PUBLISHER'S NOTE.

In 1848, William Goodwin of New Haven began the publication of his Annual Legislative Statistics of State Officers, Senate and House of Representatives of Connecticut. Through lack of patronage its publication was omitted in 1849, but was resumed in 1850, since which time it was continued by Mr. Goodwin, William A. Goodwin, Henry C. Goodwin, Palmer Bill and the Comptroller each in turn to 1886 inclusive. In 1887, it was superseded by the Connecticut Register and Manual, the publication of which was then assumed by the State. In 1876, however, the Hartford Evening Post had issued its first Evening Post Annual in newspaper form which was changed to book form in 1881 and thus continued until 1895, when its publication ceased. Appreciating the value of "Father" Goodwin's publications and the Evening Post series which contained information of value not to be found elsewhere, I undertook the continuation of the publication of these legislative statistics and accordingly published Volume 1 of Taylor's Legislative History and Souvenir, covering the General Assembly of 1897. The present volume is the fifth in the series, the appreciation of which is shown by the fact that all the copies of Volumes 1 to 4 have been exhausted. The Senate of 1903 had twenty-four members. This session, 1905, was the first Senate of thirty-five members; twenty-nine Republicans and six Democrats. The House of Representatives was composed of two hundred and nineteen Republicans and thirty-six Democrats, total number two hundred and fifty-five. Two United States Senators from Connecticut, Joseph R. Hawley, of Hartford and Orville H. Platt, of Meriden, died during the session, an unusual occurrence. Hope this volume will be a valuable contribution towards the history of our State, I send it forth on its mission.

HENRY ROBERTS,
Governor.
HENRY ROBERTS,
Governor

Hon. Henry Roberts, the popular Governor of Connecticut, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., January 22, 1853. His father, George Roberts, was a prominent Connecticut manufacturer, who at the time his son was born was in business in Brooklyn. The same year he returned to his native state to retire to a farm in South Windsor. In 1864 he was chosen treasurer of the Hartford Carpet Company and two years later he became its president, a position which he held for twenty years. He was likewise president of the Hartford Woven Wire Mattress Company and director in various benevolent and financial institutions. He was esteemed as a man of sound judgment, high integrity, and great executive and business ability. He was a staunch Republican and a man of deep religious convictions. The Governor’s mother was Elvira (Evans) Roberts. His ancestors came from England in colonial days and rendered service to the country in the French and Indian Wars, at Bunker Hill and at Valley Forge. The first of the name to reach America was William Roberts, who came from England in 1754. George Roberts held a captain’s commission during the Revolutionary War, where he contributed his full share toward the eventual success of the patriot’s cause. On his mother’s side the Governor is a descendant of John Taylor and of Thomas Taylor, to whom the people of Deerfield, Mass., have erected a monument in grateful commemoration of his bravery in the French and Indian Wars.

Young Henry Roberts spent the early years of his life on his father’s farm in South Windsor. He was a sturdy youngster whose special tastes were for outdoor athletic sports and for reading history. Like most country boys he began at an early age to make himself helpful in the farm work. His regular tasks, involving real manual labor, increased each year as he grew older and were of great advantage to him in strengthening his character and in teaching him regular habits. During this formative period of life the influence of his mother was particularly strong. She stimulated his youthful intellect, taught him high moral principles and left a profound impression upon his spiritual life. His first school training was received at the public schools of Hartford. He then attended the High School and after his graduation in 1873 he entered Yale College, from which he was graduated with the class of 1877.

Having decided to adopt the legal profession he attended the Columbia Law School for one year and then the Yale Law School for the same length of time. In 1879 Governor Roberts began his active business career by entering the service of the Hartford Woven Wire Company of which his father was the president. He had intended to practice law, but the death of his father compelled him to remain in business to care for the large interests of his family. Having inherited the executive ability and commercial acumen of his father he quickly took his place among the leading manufacturers and business men of the State. By creating industries which give useful employment to his fellow citizens, his success has brought prosperity to many others. He is president of the Hartford Woven Wire Mattress Company and a director in a large number of corporations. Among others may be mentioned the Phoenix National Bank, The Hartford Trust Company, the State Savings Bank of Hartford, The Hartford Electric Light Company, the Farmington River Power Company, the States School, Winston, N. C., the Y. M. C. A. School, Springfield, Mass., and the Hartford Bedstead Company.

The Governor’s career in politics might be recited under the title “From Alderman to Governor in seven years”; for within that short period of time he has risen from a minor position in his city to the highest office in the State. Like his father he has always been a staunch Republican. In 1897 he was elected an alderman in Hartford. In this position he served his fellow citizens so well that they sent him in 1899 to represent the city in the State House of Representatives. He remained a member of the lower house until in 1901 he was elected to the Senate from the First District. While in the Senate his ability, energy, and loyalty to duty became known throughout the State and while still a member of the upper house of the legislature he was nominated. and elected Lieutenant-Governor. In this position he served from 1903 to 1905.

When, on September 14, 1904, the Republican State convention met in Hartford to nominate a candidate for Governor, it was recognized that the Lieutenant-Governor was the logical man for the place. A short time before, the Republican city convention of Hartford adopted a set of resolutions in which was recommended Governor Roberts' nomination in these words: "We commend him to the consideration of his party in choosing their candidate for Governor, as one who has illustrated, in public and in private life, the value to a community of an honest, capable, fearless, loyal, and lovable man." Mayor Henney of Hartford in presenting his nomination to the convention declared: "As an Alderman of Hartford, as its representative in the lower house of the General Assembly, as Senator, as presiding officer of the Senate, as Lieutenant-Governor of the State, no man, be he friend or enemy, can say of Henry Roberts that he ever shirked his duty or failed to do that duty well. He stands before you an honest, capable, energetic, experienced, man." On the first ballot he was nominated by a large majority. Informed of the choice of the convention he thanked his supporters in these words: "You have paid me a great compliment in this expression of your confidence and conferred a high honor upon me, and with a sincere appreciation of your action and a deep sense of the responsibility and sacred trust I assume, permit me to signify my acceptance of the nomination. If elected it will be my endeavor to give to the State an administration during which I will strive to attain the same marked success as that attained by my able and worthy Republican predecessors." When the ballots were counted after the election of November, 1904, Governor Roberts was found to have a large majority over his Democratic rival. In voting for him the citizens of Connecticut felt confident that they were bestowing their highest public office upon a loyal, energetic, capable, and broad-minded business man; a careful student of public questions and a practical man of affairs.

In 1881, Governor Roberts was married to Carrie E. Smith of Bridgeport. He became the father of three children, two of whom are now living. From boyhood, home influences have been a strong factor in shaping his career and in urging him on to success. He has also received helpful inspiration from companionship with those who have been successful in active life and from the serious study of history and the lives of great men. He is a member of many clubs, among them the Hartford Club, the Country Club, the Hartford Golf Club, the Republican Club, and the University Club of New York. He attends the Congregational Church. From boyhood he has been an enthusiastic reader of history and of the biographies of the world's greatest men. In later life he has given careful study to the science of political economy. He could not have chosen four subjects of study more valuable to a public man than law, history, biography, and political economy. He now, in the prime of life, holds the highest office within the gift of the State of Connecticut. When his present term expires, he will take his place among the foremost of Connecticut's sons.
ROLLIN S. WOODRUFF.
Lieutenant-Governor.
ROLLIN S. WOODRUFF.
Lieutenant-Governor.

Hon. Rollin S. Woodruff, of New Haven, Lieutenant-Governor, is a native of Rochester, N. Y., and was born July 14, 1854. He is the son of Rev. Jeremiah and Clorise (Thompson) Woodruff, and was educated in the public schools of his native town and Lansing, Iowa. On January 14, 1876, Governor Woodruff married Kaorneo E. Perkins of New Haven. He has been a member of the Governor's Foot Guard since 1896. Governor Woodruff has always been deeply interested in all that appertained to financial and mercantile pursuits, and for many years he has been a member of the firm of the C. S. Mersick & Co., who are among the most extensive iron, steel—and other metals—manufacturers in the world, and whose immense plant is located at 286-292 State Street, New Haven. He is president of this famous firm, president of the Baldwin-Rowland Switch Co., secretary of the W. W. Gale Co., director of the Mechanics' Bank and president of the Chamber of Commerce, which is composed of only the most distinguished men in their line of business in New Haven. He is a member of the Union League and of the Young Men's Republican Club. Governor Woodruff as a member of the Senate in 1903, was one of the most popular Republicans in the General Assembly, and creditably served as chairman on the Committee on Finance. As president pro tem of the Senate in 1903 and president this session he won the reputation of being a model presiding officer.
The career of Hon. Theodore Bodenwein, Secretary of State, and proprietor of the New London Day and Morning Telegram, is a striking example of the possibilities of American citizenship. Born in Dusseldorf, Prussia, January 25, 1864, he came to this country at the age of five, the child of German parents in humble circumstances. He attained his education in a country school in Groton. At an early age he showed an aptitude for the printer’s trade and in 1881 he became an apprentice in the office of the New London Day. He passed through the different branches of the business and from close application and observation obtained a practical knowledge of the newspaper business. By constant application he became a ready and forceful writer. In 1885 he became one of the founders of the Morning Telegraph, which succeeded the old Evening Telegraph whose eloquent mouth was closed by the sheriff. He remained with The Telegraph in various capacities for five years. Then he disposed of his interest. In September, 1891, he purchased the New London Day, paying what was considered an enormous price, nearly $26,000. The Day had been founded by Major John A. Tibbets, a well known writer and politician. The Day had been leading a checkered career for ten years and was heavily encumbered with debt. The new proprietor quickly brought order out of chaos, showing rare executive ability, and the paper was put almost at once on a paying basis. Its growth in circulation and influence was remarkable. When he succeeded to the business in 1891, the circulation of The Day was not over 1,500. Today (1905) it exceeds the 6,000 mark, which means one paper to every six inhabitants in its field, which includes the lower part of New London county. In the first ten years Mr. Bodenwein bought four newspaper presses, discarding one after the other to accommodate the growing demands of his business. Today, he has one of the finest equipped newspaper plants in Connecticut. The Day establishment is one of the prominent institutions in New London on account of the magnitude of its operations. In January, 1901, he bought the Morning Telegraph. His experiment of issuing both morning and evening paper from the same office seems to have met with success, as both papers are better and more prosperous than ever before. The Day is republican in politics, while The Telegraph is entirely independent. Mr. Bodenwein was married, February 21, 1889, to Miss Jennie Muir. He has two children: Gordon, born May 10, 1893, and Elizabeth, born January 19, 1896. He is a member of numerous clubs and societies. In politics he is a republican. He served as Alderman in the New London Court of Common Council and as Sewer Commissioner of the city, 1903-'06. In 1904 he was unanimously nominated by the Republican State Convention for Secretary of State and was elected by 36,468 plurality, leading his State ticket, and only 814 votes behind the vote for President Roosevelt. He has the distinction of receiving the highest vote and largest plurality ever given to a candidate for state office in the history of Connecticut. Mr. Bodenwein is in the vigor of young manhood, ambitious and popular, with considerable ability as a public speaker, and that there is a political future still before him is evidenced by the fact that his name has been put forward among possible candidates for Congress and Governor.

Chairman of the Committee on Labor.

Freeman F. Patten, of Stafford (Stafford Springs), was born November 3, 1866, in Stafford, where his early education was received, this being supplemented by attendance at Wilbraham Academy for three years. When about nineteen Mr. Patten took up a business life, first as clerk for two years in the Savings Bank of Stafford Springs. In April, 1877, he became bookkeeper for the Converseville Company (which was founded by his grandfather, Captain Parley Converse). This marked the beginning of a connection in various capacities with the woolen manufacturing business in Stafford Springs, which continued through twenty-three years in the same mill in which it began, ending in 1900. During that period Mr. Patten had been advanced from bookkeeper to assistant treasurer, and in 1899 he became treasurer of the Warren Woolen Company, which was the successor of the Converseville Company, the change taking place in 1879. The Warren Woolen Company greatly increased the capacity of the mill, which was then an eight-set woolen mill, and added as well an entire new worsted plant, that being for the manufacture of worsted yarns. This latter plant was the first of its kind in Stafford, and one of but two in the State. In 1899, Mr. Patten severed his connection with the Warren Woolen Company. Directly after he became a partner in the Middle River Company, at Stafford Springs, from which he severed his connection in 1900, since then he has lived retired, except for the management and care of his private interests which are varied and extensive. While but a man of middle age, Mr. Patten has had about a quarter of a century's identification with the woolen manufacturing business in his native town, where he has been looked upon as one of its shrewd business men, and most substantial citizens. He has been prominently identified with the progressive movements of his town and section. His real estate holdings for a number of years have been large and important; his judgment on values of that character is considered first-class; his opinion on general matters of business and finance carries no little weight. He is director in the Savings Bank of Stafford Springs; he was one of the original incorporators of the Stafford Springs Cemetery, of which he is now president. Mr. Patten has served as Warden of the borough of Stafford Springs, and also as Treasurer previously. He has served as School Treasurer and is one of the original members of the Business Men's Club. In political matters Mr. Patten has invariably, in national matters, been a staunch supporter of the Republican principles. He has been a business man rather than a politician. The pleasant home of Mr. Patten on "Edgewood," is in the midst of the most desirable residence locality in Stafford Springs. Mr. Patten was married November 17, 1900, to Miss Lily Welch, a daughter of Dr. Calvin and Helen Welch, of Delaware, Ohio. She graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware. He was appointed Assistant State Librarian in August, 1898, and State Librarian, to succeed the late Charles J. Hoadly, LL.D., in November, 1900. Mr. Godard has been identified with the Frederick H. Cossitt Library, Granby, since its organization in 1890, and is president of the National Association of State Libraries and of the Connecticut Library Association. On June 23, 1897, he married Miss Kate E. Dewey, of Granby. They have three children: George Dewey, born August 8, 1899; Paul Beach, born February 17, 1901, and Mary Katharine, born October 3, 1903. He is a member of St. Mark’s Lodge, No. 91, F. & A. M., of Granby; Pythagoras Chapter, No. 17, R. A. M., Wolcott Council, No. 1, R. & S. M.; Washington Commandery, No. 1, K. T., and Sphinx Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., of Hartford. Through his persistent efforts the State Library has been refurnished and is being re-arranged in an up-to-date manner.
Charles Daniel Hine, of Hartford, Secretary of the State Board of Education, is the son of the late Rev. O. D. Hine, who was for thirty years pastor of the Congregational Church in Lebanon, and of Ellen Caroline Whittlesey Hine. He was born in Fair Haven, Vt., February 28, 1845. He graduated from Yale College in 1871, being a classmate of Charles Hopkins Clark of Hartford, and of Judge William K. Townsend of the United States Circuit Court. He studied law and graduated at the law school of Iowa State University and was admitted to the bar in that State. Returning to Connecticut in 1883 he became a resident of Newington, and in 1886, removed to New Britain where he was for six years a member of the School Committee in that city. He has resided in Hartford since 1899. Secretary Hine was an educator of recognized ability before his removal to Connecticut. He was superintendent of the schools of Saginaw, Mich., from 1871 to 1874, and held the principalship of the High School in Omaha, Neb., from 1880 to 1883. He was superintendent of the schools in Norwich from 1874 to 1876. Secretary Hine has served as secretary of the State Board of Education since January 1, 1883. During the past twenty-three years he has wielded a distinctive influence in the educational field of Connecticut. The schools of the State have been wonderfully improved in important directions under his administration. He is an earnest advocate of town management of schools, of the consolidation system, of State examination for teachers, and of teachers' meetings in the towns of the State. He is chairman of the Connecticut Public Library Committee and has held the position since the committee was organized in 1893. He is also a director of the Public Library in Ansonia. On September 29, 1899, Mr. Hine married Alice S. McQuaid of New Haven. He is a staunch Republican, and a member of Putnam Lodge, No. 48, P. & A. M., South Woodstock, and of Putnam Chapter, No. 41, R. A. M., Putnam. Mr. Hine has been eminently successful in his school work, and has a wide circle of friends who admire him for his upright and progressive qualities.
James H. Macdonald of New Haven, Highway Commissioner of the State of Connecticut, son of James Henry Macdonald, Sr., a noted landscape architect, and Anna Smith, was born in Albany, N. Y., February 16, 1851. His ancestors on his father's side came to this country from Scotland, while those on his mother's were among the early settlers of Lynn, Mass. Mr. Macdonald acquired his education in the Albany Academy, for many years one of the noted institutions of learning in the country. Subsequently he took up his residence in New Haven, where he has become an influential factor in both business and political affairs. He has been a successful landscape architect all his life, and has been president of the Connecticut Concrete Company since 1887. He served two years as a member of the New Haven Common Council, four years as one of the Board of Aldermen, being president of the board two terms, and as Chairman of the Republican Town Committee of New Haven from 1883 to 1889, a period of six years. He is now entering upon his fourth term as Highway Commissioner of the State, receiving his first appointment from Governor Coffin in 1893, his second appointment from Governor Cook, his third appointment from Governor Lounsbery which extended through the term of Governor McLean, and his fourth appointment from Governor Chamberlain. His present term of office is for four years from July 1, 1903. At the present time he has established for the State of Connecticut a reputation for road improvement second to no State in the country. In 1904 he was elected president of the American Road Makers, and re-elected for a second term in 1905. In all these capacities Mr. Macdonald has displayed the highest ability and integrity, and gained for himself the confidence and respect of people of all classes throughout the State. As Highway Commissioner he has achieved an eminent reputation. Mr. Macdonald is a man of acknowledged ability, public-spirited and enterprising, thoroughly identified with the affairs of his adopted State, and one of the prominent and influential leaders of the Republican party. He is a member of the Republican League of Connecticut, of the Young Men's Republican Club of New Haven, of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, of the Clan McLeod, of the Quinneipec Club, of the Yale Conclave of the Order of Huguenots, and of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, all of New Haven. He is also a prominent thirty-third degree Mason. Mr. Macdonald was married September 26, 1875, to Miss Anna Walsh, of Albany, N. Y., and their children are Grace, wife of Dr. Willis H. Crowe, of New Haven, Florence and Anna.
George L. McLean, Inspector of Factories.

George L. McLean, of Ellington, Inspector of Factories, is the son of Charles and Octa (Strong) McLean, and a descendant on his father's side of ancestors who came to this country from the Island of Mull, off the north coast of Scotland, and settled in Windsor, about 1700. The sturdy Scotch characteristics which have distinguished his race, and which he developed as a youth, have brought him into prominence in his native State, and won for him a reputation in both business and political affairs. Mr. McLean was born in Manchester, on August 9, 1861, and received his education in the Rockville High School, at Fitch's Preparatory School in Norwalk and at Rickard's Commercial College in Boston, Mass. When seventeen years old he entered upon the active duties of life in a wool-scouring and carbonizing mill, where he remained one year. He then entered a woolen mill at Winchendon, Mass., and subsequently the American Mills in Rockville, and for seventeen years remained with the latter concern, holding positions in different departments and in the business office. In politics Mr. McLean is an ardent and consistent Republican, an acknowledged leader in local party councils and a man of great force of character and indomitable energy. He was appointed in 1894, Inspector of Factories and still holds that office, the duties of which he has discharged with great satisfaction. He is a public spirited progressive citizen, a man of broad and liberal attainments, and brings to the office of Factory Inspector a practical knowledge of factory life and requirements. These attributes have contributed materially to the successful manner in which he has administered the responsibilities of the position. On June 16, 1887, Mr. McLean married Mary, daughter of Alonzo Bailey, formerly agent of the Hockanum Mills, at Rockville. They have two daughters: Ruth B., born June 1, 1888, and Margaret S., born November 24, 1892.
JOHN B. NOBLE,
Dairy Commissioner.

John Bartlett Noble, of East Windsor, Dairy Commissioner, is the son of Almon and Mary Ann (Bartlett) Noble and was born in East Windsor, August 22, 1847. He was educated in the public schools and the East Windsor Hill High School. He is a staunch Republican and was the wide-awake Chairman of the Republican Town Committee for over fifteen years. He was a prominent member of the Legislatures of 1889 and 1893, serving as Clerk of the Agricultural Committee the former session and Chairman of the Temperance and Putnam Memorial Camp Committees the latter session. He is a member of the First Congregational Church of East Windsor, Oriental Lodge, No. 111, F. & A. M., and East Windsor Grange, No. 94. He has always taken a deep and active interest in the dairy and farming enterprises. On June 1, 1896, he had the honor of being appointed Dairy Commissioner of the State, and the fact alone that he has since been continued in the office speaks plainer than words as to his popularity and efficiency. He has been secretary and treasurer of the National Dairy and Pure Food Association since October 19, 1899, was president of the Connecticut Dairymen's Association in 1899–1900, and a director for several years, was the first master and for three years lecturer of East Windsor Grange and for two years was master of the East Central Pomona Grange. On October 4, 1870, he married Catherine D. Sadd, of South Windsor. As State Dairy Commissioner he brings to the office a useful equipment of experience, discriminating judgment and large comprehension and acquits himself to the large advantage of an important interest in agriculture and to the credit of the State. On July 14, 1905, he was elected president of the National Association of State Dairy and Food Departments at Portland, Oregon.
William Henry Scoville, of East Haddam, Labor Commissioner, was born at East Haddam, July 7, 1857. He was appointed Labor Commissioner by Governor Chamberlain, July 1, 1903, and was a member of the House in 1899.
Carnot O. Spencer, Commissioner of School Fund, was born in the town of Saybrook (now Essex), May 27, 1832; educated in the common schools, Hill's Academy and the Connecticut Literary Institute at Suffield. At an early age he entered the store of his father, whom he afterward succeeded in business. He later served the town of Essex as Selectman, Assessor, member of the School Board, Town Clerk and Judge of Probate; and was its Representative in the General Assembly, on the Republican side, in the trying times of 1861-62, and again in 1878-79. In 1869 he was in the Senate, representing the old Nineteenth Senatorial district. He was also extensively engaged in the settlement of estates, as administrator, executor, and in other capacities. In 1880, having closed out his business in Essex, he went to New Haven, and while engaged there he was tendered the position of chief clerk in the School Fund office under Commissioner Olney, upon the duties of which office he entered July 1, 1881. Removing to Hartford soon after, the Capital City has since been his home. He continued in the chief clerkship until August 1, 1898, a period of over seventeen years, when he was appointed, and afterwards elected, to the Commissionership, which position he now holds. Mr. Spencer has been for many years a member and officer of the Royal Arcanum and is treasurer of the Connecticut Prison Association. Upon his removal to Hartford, he united with the First Baptist Church of that city, and for some years has been one of its deacons, and he is also president of the Connecticut Baptist Convention. In 1855 he was married to Miss Marie J. Fuller, of Suffield. She is now deceased. In his official capacity Mr. Spencer has formed extensive and intimate acquaintances with prominent citizens of all portions of Connecticut, and he is universally regarded by them as an ideal public functionary and a most worthy citizen and gentleman.
Theron Upson, of Berlin, Insurance Commissioner, is the son of Russell and Adeline (Tuttle) Upson and was born in Wolcott, October 14, 1835. He was educated in the Berlin Academy and the New Britain High School. When the call to arms resounded throughout the land in the early days of the Civil War, Mr. Upson, then a young man of 25 years of age, enlisted in the First Connecticut Light Battery and served with distinction and notable bravery throughout all the dark and perilous days of '61 to '65. The last year of the war he was appointed acting assistant adjutant-general on the staff of the Chief of Artillery, 25th Army Corps. He was honorably discharged when the battery was mustered out at Richmond, Va., June 11, 1865. On May 23, 1866, he married Margaret Upson of Berlin. In 1891 he was appointed chief clerk by Insurance Commissioner O. R. Fyler, and successfully filled the position until June 1, 1902, when he was appointed Insurance Commissioner by Governor McLean, to fill the unexpired term of Commissioner E. L. Scofield. On July 1, 1903, he was re-appointed by Governor Chamberlain for a term of four years. On September 28, 1905, he was elected vice-president of the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners. Mr. Upson is a staunch Republican, a highly respected member of the Congregational Church, and the first treasurer and now a director of the Berlin Savings Bank. He is also an influential member of the Robert O. Tyler Post, No. 50, G. A. R., and a member of the Connecticut Society Sons of the American Revolution. He creditably represented the town of Berlin in the Legislature of 1891. He is deeply interested in everything towards or pointing to the enhancement of the interests of his fellowmen, and has the confidence and esteem of the citizens throughout the State.
Morris Catlin Webster, of New Britain, was appointed Building and Loan Commissioner in March 1891, and has since successfully filled the position. Mr. Webster was born at Harwinton, September 28, 1848, and is a lineal descendant of John Webster, who was one of Connecticut's Colonial Governors, serving two terms, 1656-57; three of his ancestors were Revolutionary soldiers and one earned distinction by carrying General Arnold, when wounded, from the battlefield at Saratoga. Through his mother he is connected with the Catlin family, so many of whom have held prominent and responsible positions in the State. Mr. Webster was educated at Winchester Institute, then a flourishing military academy in charge of Col. Ira W. Pettibone, and began business in the employ of Hart, Merriam & Co., of Hartford, where he remained six years. From Hartford he went to Milwaukee, thence to New York, then engaged for himself in business at Terryville, and in 1878 accepted the position of secretary and superintendent of the Malleable Iron Works in New Britain, which he held until May 16, 1902. In New Britain Mr. Webster began his political career. He served three years in the Common Council, is serving his twelfth upon the School Board, was Representative in the Legislature of 1897, and has served two years as Mayor. He has always been prominent in church work and is known as a believer in and a member of several secret societies in New Britain. His wife is a member of one of Connecticut's oldest families, one of those who settled Windsor in 1636.
