of my body, knowing it is appointed for all men to die, Do make and ordain this my last will and Testament in the following manner, and form. That is to say, I resign my soul to God, that gave it, when it shall please him to call for it, to be redeemed, by his Son Jesus Christ, to be sanctified by his Spirit and made meet for Heaven, and my body I recommend to the earth to be therein buried in Christian decent burial at the discretion of my Executors, nothing doubting but it will be raised again at the Resurrection of the Just, being glorified by the mighty power of God. And as touching my worldly estate, wherewith it hath pleased God, of his goodness to bless me in this life, I give, demise and dispose of the same in the manner and form following:

Imp. I give to my dearly beloved wife, Elizabeth, the use of all my household stuff during her life, and my slave called Peter, and the profit of one-third part of my real estate, and also the one half of my dwelling house, and cellar which half she shall choose during her natural life. Item I give to Mary Noyes, the widow of my son Thomas Noyes, late deceased, one hundred pounds in bills of credit as they now pass, and I also give to the three sons of my sd. son Thomas Noyes, decd. namely, Thomas, William and Nathan, to each of them, one hundred pounds, in bills as aforesaid, to be paid to them at one year's end after my decease, their sd. father having had the estate that came by his mother.

Item. I give and bequeath to my son James Noyes, and to his heirs and assigns forever, all the lands I have lying in Stonington, aforesaid, except the little pasture lying north of ye country road adjoining to Capt. John Denison's land. He my son James paying three thousand pounds in bills of credit as it now passes in old tenor, to my Executors in one year after my decease. I also give to my sd. son, James, the one half of my dwelling house, during the life of my sd. wife, and after her decease I give the whole of my sd. house to him, his heirs and assigns forever.

Item. I give to my beloved son, Sanford Noyes, during his natural life, the use of one half of my house and cellar and the use and improvements of one hundred and sixty acres of land, all lying in Westerly in the Colony of Rhode Island, to be set out to him, off of my farm, in sd. Westerly, in such manner as that it may be reckoned alike for quality of goodness with the rest of sd. farm, in proportion, and when my sd. son Sanford dies, if he leaves a child or children, begotten in wedlock, by a present or future wife, my will is that ye sd. one hundred and sixty acres of land shall be settled upon his sd. children or child in manner and form as the laws in that Colony do settle Intestate Estates, and if my said son Sanford, doth die leaving no lawful issue as aforesaid, my will is that sd. one hundred and sixty acres of land shall be to my son Joseph Noyes, his heirs, administrators paying to each of his sisters that shall be then living the sum of one hundred pounds in money, or bills of credit as it now passes, and also paying the sum of one hundred pounds of like money to the children of each of his sisters that shall be then dead, to be equally divided among them.

Item. I give and bequeath to my beloved son, Joseph Noyes, to his heirs and assigns forever the other half of my house and cellar, in Westerly, aforesaid, and all the residue of my land, lying in the sd. town of Westerly, the barn and other buildings now standing thereon being his own already.

Item. I give to be equally divided between my sons all my wearing apparel, and my utensils belonging to husbandry.

Item. My will is that my debts and funeral charges be paid out of my moveable estate by my Executors and when that is done, my will is, that two thirds of my moveable estate and two thirds of my money and two thirds of the debts due to me by book, bond or otherwise, shall be equally divided or distributed by my Executors to and among my beloved daughters or their children, viz., Elizabeth Palmer, Dorothy Palmer, Mary Billing, Rebecca Denison, Abigail Hallam, Ann Frink and Bridget Denison. That is to say, to divide or distribute among them or their children if they or any of them be dead, as that including what I have already given them at their marriage or at other times as may appear by my memorandum papers, and what I now give them by will, they may all be made equal.
HISTORY OF STONINGTON.

Item. My will is and I hereby order my son James Noyes, at two years after my decease, to pay or distribute equally among all my daughters aforesaid and the children of them my sd. daughters that are or shall be then dead, the sum of one thousand pounds in bills of credit of the old tenor, as they now pass, or other money equivalent thereto, so that each daughter my be equal sharer in sd. thousand pounds.

Item. I give and bequeath to the children of my daughter, Rebecca Denison, decd. and to their heirs and assigns forever, a small pasture, being the northwest part of my farm in Stonington, aforesaid, lying on the north side of the Country Rhoad, joyning to Capt. John Denison's land, this to be accounted towards making their mother equal with her sisters, as aforesaid.

Lastly. I hereby constitute and ordain my beloved wife, Elizabeth Noyes, Executrix, and my sons James Noyes and Joseph Noyes, Executors, of this my last will and Testament, hereby disallowing and revoking and making void all other former wills by me in any wise made. Ratifying this and no other to be my last Will and Testament, and they only my Executors. In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal the day, month and year first above written.

WILL OF DANIEL SMITH (No. 2 in Smith Family).

I, Daniel Smith of Watertowne, in ye Countie of Middlesex, being very sick and weake in my bodie and daily looking when my leavingshall be, yet through ye mercie and goodness of God I am in my understanding and memorie sound, and doe declare this to be my last will and testament as followeth: I return my spirit unto God yt gave it and my bodie to the earth from whence it was taken to be decently buried at ye discretion of my executor, hoping at the last day to have a glorious resurrection both of bodie and soule through ye merits of ye Lord Jesus Christ.

I give unto my deare and loving wife, my whole — both houses and lands and moveables for her comfort and maintenance and ye bringing up of my children so long as she shall continue a widdow after my decease, but if she shall see reason to marrie again, then my will is, she shall enjoy the thirds of ye yearly income of my lands and that onely.

I give unto my two eldest sons, namely Danieill Smith and John Smith, after my wives decease or marriage, my houseing, both dwelling house and barn with all my lands both medow and upland equally to them and their heirs forever. They paling out of them as is after expressed and if eighter of them die before they attainted to ye age of one and twentie years, then my will is that my third son, namely, Joseph Smith, shall enjoy the part and proportion of him that dies as before and if all my three some doe live, then my will is that my son Joseph, abovesaid, shall have an equal portion with his eldest brethren to be paid him out of my houses and lands, but not in house and land. I give unto my oldest son Danieill Smith abovesaid my horse and armes and furniture for ye horse with all my wearing cloath both linen and woolen. My will is that my moveable estate after my wives decease or marriage be equalie divided among all my daughters and what my mother's will and mind was to bestow upon any of my daughters my will is yet it should be performed without any alteration.

And I doe nominate and appoint my deare and loveing wife to be sole executrix to this my last will and testament and doe earnestly desire my good friends, John Bisco and William Bond, Sr., to be overseers of this my will to be helpfull to my wife in her desolate condition in ye performance of this my will and in looking after my children, and as a confirmation of this my will I have set to my hand this one and thirtieth of May, sixteen hundred eighty and one.

DANIELL SMITH,

WILL OF JOHN SMITH (No. 5 Smith Family).

In the name of God, Amen——the fourth day of March, 1729-30.

I, John Smith of North Stonington, in ye County of New London, being very weak of body but of perfect mind and memory, thanks be given to God for it. Therefore calling to mind the mortality of my body and that it is appointed for all men once to die, Doe make and ordain this my last will and Testament that is to say, First of all I Recommend my Soul unto the hands of God that is, and my body I Recommend to ye earth to be buried at ye discretion of my executors nothing doubting but at ye general Resurrection I shall receive the same again by ye mighty power of God. And as touching such worldly Estates wherewith it hath pleased God to Bless me with all here in this life, I give and dispose of ye same in ye following manner and form:

Imprimis.——I give and bequeath unto Susannah my dearly beloved wife ye east end of my dwelling house, half my barn and ye one half of all my housings, with all my moveables excepting sixty pounds thereof (and what my estate is in debt) during the time she continue my widow, but if she marries again then to have but one third part of ye moveables above sd. during her natural life and then to be divided equally amongst my three daughters or their heirs. I give unto my loving son Daniel my homestead with all the buildings thereupon excepting as above given, he paying unto my son Josiah, 80 pounds money within two years after my death and five shillings to my son Ephraim. I give unto my loving son Ephraim, 5 shillings money to be paid by my Executors whichtogether with what I have formerly given him is ye full of his portion. I give unto my loving son Josiah 80 pounds money to be paid by my Executors within two years after my death which together with what I have already given him is ye full of his portion out of my estate. My loving daughter Lucie deceased I gave formerly unto her the value of thirty pounds, money, out of my moveable estate and one third part of moveables given to my loving wife after she hath done with them as abovesaid, with what I have formerly given her is ye full of her portion out of my estate.

I give unto my loving daughter Esther the value of thirty pounds, money, out of my moveable estate and one third part of moveables given to my loving wife after she hath done with them as abovesaid.

I give unto my loving daughter Susannah the value of thirty pounds money out of my moveable estate and one third part of moveables given above to my loving wife after she hath done with them as abovesaid.

I likewise make and ordain my dearly beloved wife Susannah my Executrix and my loving son Daniel, Executor of this my last will and Testament and I do hereby utterly revoke and disanul all and every other former Testament, wills, and bequests by me in any way before named willed and bequeathed. Ratifying and confirming this and no other to be my last Will and Testament. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal ye day and year above written.

JOHN SMITH.

Signed, sealed, published, pronounced and declared by ye ad John Smith to be his last will and testament in presence of us witnesses.

THEOPHILUS BALDWIN,
SAMUEL PRENTICE,
ABIGAIL PRENTICE.

Then Theophilus Bawldin, Esq., Samuel Prentice and Mrs. Abigail Prentice, personally appeared and made solemn oath that they saw John Smith ye subscriber to ye above and within written, sign and seal ye same and heard him publish and pronounce and declare ye same to be his last will and testament and that he was in a perfect, sound mind and memory when he executed the same and that we signed ye same as witnesses in ye presence of ye testator.

Before Me,

WILL OF JOSEPH SMITH, HUSBAND OF ZIPPORAH BRANCH (No. 22).

I, Joseph Smith of Stonington, in the County of New London, and State of Connecticut, being sick and weak in body, but by the blessings of God, am sound in my understanding and mind and memory, calling to mind the mortality of my body and that it is appointed for all men once to die and considering my present weakness as a symptom of the close of my days, I do make and ordain this my last will and Testament. First, I recommend my soul to God, that gave it me, and my body to the dust to be buried in a decent and Christian manner, at the discretion of my Executor hereinafter named, and as to the worldly Interest it hath pleased God to bless me with, I give and dispose of it in the following manner.

First, My will is that all my just debts and funeral charges should first of all be paid by my Executor out of the legacy given him in this Will.

Item. I give to my well beloved son Daniel Smith, two hundred and twenty pounds, lawful money, to be paid him by my Executor hereafter named, one hundred and twenty pounds of sd. sum to be paid in fifteen months after my decease, and the other hundred in one year and ten months after my decease, the said Daniel Smith paying to Charles Phelps, esq., 10 ewe sheep and twelve lambs and also 18 lbs. of sheeps wool, and also pay and settle with Mr. Daniel Prentice a debt which I owe him by book, and the above legacy when paid is his full share in my estate.

Item. I give to my well beloved son Joseph Smith Jr., the farm on which I now live with all the buildings on the same belonging to him, his heirs and assigns forever, he the said Joseph Smith, Jr., complying with such divisions and provisions as are and shall be made in this will relating to him.

Item. I give unto my said son Walter Smith one third part of a right of land I own in the State of Vt, so called, to him, his heirs and assigns forever and also one half of my wearing apparel, except a fine holland shirt dress, I do give to my son Walter Smith, ten pounds lawful money to be paid him by my Executor hereafter named within twelve months after my decease which said land, clothing and money when paid, is in full of his share in my estate.
Item. I give to my well beloved son Lemuel Smith, one third part of a right I own in the State of Vt., so called, to him and his heirs and assigns forever, and also one half of my wearing apparel, except a fine holland shirt, the said land and clothing when paid is in full of his share in my estate.

Item. I give to my well beloved son Thomas Smith, the other third part of a right of land I own in the State of Vt., so called, to his heirs and assigns forever, the said one third part to be supported as to taxes and expenses by my Executor hereafter named, till my said son Thomas shall arrive to the age of 21 yrs., also I do give to my son Thomas, the holland shirt heretofore described in this will and also my silver knee buckles and forty silver dollars to be paid to him by my Executors hereafter named, when he shall arrive to the age of 21 yrs. which land, shirt, buckles and money when paid is in full of his share in my estate.

Item. I give to my well beloved daughter Amy Palmer, three pounds lawful money to be paid to her by my Executor hereafter named, within twelve months after my decease, which money when paid, with what she hath already had is her full share in my estate.

Item. I give to my well beloved daughter Susannah Smith, thirty pounds lawful money to be paid her by my Executor hereafter named, when she shall arrive to the age of twenty yrs., also I do give to my said daughter, Susannah one third part of my household stuff, which said money and household stuff when recd. is her full share in my estate.

Item. I give to my beloved daughter Zipporah Smith, thirty pounds lawful money, to be paid her by Executor hereafter named, when she shall arrive to the age of twenty yrs., also I do give to my sd. daughter Zipporah one third part of my household stuff which money and household stuff when recd. is her full share in my estate.

Item. I give to my beloved daughter Polly Smith, thirty pounds lawful money to be paid her by my Executor hereafter named, when she shall arrive to the age of eighteen years, and also I do give to my sd. dau. Polly, the other third part of my household stuff, which sd. money and household stuff when recd. is in full for her share in my estate.

Item. I do give to my said son Joseph Smith, Jr., all the rest and remnant of my estate both real and personal not especially disposed of in this will and I do appoint my said son Joseph, Guardian to my sd. son Thomas during his minority and further my will is that my said son Joseph should learn my sd. son Thomas to read, write and cipher as far as the rule of three and also to put him to a trade when he shall arrive to the age of seventeen yrs., and that he be kept to his said trade till he shall arrive to the age of 21 yrs., also I do appoint my sd. son Joseph, guardian to my daughters Zipporah and Polly during their minority, and my will is that he learn them to read and write, and I do make and ordain my sd. son Joseph Smith, Jr., Executor to this my last will and Testament, wholly revoking any will heretofore by me made, and declaring this only to be my last will. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this twenty-fourth day of December 1783.

Signed, Sealed, Published, pronounced and declared.

WILL OF ISAAC WHEELER, SR.

In the name of God, Amen. The last Will and Testament of Mr. Isaac Wheeler, Sr., of Stonington, in the County of New London and in the Colony of Connecticut, being in perfect mind and memory, blessed be God, which is as followeth, I give my soul to God, who gave it and my body to the earth to be buried in a decent and Christian manner by my Executor in the hope of a glorious resurrection, and that as a Christian I may further provide for my family, I order my temporal concerns as followeth:

Imprimis. I order and direct my Executors to pay my just debts and recover my just dues of my estate. I give to my loving wife Martha, the biggest room of my house and the leanto (or ell) and two of the best beds and bedclothes and curtains, such as she best like, and four cows and a score of sheep to be kept and provided for by my son William, and so much of the household stuff as she has occasion for, and to be honorably maintained and to be comfortably provided for, in all things she needs during her natural life, at the care and cost of my son William Wheeler.

I give and bequeath to my son Isaac Wheeler, beside what his grandfather Thomas Wheeler, has given him in Lynn, Mass., and besides one hundred and fifty acres of land given him by his grandfather and besides what I have given in buildings and stock, I do now give him three score acres of land in lieu of forty acres his grandfather gave to his brother Thomas, Deceased, lying to the west and south of his own field and he is to take it Westerly from an horn beam tree till he makes up the complement of three score acres and a straight line from the said horn beam tree to a black oak tree, which is the corner tree of his grandfather's land he now dwelleth upon, which tree standeth by a brook; also I give to my son Isaac, four score acres of land which I bought of Ebenezer Witter and from that black oak which is a bound tree of Nathaniel Chesebrough's land, and from thence a straight line to a great chestnut tree; also I give him one hundred acres which I bought of Nathaniel Chesebrough, and one hundred acres which I bought of John Reynolds, and fifty acres bought of Capt. James Pendleton, and also one other hundred acres bought of John Witter, also one hundred and twenty acres now at the north corner of my land, which hundred acres was his grandfather's, and also fifty acres as it is bounded which may appear upon record, which was a grant formerly purchased of Lieut. Mason.

I give to Richard's children that are males, that are or shall be begotten of his body the lands following, equally to be divided among them, and my Executors shall give them as they come of age out of the following land a just proportion for their settlement, provided my son Richard and his wife shall have the house and homestead they now live in and to it one hundred and fifty acres during their natural lives. I give fifty acres lying by Samuel Miner, which was part of a grant of land bought of Capt. John Stanton and fifty acres more bought of Capt. Samuel Mason, and also a sixteen-acre lot lying southerly of old Mr. Stanton's land, and westerly of land which I bought of Capt. Mason and also the remainder of 150 acres which was bought of father Park and James Fanning.

I give to my son Richard, a west line from the corner of the cow pasture, the south corner of a west line to the brook, which we ride over when we go to meeting, which brook runs out of the said cow-pasture and bounded by said brook to the end of Witter land to a white oak tree, which tree is a corner tree of James Miner's and Cornish's and mine.

I give to my son Richard's children from a black oak tree of Nathaniel Chesebrough's a straight line to a great chestnut tree which is a corner of land I bought of Capt. John Stanton, and from thence a straight line just leaving out the meadow, the brook being the bound, that lyeth in the said tract of land I bought of Capt. John Stanton and from thence to my fence only leaving out to William's land six rods in length and one rod and a half in breadth from the fence that runs along by my fence southward to a great rock, which rock stands very nigh the partition fence now betwixt us and so along by the same fence till it come to the end of the fence that heads my great pasture, and from thence a west line to the end of what land is mine, and so to the outside of my land eastward not given already.

I give to my son William my new dwelling house and housing and orchards, and all the several tracts of land undisposed of in Stonington to him and his heirs forever. I give to my daughters, Mary, Martha, Anna, Dorothy, Elizabeth and Experience to each of them, I give seventy pounds a piece to be paid out of the stock, money, household stuff, to each a proportion to be paid forthwith and to make it up seventy pounds a piece to be paid by my unwilled landed estate, or else my two sons Isaac and William are to make it up out of their own estates, they having four years time to do it in, and the seventy pounds which I give to my daughter Mary, John Williams' deceased wife, is to pay it to her children as they come of age to each an equal share or proportion. I give to my three sons my wearing clothes equally divided betwixt them, only William is to have my blue waist coat.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal January 3rd 1712.

ISAAC WHEELER.

Probated in New London,
March 12th 1712.

Isaac and William, his sons, were appointed with their uncle John Park, executors of his will, who accepted the trust and executed the will.

His son Richard died soon after his father, and their youngest child, a daughter, was born some five months after his death and was named after her mother, Prudence. She grew up to womanhood and married Mr. Ebenezer Geer of Groton, and had a large family of children. Her mother married Mr. Christopher Avery of Groton and had five children by him. The youngest, Temperance Avery, was the great-grandmother of the late Governor Morgan of New York.

WILL OF THOMAS WHEELER.

In the Name of God, Amen.—June 24th, 1755.

I, Thomas Wheeler of Stonington, County of New London, Conn., being now in health and of sound mind and memory, I do make this my last Will and Testament. I give unto my son Thomas Wheeler, all my lands in the Town of Litchfield in County of Litchfield. I also give him one eighth part of other land, including the land I gave him, by deed, with the buildings, to him and heirs forever.

I also give him, my silver-hilted sword, my cane, my gold sleeve buttons, my silver ring, and my watch, and my largest silver tankard, and also one thousand, five hundred pounds, old tenor bills of credit.

I give unto my grandson Isaac Wheeler, one eighth part of my lands and buildings, where my honored father Isaac Wheeler dwelt. I also give him my negro boy, and five hundred pounds in old tenor bills to be set out to him, when he arrives to the age of twenty one years.

I give unto my son Jeremiah Wheeler, one eighth part of all my lands and buildings. I also give him my negro man Sam, and my silver Tankard.

I give unto my son Shepherd Wheeler, one eighth part of all my lands and buildings and my negro man Cippeo.

I give unto my son Paul Wheeler, one eighth of all my land and buildings and my negro man Cab, and my third silver tankard, also my mulatto girl Elizabeth.

I give also to my son Cyrus Wheeler, one eighth part of all my lands and buildings and my negro boy Plato, and five hundred pounds, bills of credit.

I give unto my son Charles Wheeler, one eighth part of all my lands and buildings and also my mulatto boy Harry, and five hundred pounds of bills of credit.

I give unto my son Ephraim Wheeler, one eighth part of all my lands and buildings to be set out to him when he arrives at the age of 21 years, and also I give him one thousand pounds of old tenor bills, to be paid to him at 21 years old.

I give unto my daughter Mary Miner, my negro woman Hagar, also two thousand pounds old tenor, which with what I have heretofore given her is her portion.
APPENDIX.

I give unto my daughter Mehitable Babcock, my negro girl Joanna, and also two thousand pounds old tenor which, with what I have already given is her portion.

I give unto my daughter Lucy Wheeler, my negro girl Cloe, also four thousand pounds in old tenor bills, to be set out to her when she arrives at 21 years, or the day of her marriage, and I give her six best silver spoons.

I give unto my grandson Thomas Wheeler, one cow and ten sheep.

I give unto my grandson Thomas Miner, one cow and ten sheep.

I give unto my son Thomas, my right in common in Stonington, also the remainder of my moveable and personal estate that is left, not above or before been disposed of.

I give to my sons Thomas, Jeremiah, Shepherd, Paul, Cyrus, Charles, Ephraim and my grandson Isaac equally.

HISTORY OF STONINGTON.

Capt. Thomas Wheeler, whose estate is here recorded, was the son of Isaac Wheeler and Mary (Shephard) Wheeler, and was born in the year 1700. He married Mary Miner, daughter of Ephraim and Mary Stevens Miner, who was a direct descendant in the thirteenth generation of Henry Miner, who died in the year 1357. Isaac Wheeler was the son of Isaac and Martha (Park) Wheeler, and grandson of Thomas and Mary Wheeler. Thomas Wheeler came to this country before 1637, and resided in Massachusetts until 1664, when he removed to Stonington. He died in 1686, aged 85 years.

WILL OF ROBERT WILLIAMS.

Last Will and Testament of me, Robert Williams of Roxbury, in the county of Suffolk in New England, being at present in bodily health, of perfect understanding, and of sound mind (through the merciful providence of God towards me) do ordain this my last will, hereby disannulling all former wills whatever, and do constitute this for the use and benefit of those that shall come after me.
APPENDIX.

In the first place and chiefly, I commit my soul into the hands of my merciful Redeemer, the Lord Jesus Christ, who hath undertaken for the same in the covenant of his grace, that where he is I might be also. And my body I commit unto the dust to be decently buried by my Executors hereafter named, trusting that at the day of his appearing I shall receive a glorious body. And for my temporal estate I dispose of it in the manner following:

Imprimis. I will, the true and faithful performance of the covenant between myself and my well beloved wife, in full and in specie according to the time mentioned in said covenant, and that my three sons, Samuel, Isaac and Stephen, shall pay the same by equal proportions.

Item. I give to my son Samuel, besides what I have already given him, and is in his possession, my middle lot between my swamp and my rocks lying before his door.

Item. All my swamp except fourscore and ten rods next my barn, which I reserve to the same.

Item. Ten acres of wood-land, more or less, at Walkhill.

Item. To my son Isaac, three acres of salt-marsh (purchased with my house), adjoining to Nathaniel Holmes, his marsh.

Item. All my ploughing land at Dorchester, being five acres, more or less.

Item. Six acres of wood-land behind the great lots.

Item. To my grandson Isaac, I give my piece of salt-marsh lying next to John Heminway's, formerly bought of Goodman Riggs.

Item. I give to my son Stephen, my dwelling house, orchards, barns, and other out houses and home lots thereto adjoining, with the fourscore and ten rods adjoining to my barn reserved out of the swamp.

Item. My part of Mr. Hews' meadows.

Item. Six acres of pasture land called the Rocks, adjoining to my lot, (given my son Samuel).

Item. My horse distinct from the rest of my moveables.

Item. I will that the cause be equally maintained by my sons Samuel and Stephen. Inasmuch as I have in this my will given my son Stephen, something more than the rest of my sons, I would not have them or others think hardly of me for so doing, for he lives under the same roof with me, and thereby hath been more helpful and comfortable unto me than the other sons have.

Item. I give to my brother Nicholas Williams, thirty shillings per annum, to be equally paid by my sons Samuel and Stephen.

Item. My wearing clothes woolen and linen.

Item. A pair of sheets and a blanket from off my maid's bed, and also a rug. Also four bushels of Indian corn. Also my will is, that my brother Nicholas have house room, washing and lodging, by my sons Samuel and Stephen.

Item. I give my grandchild Deborah Totman (or Tolman), forty shillings.

Item. To my grandchild Elizabeth Robinson, twenty shillings, both legacies to be paid out of my moveables within the space of twelve months after my decease. And the residue of them to be equally divided between my sons after my debts are discharged. And for the full performance of this my last will, I do depute my three sons Executors of the same, whom I intend and of whom I expect that they will see the faithful performance of the same. And in witness of these premises I have hereunto subscribed my hand and affixed my seal this twenty-sixth of November, in the year of our Lord, 1695.
