CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS.

PREAMBLE.

Whereas, It is desirable that there should be adequate celebrations commemorative of the events of Colonial history happening from the settlement of Jamestown, Va., May 13, 1607, to the Battle of Lexington, April 19, 1775;

Therefore, The Society of Colonial Wars has been instituted to perpetuate the memory of those events and of the men who in military, naval and civil positions of high trust and responsibility, by their acts or counsel assisted in the establishment, defense and preservation of the American Colonies, and were in truth the founders of this Nation. With this end in view it seeks to collect and preserve manuscripts, rolls, relics and records; to provide suitable commemorations or memorials relating to the American Colonial period, and to inspire in its members the fraternal and patriotic spirit of their forefathers, and in the community respect and reverence for those whose public services made our freedom and unity possible.

CONSTITUTION.

ARTICLE I.

NAME.

The Society shall be known by the name and title of The Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont.

ARTICLE II.

bership in this Society, who is lineally descended in the male or female line from an ancestor:

(1) Who served as a military or naval officer, or as a soldier, sailor, or marine, or as a privateersman, under authority of the Colonies which afterward formed the United States, or in the forces of Great Britain which participated with those of the said Colonies in any wars in which the said Colonies were engaged, or in which they enrolled men, from the settlement of Jamestown, May 13th, 1607, to the Battle of Lexington, April 19, 1775; or, dates above mentioned, either as

(a) Director-General, Vice-Director General, or member of the Council or Legislative body, in the Colony of New Netherlands;

(b) Governor, Lieutenant or Deputy Governor, Lord Proprietor, member of the King's or Governor's Council or Legislative body, in the Colonies of New York, New Jersey, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Delaware;

There shall be a Council consisting of six members—who shall be called "Gentlemen of the Council,"—in addition to the five members; a Committee on Collection of Historical Documents and Records, consisting of five members, and a Committee on Installation, consisting of five members.

ARTICLE V.

The Council shall appoint a Nominating Committee of three members who shall not be officers, who, two weeks before the General Court of the Society, shall report to the Council a list of nominations of members to the various offices and committee places to be filled at the ensuing election. The Secretary shall send a copy of the said list to each member of the Society at least one week before the day fixed for the General Court. The officers, together with the Gentlemen of the Council and Members of Committees, shall be elected by ballot. A plurality vote shall elect, and said officers and committees shall hold office for the period of one year, or until their successors shall be duly elected and qualified, except that at each election two Gentlemen of the Council shall be elected for a term of three years. the Constitution of the United States. When practicable such declaration shall be in writing and subscribed to by the member making it.

ARTICLE VIII.

At every Council the purposes of the Society shall be considered, and the best measures to promote them adopted. No party, political question of the day or existing controversial religious subject shall be discussed or considered at any meeting of the Society, or of the Council.

ARTICLE IX.

COMMEMORATIONS.

It shall be a regulation that members of the Society, when practicable, shall hold a celebration commemorative of some martial event in Colonial history, and dine together at least once in each year.

ARTICLE X.

THE SEAL.

Previous to Vermont's Declaration of Independence the territory hitherto known as The New Hampshire Grants was claimed by the Provinces of New York and New Hampshire under conflicting authorizations from the English Crown. Charters of townships were granted by the royal governors of both provinces. The New York officers who undertook to dispossess settlers holding their lands under grants from the Governor of New Hampshire, were resisted, and in some cases received what was known in that day as the application of the "Beech Seal"—being the administration of floggings with beech rods, called by Ethan Allen the "twigs of the wilderness." The officers of the first regularly organized corps of Green Mountain Boys were commissioned by the Province of New York. The Great Seal of the Vermont Society consists of a combination of the seals of New Hampshire and the original seal of New Netherlands, New York, while the beech seal of the Green Mountain Boys is represented by beech withes, which bind the ribbon at the base. A title scroll bears the figures "1724" and "1775," being the dates of the first permanent white settlement at Dummerston, and the end of the Colonial period.
ARTICLE XI.

INSIGNIA.

The insignia of the Society shall consist of a badge, pendant by a gold crown and ring, from a watered silk ribbon one inch and a half wide of red, bordered with white and edged with red. The badge shall be surrounded by a laurel wreath in gold and shall consist of:

Obverse: A white enameled star of nine points bordered with red enamel, having between each two starpoints a shield displaying an emblem of one of the nine original colonies; and, within a blue enameled garter bearing the motto “Fortiter Pro Patria,” an Indian’s head in gold relief.

Reverse: The star above described, but with gold edge, each shield between the points displaying a mullet, and in the center, within an annulet of blue bearing the title “Society of Colonial Wars, 1607-1775,” the figure of a colonial soldier in gold relief. The reverse of the crown of each insignia shall bear an engraved number corresponding to that of the registered number of the member to whom such insignia has been issued.

The insignia shall be worn by the members on all occasions when they assemble as such, for any stated purpose or celebration, and may be worn on any occasion of ceremony. It shall be worn conspicuously on the left breast; but members who are or have been Gentlemen of the Council of a State Society, may place a rosette of regulation pattern upon the silk ribbon from which it is pendant. The Governor, or, in his absence, the Deputy Governor, or Lieutenant-Governor, or Chairman pro tem., shall preside at all Courts of the Society, and shall exercise the duties of a presiding officer, under parliamentary rules, subject to an appeal to the Society. The Governor shall be a member ex-officio of all committees except the Nominating Committee and Committee on Membership. He shall keep fair and accurate records of all the proceedings and orders of the Society and of the Council, and shall give notice to each officer who may be affected by them, of all votes, resolutions and proceedings of the Society or the Council, and at the General Court, or oftener, shall report the names of candidates who have been admitted to membership and of any whose resignations have been accepted, and of any members who have been expelled for cause or who have failed to substantiate claim of descent. In his absence from any meeting the Deputy Secretary shall act, or a Secretary pro tempore may be designated.

The Treasurer shall collect the dues and keep the funds and securities of the Society; and as often as such funds shall amount to one hundred dollars they shall be deposited in some bank in the State of Vermont, which shall be designated by the Council, to the credit of "The Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont," and such funds shall be drawn thence on the check of the Treasurer for the purposes of the Society only. Out of these funds he shall pay such sums only as may be ordered by the Society or the Council, or his office may require. He shall keep a true account of his receipts and payments, and at each annual meeting render the same to the Society.

For the faithful performance of his duty he may be required to give such security as the Society may deem proper.

SECTION V.

The Registrar shall receive from the Secretary and file all the proofs upon which membership has been granted with a list of all diplomas countersigned by him and all documents which the Society may obtain, and he, under direction of the Council, shall make copies of such papers as the owners may not be willing to leave in the keeping of the Society.

The Council shall have power to call special Courts of the Society, and arrange for celebrations by the Society. They shall have control and management of the affairs and funds of the Society. They shall perform such duties as shall be prescribed by the Constitution and By-Laws, but they shall at no time be required to take any action or contract any debt for which they shall be liable. They may accept the resignation of any member of the Society. They may meet as often as required, or at the call of the Governor. Three members shall be a quorum for the transaction of business. At the General Court they shall submit to the Society a report of their proceedings during the past year. The Council shall have the power to drop from the roll the name of any member of the Society who shall be at least two years in arrears and shall fail on proper notice to pay the same within sixty days, and on being dropped his membership shall cease, but he may be restored to membership at any time by the Council upon his written application and the payment of all arrears from the date when he was dropped to the date of his restoration. The Council may suspend any officer for cause, which must be reported to the Society and action taken on the same within thirty days.

SECTION XI.

VACANCIES AND TERMS OF OFFICE.

Whenever an officer of this Society shall die, resign or neglect to serve, or be suspended, or be unable to perform his duties by reason of absence, sickness, or other cause, and whenever an office shall be vacant which the Society shall not have filled by an election, the Council shall have power to appoint a member to such office pro tempore, who shall act in such capacity until the Society shall elect a member to the vacant office, or until the inability due to said cause shall cease; provided, however, that the office of Governor or Secretary shall not be filled by the Council when there shall be a Deputy or Lieutenant-Governor or Deputy Secretary to enter on these duties. The Council may supply vacancies among its members under the same conditions, and should any member other than an officer be absent from three consecutive Councils, his place may be declared vacant by the Council and filled by appointment until an election of a successor. Subject to these provisions, all Officers and Gentlemen of the Council shall from the time of election continue in their respective offices until the next General Court, or until their successors are chosen.

SECTION XII.

RESIGNATION.

No resignation of any member shall become effective unless consented to by the Council.

SECTION XIII.

No person who may be enrolled as a member of this Society shall be permitted to continue in membership when his proofs of descent or eligibility shall be found to be defective. The Council, after thirty days' notice to such person to substantiate his claim, and upon his failure satisfactorily so to do, may require the Secretary to erase his name from the membership list. The said person shall have a right to appeal to the Society at its next Court, or at the General Court. If the said appeal be sustained by a two-thirds vote of the members present at such Court, the person's name shall be restored to the membership list.

SECTION XIV.

MEMBERSHIP.

Members shall be elected by ballot at a meeting of the Council after report by the Membership Committee; but a negative vote of one in five of the ballots cast shall exclude any candidate.

SECTION XV.

COMMITTEE ON MEMBERSHIP.

The Committee on Membership shall consist of five members. They shall be chosen by ballot at the General Court of the Society, and shall be elected for the period of one year. Three members shall constitute a quorum, and a negative vote of three members shall cause an adverse report to the Council on the candidate's application. The proceedings of the Committee shall be secret and confidential, and a candidate who has been rejected by the Council shall be ineligible for membership for a space of one year from the date of rejection, except upon the unanimous vote of the Committee.
The Committee shall have power to make By-Laws for its government and for other purposes not inconsistent with the Constitution or By-Laws of the Society.

SECTION XVI.

Any member for cause or conduct detrimental or antagonistic to the interests or purposes of the Society, or for just cause, may be suspended or expelled from the Society. But no member shall be expelled or suspended unless written charges be presented against such member to the Council. The Council shall give reasonable notice of such charges, and afford such member reasonable opportunity to be heard and refute the same. The Council, after hearing such charges, may recommend to the Society the expulsion or suspension of such member, and if the recommendation of the Council be adopted by a majority vote of the members of the Society present at such Court, he shall be so expelled or suspended, and the insignia of said member shall thereupon be returned to the Treasurer of the Society, and his rights therein shall be extinguished or suspended. The Treasurer shall refund to the said member the amount paid for the said insignia.

SECTION XVII.

SECTION XIX.
DEATH OF MEMBERS.

Upon the death of any member, notice thereof and the time and place of the funeral shall be published by the Secretary at least once in one daily newspaper in Vermont, and it shall thereupon become the duty of members, if practicable, to attend the obsequies. Upon official information of the death of a member, it shall be the duty of the Governor to appoint from the Society four members as a Committee to represent the Society at the funeral. Any member who becomes aware of the death of a fellow member shall make it his duty to see that the Secretary is properly notified of the fact.

SECTION XX.
ALTERATION OR AMENDMENT.

No alteration or amendment of the By-Laws shall be made unless notice shall have been duly given in writing, signed by the member proposing the same, at a previous Court of the Society.

The Secretary shall send a copy of the proposed amendment to each member of the Society, and state the time and place of the Court at which the same will be voted upon. No amendment or alteration shall be made unless adopted by a two-thirds vote of the members present at the Court voting upon the same.

DESCRIPTION OF SEAL.

In Colonial times Vermont was claimed by both New York and New Hampshire. The early grants overlapped and were made by the Royal Governors of New Hampshire and New York without regard to conflicting claims. The result was a petty warfare between rival claimants, the New Hampshire grantees or their assigns generally being resident on their grants. The settlers hesitated not to assert their rights, even by flogging the emissaries sent to dispossess them or to survey lands claimed under New York grants. "The application of the Beech Seal," as such flogging was termed, was not administered more often than necessity required. The controversies resulted in a declaration of complete independence. Vermont as such, therefore, cannot claim to have been a colony with legal rights and boundaries, and had no Great Seal in Colonial times. For these reasons it has seemed proper that the Great Seal of the Society should have a combination of those of New York and New Hampshire, including the date of the first white settlement at Dummerston, 1724, and the end of the Colonial period, 1775, also the "Beech Seal" of the "Green Mountain Boys" represented by the beech withes which bind the ribbon at the base.

The Great Seal of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont, is a ribbon of the order united at the base by beech withes, bearing a title scroll, "1724, Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont, 1775," surrounding a diaper carrying a shield bearing the Colonial Seals of New York and New Hampshire joined, surmounted by the crown.

FORM OF INSTALLATION.

The Governor elect will be escorted to the front of the chair, by the installation committee, and formally presented to the presiding officer.

The members will rise and remain standing while the Governor elect makes the following declaration: "I declare my allegiance to the United States, whose independence and unity became possible through the patriotic efforts and sacrifices of our Colonial Ancestors; and to the Commonwealth of Vermont; and that I will well and faithfully perform the duties of the office upon which I am about to enter."

The presiding officer will then vacate the chair, which will be taken by the new Governor, with such remarks as he may choose to offer.

HEMAN ALLEN WATERMAN.

Died at Johnson, Vt., August 5, 1896. In his death his native town lost one of its most respected, useful and prominent citizens. A descendant of a mixed Welsh and Scotch ancestry, his prudent habits and sterling character exhibited many of the best traits which distinguish those nationalities. Educated in the public schools of his native town and county, he early began his successful business career, as a farmer, surveyor and operator in real estate. He was frequently called upon to act as trustee and referee, discharging every trust with that faithfulness and approval which gained the confidence of the public, and identified him as a leader in the business interests of his country. He was a trustee of the State Normal school at Johnson and always manifested an earnest and active interest in its welfare. He held repeatedly every office in the gift of his townsmen, and as a member of the State Legislature in 1878 he was appointed chairman of the General Committee. For several years he was U. S. Assistant Assessor and Deputy Collector. For over forty years he was a Free Mason and a Charter member and first Worshipful Master of the Waterman Lodge named in honor of his father, Thomas Waterman, who was a Captain in the militia that served in the battle of Plattsburg. He was also a member of the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, by descent from his grandfather, Aruna Waterman, an extensive landowner in Johnson, an intimate associate of the Chittenden family and for many years a representative from that town in the General Assembly. On the 22nd of February, 1895, he was admitted a member of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont, in right of descent from Thomas Waterman, who was commissioned Ensign of the Connecticut Cavalry, 7 December, 1708. In 1855, Mr. Waterman married Augusta L., daughter of Stephen Hoxie, an early settler of Milton, Vt., who with three children survives him. In his death not only his townsmen but also his many friends throughout the State sustain a loss which will not soon or easily be filled.

JOHN ERASTUS HUBBARD.

John Erastus Hubbard was born in Montpelier, Vermont, October 24th, 1847. He was the son of Erastus Hubbard and Arabella G. (Blake) Hubbard. His father was also a native of Montpelier, having been born there September 8, 1811. His grandfather, Roger Hubbard, came from Connecticut in 1779, from which state came many of the early settlers of Vermont. It is not known at just what time he settled in Montpelier, but it was probably in 1798 or 1799; he was a merchant, shrewd and prosperous in business, and amassed for those days a very handsome property. About 1832, his son Erastus Hubbard succeeded to the business, and carried it on till 1848, when he was injured by an explosion of gunpowder, which injury so affected his eyes that before his death he became blind. He inherited the estate of his father, and soon after his injury retired from business, and thereafter devoted himself to the care of his estate.

The life of John Erastus Hubbard might be called uneventful. He was educated at the public schools in Montpelier, and with the exception of three years, when he was engaged in business at Boston, Mass., and one year spent in foreign travel, resided there continuously. He inherited the shrewdness, persistence and the business abilities of his ancestors, was energetic and resourceful, relying upon his own judgment once he had made up his mind, and only to be moved to change his judgment by a conviction that it was wrong.

He was one of those men of whom it may be truthfully said, "His word was as good as his bond," of the highest integrity in all his dealings, lenient to those in distressed circumstances, stern and unyielding to those who shirked their responsibilities, he conducted his business on business principles, asking nothing for himself he was not willing to grant to others. The gradually failing eyesight of his father cast upon him the burden of looking after the business and property of his father's estate, and to this end he came to devote his whole time and attention till the death of his father in 1890.

Mr. Hubbard inherited the bulk of his father's estate, and about the same time an aunt, Mrs. Fanny (Hubbard) Kellogg, a sister of his father, died in New York City, and her estate, through an informality in the will, descended to him. There was quite an amount of litigation before the matter was settled, as the Town of Montpelier claimed the estate of Mrs. Kellogg both under the will, and by virtue of an equitable contract between Mrs. Kellogg and her husband to devote their property to the benefit of said town. This litigation was compromised and settled, and as a result of the compromise, Mr. Hubbard bought the site and erected at a cost of about $70,000 the present beautiful public library building in Montpelier. In the erection of this library building, he expended more than double the amount he was obligated to do by the terms of the compromise. This compromise was the cause of much adverse criticism of Mr. Hubbard's actions.

Through it all he carried himself with the strictest propriety, and no one during all the time heard a word of ill-will from him toward anyone. This controversy illustrates the persistency of his character in what he believed to be right. He believed he was right in seeking to obtain the estate of his aunt for himself, and no adverse criticism could stop him in this course any more that it could in changing his purpose of ultimately benefiting even those who criticised him.

Mr. Hubbard had no fondness for society, and no desire for political preferment. He believed in progress in all things, and discharged his duties as a citizen in a conscientious way. His quiet, retiring manner was not calculated to attract people to him, and it was only those who came to be intimately associated with him, who could be said to know him for the man he really was. He was a studious man, well posted in general literature, with a love for scientific research, and especially interested in architecture and building. He was a lover of nature, and withal a sportsman in the true sense of the word, and nothing delighted him more than his annual outing, when with friends and rod and gun, he laid aside the cares of business and in the forests of Maine or Canada sought recreation and health.

After his father's death, his time was occupied in the management of his estate, and the care of his aged mother, and in the planning and building of the Kellogg-Hubbard Library, which stands as a memorial to his memory, and to the memory of those whose wealth made this gift to the citizens of his native town and city possible.

Mr. Hubbard died on July 19th, 1899, in his fifty-second year of life. He was never married. His mother at the age of 84 survives him. His only sister, Lucy B. married Hon. B. F. Fifield and died a short time before him, leaving her husband and three daughters surviving her. Early in the spring of 1899, he began to show signs of failing and about six weeks before his death he took his bed, and gradually grew weaker till his decease. He knew his condition all the time, and he met death with the same courage and coolness that he met every trouble through life, and in the same quiet and thoughtful way. His public bequests to his native city amount to nearly $250,000 and are by far the largest ever made to it or to its institutions. His nature was kindly and sympathetic; he was generous and charitable to the faults of others and true and loyal in his friendships; a good citizen, a kind and loving son and brother. He was buried in the family lot in Green Mount Cemetery, July 21, and his last resting place is marked by a bronze figure typical of one who,

"Wraps the drapery of his couch about him
And lies down to pleasant dreams."

Mr. Hubbard became a member of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont in February, 1895, in right of descent, on his father's side, from George Hubbard, who was a Deputy to the General Court from Wethersfield, Milford and Guilford, Conn., from 1643 to near the close of his life; and from Lieut. William Spencer who was one of the original members of the "Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company," and was repeatedly a Deputy to the General Court of Massachusetts Bay and Hartford, Conn. On his mother's side he was the great-grandson of Nathan Blake, a soldier in Fort Keene, N. H., 1746, who was kept a prisoner in Canada for two years, and subsequently was exchanged for a French officer. Mr. Hubbard held the office of Chancellor of the Society in 1897, and was a member of the Committee in 1898-99.

JULIUS WILLIAM RUSSELL.

Judge Russell was born in Moira, N. Y., September 1, 1846. He was the son of William P. and Lydia (Miner) Russell, who removed in his youth to Shelburne, Vt. Prepared for College at the Academies in Williston and Shelburne, he entered the Wesleyan University in September, 1864, where he remained two years, when he removed to Yale College and was graduated in the Class of 1868. Returning to Vermont he was principal of the Hinesburgh Academy until December 1869, when he became a law student in the office of Hon. Wm. G. Shaw of Burlington, Vt. The following year he attended the Columbia Law School. In 1871 he studied in the law office of Hon. L. B. Englesby, until his admission to the Chittenden County Bar, in September, 1871. He held the offices of City Grand Juror from 1872-74 and 1891, City School Commissioner from 1879 to 1885. State's Attorney of Chittenden County in 1883 and 1884. On April 2, 1894, he was appointed by Gov. Levi K. Fuller, Judge of the City Court of Burlington, and served most acceptably in that office until his death. In the discharge of all of his public duties his sound judgment, legal ability, unquestioned integrity and kindness of heart were universally recognized. Modest and unaggressive by nature, the sincerity of his motives and high moral character won for him the confidence and respect of all with whom he had to do. Though never robust in physique, his simple, temperate and consistent habits of life largely contributed to his general good health and happy disposition, which so strongly attached him to his many friends, and when on February 25th, 1900, his wearied body yielded to an attack of typhoid fever, from which it was supposed he was recovering, his death came as a sudden shock to all who knew him. They felt that an upright, manly man universally respected, had passed away.

Judge Russell was married Dec. 31, 1872, to Kate, daughter of Dr. Elmer and Emeline (Dudley) Beecher of Hinesburgh, Vt., who with three children, survives him. He was a member of the Washington Lodge of F. and A. M., of the Y. M. C. Association and of the Algonquin Club of Burlington, of which he was President when he died. On February 22, 1898, he was elected a member of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont, in right of descent from Thomas Miner of Pequot, (New London), Conn., an ancestor on his mother's side. Thomas Miner was born in England in 1607, and emigrated to America in Gov. John Winthrop's Company in 1630. He was one of the founders of Pequot. In 1665 he was the chief military officer of the Train-Band at Mystic, Conn., a Captain in King Philip's War and frequently a Deputy to the General Court of Connecticut from 1650 to 1673.

Only three days before his death Judge Russell was elected Registrar of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont.

RESOLUTION.

At the Seventh Annual Court of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont, the following resolution, offered by Col. G. G. Benedict, was unanimously adopted:

Resolved,—That in view of the departure from this life, since the last general court of this Society, of Judge Julius William Russell, we desire to place on record our high appreciation of his many virtues. He was faithful to every duty. He was a valuable citizen, a good lawyer, an efficient officer and an upright judge. He was what has been called "the noblest work of God, an honest man," and as such and as a worthy member of this society, we will hold him in honored remembrance.

JAMES CLAY HOUGHTON.

Died in Naples, Italy, March 4, 1902, at the outset of a vacation devoted to a tour abroad in pursuit of rest and recuperation, having sailed with a party of friends on the steamship "Commonwealth" from Boston on February 12th. The remains were brought back to this country and the members of the Council, Past Governors, and other officers and members of this Society attended the funeral at Montpelier in a body. At the meeting of the Society held March 12th, resolutions were adopted expressing the Society's deep sense of loss in his untimely death, and appreciation of his work as a patriot, citizen and man.

Mr. Houghton was born in Petersham, Worcester County, Mass., 2 September, 1841. His father, Rev. James C. Houghton, was a Congregational minister. His mother's maiden name was Julia Morton. The family removed to Chelsea, Vt., in 1857. Mr. Houghton fitted for college in the Academy at East Windsor Hill, Conn., and graduated from Amherst College in 1862, receiving the degree of A. B. After graduation, he studied law for two years, and was for a short time Deputy Clerk of Orange County, Vt., until he became the cashier of the Orange County National Bank at Chelsea. This position he held until 1871, when he moved to Montpelier to become the cashier of the First National Bank there. In 1874, he was elected a director of the National Life Insurance Co. of Vermont; in 1885 he became the Treasurer of that Company, was elected its Vice-President in 1897, and President in January, 1901. For many years he was treasurer of the Montpelier Board of Public Instruction, and rendered efficient service to his city on that Board. He was often a delegate to County, District and State Republican Conventions, and in 1886 he represented Montpelier in the legislature. Although a Congregationalist, Mr. Houghton attended Christ Protestant Episcopal Church in Montpelier, and was a member of Mt. Zion Commandery, Knights Templar. Besides being Governor of this Society, he was first Vice-President of the Vermont Historical Society, President of the Wood Art Gallery, a trustee of the Washington County Grammar School, and a director of the First National Bank of Montpelier.

He married in 1869, Miss Grace R. Blackwell of Philadelphia, Pa., who survives him, as do also their two children, Edward Rittenhouse Houghton of Cambridge, Mass., and Grace Morton Houghton of Montpelier. He is also survived by a brother, Joseph S. Houghton, of Stamford, Conn., and a sister, Julia M. Houghton of Montpelier.
These particulars are from an obituary sketch of Mr. Houghton in the March, 1902, number of the “Vermonter” which says that “for a period of twenty-eight years he was intimately and influentially identified with the largest financial institution in Vermont, the National Life Insurance Company, devoting to its work and progress the best part of his life, and all his energies; that he was universally recognized as a broad-minded and public spirited citizen; and that his essential characteristics were absolute honesty, a faculty of constant work, fidelity to every trust, and a certain charming personality, which, coupled with many acts of kindness, brought and held him the friendship of men.”

RESOLUTIONS.

At a meeting of the Council of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont, called especially for the purpose, the following Resolutions were presented by Deputy Governor George Grenville Benedict and unanimously adopted by the Council:

Resolved, That, as the Council of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont, and in behalf of that Society, we express our deep sense of loss in the untimely death of our brother and Governor elect, James Clay Houghton, and our appreciation of his worth as a patriot and citizen and man.

Mr. Houghton became a member of this society February 22, 1895, and in succeeding years he held most of the highest offices in the gift of the Society, having been a member of the Committee on Membership in 1896, Registrar 1898-9, Delegate to the National Convention 1899, Lieutenant Governor 1900, Deputy Governor in 1901, and for three years 1898-01, a member of the Council. At the recent General Court, February 22, 1902, he was unanimously elected Governor. He was then on the ocean on his way to Italy, and before the letter conveying the notification of his election and the best wishes of his compatriots for his restoration to health could reach him, he had passed from earth.

Mr. Houghton was a man of sterling character. He bore the burdens of important public and private trusts with marked ability and the highest fidelity. He rendered valuable service in many local and responsible offices. He fulfilled his duties as a citizen with constant and unselfish attention. In his private life he was all that was estimable and of good report, exemplifying the character of a Christian gentleman, and winning by his unvarying courtesy and kindliness the esteem of all who were brought in contact with him in the various relations of life.

Resolved, That we will hold the memory of our departed brother in affectionate remembrance; that we tender to his widow, his children and others on whom the blow of his death falls with heaviest force, our deep sympathy with them in their crushing loss; and that the Secretary be instructed to convey to Mrs. Houghton this expression of the sorrow and the mourning which we share with these most deeply bereaved by the death of our brother and friend.

March 11th, 1902.

GENERAL JULIUS JACOB ESTEY.

Died at his home in Brattleboro, Vermont, 7 March, 1902. His funeral was attended by a great number of people. The remains were escorted by Co. I, 1st Vermont regiment to the First Baptist Church in Brattleboro, and there lay in state. The State of Vermont was represented at the funeral by the Governor and other officials; and friends and acquaintances came from all over the State and the whole country to pay their last tribute to his memory.

He became a member of this society 22 February, 1895, was a member of its Council in 1896, and again in 1901, and was a delegate to the National Convention of 1899. At a meeting of the Society held March 12th, resolutions were adopted commemorative of his nobility of character, and expressing the sorrow of the Society in the loss of a member so greatly respected and well beloved.

He was born in Brattleboro, Vt., 8 January, 1845. He was the second child and only son of Deacon Jacob and Desdemona (Wood) Estey. His grandfather, Isaac Estey was engaged in the lumber business at Hinsdale, N. H., to which place he came from Sutton, Mass., when a young man. Gen. Estey's father, Deacon Jacob Estey, one of the foremost men of Vermont, a man of high ideals in religion and personal life, and of great strength of character, and large business ability. He established at Brattleboro in 1846 the organ industry which his management, and that of his son, son-in-law, and grandsons has since developed into such very large proportions that the Estey organs are famous throughout the whole country and all over the world.

Gen. Estey was educated in the public schools of Brattleboro, and at Norwich University. In that institution, however, he took only a partial course, leaving it to enter the employ of his father in the manufacture of organs. He was first engaged in the office of the Chicago branch of the business. At the age of 21 he was admitted a partner in the firm of J. Estey & Co., together with his brother-in-law, Levi K. Fuller, afterwards Governor of Vermont. Upon the organization of the business as the Estey Organ Company, Gen. Estey became its Treasurer, and held that position until the death of his father in 1891, and of Ex-Gov. Fuller in 1896, when he became the head of the Company, and associated with him in the business his two sons, Colonel Jacob Gray Estey, and Captain Julius Harry Estey.

In speaking of his business qualities the Windham County Reformer of 7 March, 1902, in a sketch of Gen. Estey's life, says:

"It is one of the most attractive personalities in our local life, and one of the largest factors in those things that make for the betterment of community conditions that passes out from among us in Gen. Estey. He is the last of the trio of remarkable men, and remarkable too for the way they supplemented each other, that built up the Estey organ business to be the great industry of Brattleboro that has made the name familiar to the confines of civilization, and beyond, the world over. Deacon Estey was a veritable general in business, with a master hand for its large operations, as well as for careful control of its details; Col. Fuller was a man of master conceptions for its extension and upbuilding, and for the mechanical and technical superiority that made its only safe basis; while for the office and financial management, for the cementing of friendly relations and the inspiration of effort with the army of agents all over the world, the management of credit, and the laying of the plans that are so vital in such an establishment, Gen. Estey, with his sound and conservative judgment, his fine and high sense of honor, and his kindly and social quality and his even poise of fairness and good temper, was remarkably well equipped for the rounding out of the business."

The January, 1901, number of the "Vermonter," in a sketch of his life, says that on the business side of life Gen. Estey had "a large grasp of affairs, an acquaintance with men broadened by much travel such as few enjoy, and a natural tact in mingling with all sorts and conditions of men, while strictly maintaining his own individuality. No man of his time enjoyed to a greater extent the confidence of his own townsmen."

While Gen. Estey's life was mainly devoted to the extension and development of the industry in the success of which he was so large a factor, he, at the same time took a keen interest in the social, religious, and political life of his town, county and state. He was a director of the People's National Bank of Brattleboro, and was president of that prosperous institution since 1886, a position which he filled with ability. He was for some years President of the Estey Piano Company of New York City. He was a director of the Estey Manufacturing Company of Owosso, Mich., makers of furniture, and a member of the Manufacturers' Association of Philadelphia, Pa.

He represented the town of Brattleboro in the Legislature of 1876, and was State Senator from Windham County for the biennial term beginning in 1882. He was an active factor in the work of the Republican party of Vermont, and was one of the active men of the State in the work of the Republican National League. In 1888 he was a delegate at large from Vermont to the Republican National Convention, where, with Senator Proctor, he was one of the leaders in securing the nomination of President Harrison. It has been said that President Harrison so greatly appreciated his services that, in addition to his friendship, he would have honored him otherwise, but Gen. Estey would not accept an office. When the President subsequently visited Vermont he was Gen. Estey's guest at Brattleboro.

Gen. Estey was President of the Vermont Society of Sons of the Revolution, and was active in promoting the membership of that Society. He was a member of Columbian Lodge of Masons, and Beauseant Commandery Knights Templar, and was Treasurer of the Vermont Valley Fair, one of the most successful of Vermont's agricultural institutions.

Gen. Estey became interested in military affairs at an early age. In 1874 he organized the Estey Guard of Brattleboro, which was Co. I, in the 1st Regiment Vermont National Guards, and was elected Captain of that Company. Two years later he was appointed to the military staff of Gov. Horace Fairbanks, with the rank of Colonel, and in 1881 was elected Lieutenant Colonel of the First Regiment Vermont National Guard, which position he held until he became Colonel of the regiment in 1886.

In 1892 he was promoted to the command of the brigade, with the rank of brigadier-general, and this position he held until November, 1900, when, upon his own recommendation, the brigade organization was discontinued by the legislature. He did effective service in the organization of the militia. As stated in a newspaper publication at the time of his death, "to him more than to any one other man was due the uplifting of the morale of the Vermont National Guard, and the establishment of a standard of sobriety in its conduct and purpose, in place of the old time way when much that was proper and more that was serious were sacrificed to pleasure and display."

Of his military service the Burlington Free Press of 8 March, 1902, said that "it was a matter of record that Gen. Estey had always commanded one of the finest and best disciplined military bodies in the New England States, that he was considerate, polite and popular with his men, who loved and respected their leader as few similar organizations do, and that this was due as much perhaps to the strong Christian character of the man as to his soldierly qualities, for not the least portion of his life was exerted in active service for his church, where he always successfully endeavored to inspire higher and nobler work in the denomination to which he belonged."

Gen. Estey was one of the founders of the Young Men's Christian Association in Brattleboro; was elected President thereof in 1833, and filled that office until his death, engaging actively in its work and maintenance. He was also for years active in State gatherings of the Y. M. C. A., and was Chairman of the State Executive Committee thereof.

A member of the Baptist Church, he was always active and prominent in religious work, not only in his own town but also throughout the State and the whole country. As stated in the sketch of his life in the "Vermont," "he gave himself without stint to the work of his denomination, and was known at home and abroad as an active and devoted exponent of religious life." He was President of the Baptist State Sunday School Association; President of the Board of Managers of the Vermont Baptist State Convention; and a member of the executive committee of the American Baptist Missionary Union. From the first establishment of the Northfield Seminary by Mr. Moody, Gen. Estey was its treasurer. He was one of the dearest friends of the founder of that institution, one to whom he always turned in time of trouble, and one of the best supporters the school ever had. He was also greatly interested in the boys' school at Mount Hermon. He was a member of the Board of Trustees of that school, and was also treasurer of the Vermont Academy at Saxton's River.
Among the other institutions to the support of which Gen.
Estey and his father were always large contributors were the Shaw University for colored youth in North Carolina, the Chicago University, the Judson project, besides a multitude of Baptist churches built by them, and a constant stream of young men helped by them through college, and to an education for the ministry.

In 1867, Gen. Estey married Miss Florence Gray, daughter of Dr. Henry Gray of Cambridgeport, N. Y. She survives him, as do also his two sons already mentioned. A third and younger son, Guy Carpenter Estey, died in 1897.

The following tribute is from an issue of a Brattleboro newspaper at the time of his death:

"The Phoenix has never carried to its readers news which will come as a burden of intimate personal sorrow to so many hearts in the home community as that which holds chief place in its columns today. Julius J. Estey was everybody's friend. This was not true of him simply in a perfunctory and stereotyped way. His friendship was genuine and sincere. It knew no lines of class or rank. Before the world he bore an unblemished character. But the best tribute that can be paid to his memory is to say that to his most intimate associates—in the business office of the Estey Organ company, in his own home, to his own sons, he stood as a type of genuine Christian manhood. He was broad and generous by nature, and much travel and wide acquaintance with the world had broadened and deepened him without dulling any essential principle. He had his own convictions of right to guide his own personal life, but he never acted the censor upon the life of those about him. He was a man of piety, and it found expressions in his daily life. Outspoken and devoted in his own religious belief and connection, his religion found expression oftener in deeds than in words. His abounding good nature and wide tolerance left no room for selfish meanness. Whatever else he was, Julius J. Estey was an honest, sincere, conscientious man.

It was an impressive tribute which was paid to his memory by the people of his own town, and by the large numbers who came from distant places to unite in the final expression of love and esteem. What made the occasion really impressive was the fact that this expression was so manifestly spontaneous and heartfelt. Many Brattleboro friends who attended the services on Sunday evening, as well as the funeral on Monday, then came fully to realize for the first time how large and essential a factor General Estey had been in the broader activities of the religious denomination with which he was connected. We had known him as a living, outspoken exponent of religious life, active and unwearying in support of the work of his own church, of the Young Men's Christian Association, and of many educational and philanthropic movements. But not all realized that in the world-wide missionary work of the Baptist denomination he was a leader—one of a tried and chosen few who are not only looked to for counsel and for material help, but who take a laboring oar and give themselves heart and soul to a cause in which they devoutly believe. "He was easily one of a half dozen of the ablest, best known and most active laymen of the Baptist denomination the country over," was Dr. Mabie's final estimate in his address Sunday evening.

It was natural that those who gave addresses Monday afternoon should place the main emphasis on this side of General Estey's life and character. But there were in the pews a body of laymen, General Estey's comrades from all parts of Vermont, who could have spoken with equal earnestness, and enthusiasm of what he was as a man on the everyday side of life; as a man among men, a friend and companion, an all-round good citizen; of his long and zealous and inspiring service in the National Guard, giving himself heart and soul to the elevation of the service in the morale of the men, and for its efficiency in the field; of his services for the Republican party, and his high standing with its leaders; of service rendered his state in many ways, notably as a trustee of the Soldier's Home at Bennington, as the president of the Vermont Society of Sons of the American Revolution, and in many minor capacities. If some of them had said what was in their hearts, they would have spoken most of all of his hearty good fellowship, and of his enjoyment of the distinctly human side of life.

Much might be added, but to the Brattleboro community, speaking out of the heart of a universal friendship, it is all summed up in Hamlet's immortal characterization of his dead father, the King of Denmark:—

"He was a man, take him for all in all, I shall not look upon his like again."

RESOLUTIONS.

At a special meeting of the Council of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont, March 11th, 1902, the following resolutions were presented by Gen. T. S. Peck and unanimously adopted by the Council:
Hiram Augustus Huse.
Resolved, That as members of the Council of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont, we desire to place on record an expression of our respect for the memory of our departed compatriot, Julius Jacob Estey, and a tribute to his noble character and unblemished record.

General Estey was for seven years a faithful member of this Society. He joined it Feb. 22nd, 1895; was a member of its Council in 1896, and again in 1901; and was a delegate to the National Convention of 1899. As a leading citizen of our State, prominent alike in civil, military and business life; as a manufacturer, banker, legislator and officer of the National Guard, in which he held the highest rank; as a friend and supporter of education, religion, and all good interests, and as a working member of many worthy enterprises in his town and church and state, Gen. Estey furnished an example of a patriotic, public-spirited, conscientious and high-minded citizen and gentleman. The death of such a man, in the height of his usefulness, is a heavy loss to our Society and to the community at large.

Resolved, That we commend the widow, sons and sister of Gen. Estey to the care of Him who orders all human events in infinite kindness to His children, and request them to accept this imperfect testimonial of our regard for our brother, who has left us for a better home, and of our sympathy with all who mourn his loss.

Resolved, That the Secretary be instructed to send a copy of these resolutions to Mrs. Estey.

HIRAM AUGUSTUS HUSE.

In 1900 he was Chancellor of this Society and in 1902, and at the time of his death, he was one of the Committee on Historical Documents.

He was born in Randolph, Vt., 17 January, 1843, and was the son of Hiram Sylvester and Emily Morgan (Blodgett) Huse. When he was two years old his parents removed to Wisconsin, and he attended the public schools there, and Willard's Seminary at Watertown, Wis., and Dixon, Ill. He taught school for a short time in the west, and then came to Randolph in 1860 to fit for college in the Orange County Grammar School. After fitting for college he again taught school, and was assistant to Edward Conant in the State Normal School.

He was graduated at Dartmouth College in 1865, and at the Albany Law School in 1867, and was admitted to the New York bar at Albany. He removed to Montpelier in 1872, and began the practice of law there at that time, and was also editorial writer on the Green Mountain Freeman for about ten years. In 1882 he was elected State's Attorney. In 1883 he formed a law partnership with Clarence H. Pitkin and the law firm of Pitkin & Huse continued until 1890. He was a prominent member of the Vermont Bar Association,—in 1889 and 1890 was one of the Managers thereof,—and from 1891 to 1893, inclusive, he was a member of the Vermont Bar Association's Committee on Jurisprudence and Law Reform.

At the expiration of Gov. Dillingham's term as Governor of Vermont in 1890, Mr. Huse formed a law partnership with him under the firm name of Dillingham & Huse; and when Fred. A. Howland was admitted to the partnership in 1892, the firm became Dillingham, Huse & Howland. Mr. Huse was counsel for the Langdon and the Hubbard Estate, and the National Life Insurance Company.

During the War of the Rebellion he served as a private in Co. F, 12th Vermont Volunteers, enlisting during his college course, 19 Aug., 1862, and serving until his regiment was mustered out, 14 July, 1863.

He married in Randolph, January 30th, 1872, Harriet Olivia
Woodbury, daughter of Melzar and Eunice Harriet (Smith)
Woodbury. Two children were born to them, viz.: a daughter, Harriet Emily Huse, who became the wife of the late Postmaster C. C. Bancroft, and a son, Ray Woodbury Huse.

From 1873 until his death, Mr. Huse was State Librarian, and he represented Montpelier in the Legislature in 1878.
ROBERT JACKSON KIMBALL.
He was Director of the Union Mutual Fire Insurance Co., one of the founders of the Montpelier Board of Trade, a Trustee of the Kellogg-Hubbard Library, a Director of Heaton Hospital, a member of the Apollo Club, for many years a member of the school board, and also for many years a justice of the peace. He was a member of Brooks Post, Grand Army of the Republic, Aurora Lodge of Masons, and the Sons of the American Revolution.

In announcing his death, the periodicals of the State mentioned his extensive personal acquaintance throughout Vermont, the high esteem in which he was held by the people of the State, the patriotism he had demonstrated by gallant service in the War for the Union, his faithfulness and efficiency in public service and positions of trust, his loyalty to the State and to his friendships, and the example of good citizenship and leadership of public opinion afforded by his life.

ROBERT JACKSON KIMBALL.

Died suddenly, from an attack of heart trouble, at his winter home in Brooklyn, N. Y., to which he had returned only the day before, with his family, from his residence in Randolph, Vt.

The news of his death brought universal sorrow to his fellow townsmen. The flag on the "Kimball Public Library," his gift to his native town in 1901, was lowered to half-mast and his portrait and the front of the building was draped with mourning and closed on the day of his funeral in Brooklyn.

Col. Kimball was born in Randolph, Vt., 16 February, 1836. He was a descendant from Richard Kimball of Ipswich, Conn., who came to this country from Ipswich, England, in 1634, and was an ancestor of Daniel Webster, the statesman. In the Revolutionary War, Col. Kimball's great-grandfather, Capt. John Kimball, took part, and his grandfather, Richard Kimball, served in the 3rd Conn. Regiment under Col. S. B. Webb, and removed from Pomfret, Conn., to Randolph about 1795. His father, Hiram Kimball, was a life-long and honored citizen of that village. For more than a hundred years the family home in Randolph has been maintained by the Kimballs, father, son and grandson. Col. Kimball’s mother’s maiden name was Jerusha Bradish, and his Colonial ancestor, whose name appears in the registry of this Society, was Robert Bradish, a scout in the French and Indian War. He was one of the Charter members, 1894, of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont. In 1896, he was Deputy Secretary. In 1894-1895, 1897 and 1898, he was one of the Gentlemen of the Council, and from 1899-1902, he was a delegate to the General Assembly of the National Society. Educated in the public schools and Academy of West Randolph, he began his successful and honorable business life as a railroad newsboy, and then telegraph operator in Randolph, Rouses Point, St. Lamberts, and Montreal. From 1855-1858, he was in the employ of the National Express Co. at Burlington, Vt. During this period he was one of the organizers of the Ethan Allen Engine Co. in that town, and was its first clerk and treasurer. In this organization he ever afterwards took great interest. In 1862, he entered a banking house in Toronto, Canada, and also held the position of U. S. Consular agent. While in the discharge of his consular duties he was instrumental in the arrest of Col. Robert C. Kennedy, who was chief of a number of Confederate refugees who were plotting to burn the City of New York. Col. Kennedy was subsequently tried, convicted and hung as a spy. In 1865, Col. Kimball removed to New York City and established the banking house of R. J. Kimball & Co., which still continues. In the panic of 1872, this firm was compelled to settle with its creditors for twenty-five cents on the dollar, but although by so doing, a full discharge of all obligations was obtained, nine years later, after having retrieved his fortunes, Col. Kimball not only repaid the balance of the firm's indebtedness but also the interest on the amount for the entire period, an act characteristic of his uncompromising honesty. In 1887, he erected his beautiful house in Randolph, and became again a citizen of Vermont. He was an aide-de-camp on Gov. Dillingham's staff, in 1888, 1889, and a representative from the town of Randolph in 1890-1891, serving on the Committees of Ways and Means, Banks and the special joint committee on the World's Columbian Exposition. In 1893, he was appointed by Gov. Fuller to represent Vermont at the Bankers' Congress in Chicago. He was a member of the N. Y. Stock Exchange since 1867, the N. Y. Produce Exchange and Chamber of Commerce, and held seats in the Philadelphia and Chicago Exchanges. He was a Trustee of the Peoples' Trust Co. of Brooklyn, N. Y., of the District Telegraph Co., a Director of the Iowa Central Railway Co., of which he was President in 1899, 1900. He was also a Trustee and generous friend of the Emmanuel Baptist Church, in Brooklyn, of the Pratt Institute, the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, and of the State Normal School at Randolph. In 1899, he was elected one of the Trustees of the University of Vermont, a position he held at the time of his death. To this University and to Amherst College he gave free scholarships. He was one of the organizers of the Brooklyn Society of Vermonters, of which he was Secretary and President. He was a member of the Vermont Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, and in 1897, its President, and also of several leading Clubs in Greater New York.

In numberless ways he manifested his loyalty to his native state. During the Spanish-American War he contributed largely to the relief of the soldiers in camp, besides offering to equip a Company from Randolph, an offer which Gov. Grout was compelled to decline as the State quota had been filled.
In 1863, he married Martha L., daughter of Charles A. Morse, of Toronto, Canada, who with three children survives him.

Col. Kimball was a man of upright life, always kind and generous; most highly esteemed for his many estimable qualities as a man of affairs, an exemplary citizen, a true and appreciative friend. At all times ready to encourage and support every worthy enterprise. In his death, Vermont lost one of her best and noblest citizens, one for whose unselfish and uncalculating nobility of soul, and wisdom in counsel, she had most to expect, one to whom an appeal was never disappointed, and many a struggling youth found a rough path smoothed by a man in whose hand great wealth was only a means for doing good.

RESOLUTIONS.

At a meeting of the Council of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont, held in the hall of the society, October 19, 1903, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That this society desires to place upon record its appreciation of the worth, and its sorrow at the loss, of our brother member, Robert Jackson Kimball.

Colonel Kimball traced his descent from Robert Bradish, a soldier of the French and Indian War, and from an ancestor of his family name who came to America from England in 1634. His great grandfather, John Kimball, was a captain in the Continental army, and his grandfather, Richard Kimball, was also a soldier of the Revolution, and one of the pioneers of the town of Randolph, Vermont, of which our brother became one of the chief benefactors and most prominent citizens. He was one of the charter members of this society. He held the offices of deputy secretary, 1896, and member of the council, 1897-'99, and an appointment as delegate to the general assembly of the national society. As a banker and man of business, as a member of the Legislature, as an aid on the governor's staff, as a trustee of our State university, as a giver of generous benefactions to his town, and in other notable ways, he showed unswerving loyalty to his native State, and his cordial interest in its welfare. He held various offices of trust in his city home in Brooklyn, N. Y., and filled them with wise fidelity. In the private circle of his home he was an embodiment of kindness and thoughtful and affectionate care. In his sudden departure from earth we mourn the loss of a worthy compatriot, a Christian gentleman, and a valued citizen, and as such we will hold him in honored remembrance.

Resolved, That we tender to his widow and children our sincerest sympathy with them in their sore affliction, and that the secretary be instructed to convey to them this expression of the sorrow which we share with them.

HON. CHARLES DEWEY.

Hon. Charles Dewey died in Montpelier, Vermont, August 31st, 1905.

He was elected a member of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont, at the second meeting held by the Society, on February 22nd, 1895. He was one of the Committee appointed at that time to represent the Society at the dedication of the Chittenden monument in Williston. On Feb. 22nd, 1896, he was elected one of the Gentlemen of the Council. On Feb. 22nd, 1897, he was elected Lieutenant-Governor of the Society; on Feb. 22nd, 1898, he was elected Deputy Governor; and on Feb. 22nd, 1899, he was elected Governor. From Feb. 22nd, 1900, until Feb. 22nd, 1903, he was one of the Gentlemen of the Council, and from Feb. 22nd, 1900, until the time of his death, he was a member of the Committee on Historical Documents. He was also a member of the Vermont Society of the Sons of the American Revolution.

He was ninth in descent from Thomas Dewey, the first of the name in this country, and who in 1633 came from Sandwich, Kent, England, to Dorchester, Mass., removed in 1638 to Windsor, Conn., and was a Deputy to the General Court of Connecticut. Seventh from Capt. Samuel Talcott of Deerfield, Mass., a Deputy and Governor's Assistant in Conn., and eighth from Maj. John Talcott, Commander-in-chief of the Colony of Conn., Treasurer and Governor's Assistant, and Commissioner for the United Colonies.

Mr. Charles Dewey was also descended from William Pynchon, founder and Governor of Springfield, Mass., for several years treasurer of the Colony of Massachusetts, and one of the Commissioners to govern Connecticut.

Mr. Dewey was born in Montpelier, March 27th, 1826. He was the eldest son of Dr. Julius Y. Dewey, for many years a practising physician in Montpelier, and the first President of the National Life Insurance Co. of Vermont.

Mr. Charles Dewey prepared for college in the Washington County Grammar School in Montpelier, and graduated from the University of Vermont in the class of 1845. Immediately after graduation he was appointed Assistant Secretary of the Vermont Mutual Fire Insurance Company. In January, 1850, he became its Secretary, and served as Secretary until 1871, and as a Director for thirty years. In January, 1851, he was elected a Director of the National Life Insurance Co.; in 1871, was chosen Vice-President thereof, and was its President from 1877 until his retirement from active business in 1901.

He was elected a Director of the First National Bank of Montpelier at its organization in 1865, was Vice-President thereof from 1878 to 1891, and its President since 1891.

He was for many years Director, Vice-President and later President of the Lane Manufacturing Company, the chief industry of Montpelier.

For more than fifty years Mr. Dewey was a vestryman in Christ Episcopal Church, Montpelier. For six years he was Junior Warden, and for twenty-three years until his death, Senior Warden. He often represented that church in diocesan conventions, and in 1886, was a delegate from Vermont to the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church held in Philadelphia. For more than forty-five years he was a member of the Board of Agents for the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, and for several years, Trustee and Vice-President of the Board of Trustees of the Episcopal Fund, and Chairman of the Investment Committee.

He served as a Trustee of the Washington County Grammar School since 1864, and was President of the Board of Trustees since 1877. For two successive years he was President of the Alumni Association of the University of Vermont.

He was three times elected a State Senator for Washington County, viz.: in 1867, 1868 and 1869. He was appointed by the Governor, Inspector of Finance and Savings Bank Examiner in 1882 and 1883, but declined a re-appointment. In 1895, he was Chairman of the United States Commission to locate the United States Post Office and Court House in Montpelier.

In a brief memorial to Mr. Dewey, published at the time of his death, the National Life Insurance Company attested his valuable service in these words:

“'To the list of eminent men who truly sought and achieved the best well-being of this company is added the name of Charles Dewey. The records of this office attest the long faithful and most useful service to the Company by this officer, director and policy holder, but they cannot and do not declare the characteristics which made his direction of affairs and his management a source of pleasure to his associates, and thus of service to the Company whose work he did so long. In carriage a gentleman of the old school, in conduct always a model of perfect urbanity, in address wholly gracious, in reference to the opinions of others strictly kind, in habits perfect, in discharge of personal obligations prompt and exact, in affection for home and home things absolutely loyal, in his regard of associates secure, and in his constant discharge of all duties, whether of large trust or routine, sincere and true. Such was Mr. Dewey as we knew him.”

In a sketch of his life the principal Montpelier periodical said of him:

“Of a strong nature, his life could not help but have a marked influence. As husband and father, the 57 years during which Mr. and Mrs. Dewey have shared the joys and sorrows of life in an ever growing devotion to each other, the veritable love feast that has always marked the return of the sons and daughters to the home roof, these tell the story of an ideal home life.

As a citizen of Montpelier, Mr. Dewey’s influence had always been for that which was best. In everything affecting the welfare of the community his interest had been keen and in all important matters his advice and help had been sought and never denied. His keen business instincts and his judicious mind made him an invaluable citizen. Every Sunday found him in his pew at Christ Church, unless he were unavoidably detained, and the Christianity that his attendance and membership of the church implied was exemplified in every act of his life during all the days of the week.

The offices of responsibility and trust that he has held in the state government bear witness to the fact that the sterling worth of Mr. Dewey had become a matter of knowledge outside the borders of his home community. But the deceased became known far outside the borders of Vermont, through his prominence in the Episcopal Church and his connection with the National Life Insurance Company. As far as his name is known, his life and memory are universally respected.”
RESOLUTIONS.

At a meeting of the Council of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont, held February 22, 1906, the following resolutions, reported by a committee consisting of George Grenville Benedict, Charles Edwin Allen, and Theodore Safford Peck, were presented and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That in view of the death of Charles Dewey, this Society desires to testify its appreciation of his worthy life and to express its sorrow for his death.

Tracing his descent from men who were especially distinguished among the pioneers of our country, the life and character of Mr. Dewey were worthy of his ancestry.

Mr. Dewey was elected a member of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont, February 22, 1895. In 1896 and in 1900-1903, he was one of the Gentlemen of the Council. He was elected Lieutenant Governor of the Society in 1897, Deputy Governor in 1898, and Governor in 1899, and at the time of his death he was a member of the Committee on Historical Documents. He was a graduate of the University of Vermont, and for two years, 1893-1894, was President of its Associate Alumni. Trained in the exact school of Life Insurance, he rose to the office of President of the National Life Insurance Company, of Montpelier, Vt., which position he held for twenty-four years.

Frequently called to discharge duties of responsibility in business, in State and Church, his great heart and gracious manner, his personal interest, faithfulness, and integrity, gained and kept the love, respect, and confidence of all who knew him. An affectionate husband and father, a loyal friend, a successful business man, a valued and influential citizen, a Christian gentleman, we honor his memory and mourn his loss.

Resolved, That we extend to his widow and family our sincere sympathy.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to them and be entered upon the record of this Society.

RESOLUTIONS.

GOVERNOR GENERAL FREDERIC J. DE PEYSTER.

Died at Lakewood, N. J., on May 11, 1905. His death was sudden and occurred soon after the meeting of the Triennial Assembly of the General Society of Colonial Wars, on May 3, at which he presided.

At a meeting of the Council of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont, called for the purpose, May 20, 1905, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That in the recent sudden death of its first and only Governor General, Frederic J. de Peyster, the General Society of Colonial Wars and its component Societies, have suffered an irreparable loss.

Descendant of one of the oldest Dutch families on this side of the Atlantic, member of a family line which has given to the country many distinguished jurists, soldiers, financiers, and men of letters, himself an able lawyer and scholar, interested in education, art, science, and civic affairs—officer and member of many charitable, benevolent, and learned societies, he graced every office and station in which he was placed. His care for the interests of the Society of Colonial Wars, and the efficiency, courtesy, and genial humor with which he presided over its General Assemblies and Councils, won for him the respect and esteem of all its members. In his departure from earth, we mourn the loss of a valued officer of the Society, a worthy fellow-member, a high minded citizen, and a true gentleman.

Resolved, That this expression of our sorrow and respect be spread upon the records of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Vermont, and that the Governor thereof be instructed to forward a copy of the same to the Vice Governor General, and a copy to the family of the deceased, with an assurance of our respectful sympathy with them in their heavy loss.

Daniel Webster Robinson, Governor.
Byron Nathaniel Clark, Secretary.
WARS
ENGLISH COLONIES IN AMERICA.

AN ADDRESS BEFORE THE SOCIETY OF COLONIAL WARS IN THE STATE OF VERMONT, AT ITS FIRST PUBLIC MEETING, FEBRUARY 22, 1895.

By Hon. George Grenville Benedict.

After some introductory remarks, emphasizing the importance and value of the patriotic societies organized since the Civil War, which cut across the lines of division between North and South that culminated in that mighty struggle, and which serve to swell the chorus of the restored Union by recalling the earlier times and events in which Northerners and Southerners fought side by side, and all were American patriots, the speaker said:

Another and far abler speaker than myself was, as some of you know, selected to address us on this occasion. Drafted suddenly and with only hasty preparation to rattle around in his place, it has occurred to me that at our first meeting, and as introductory to the interesting addresses which we may expect at future meetings, it might not be amiss to remind ourselves just what the "colonial wars," which our society commemorates were. If we knew, as I suppose all of us did in our schoolboy days, something about them, the facts may have become a little misty in our minds, and it will do us no harm to recall them, in a necessarily condensed and partial review. I shall confine such a reminding to the wars of the English colonies and to brief mention of only the more important events in them.

The first wars of the colonies, of course, were wars with the Indians. Previous to the opening of the 17th century, no English colony had been permanently planted on American soil. Several attempts to establish a footing on the shores of North Carolina and Virginia had failed. One colony, on Roanoke Island, N. C., was so absolutely wiped out by the Indians, that an expedition sent out by Sir Walter Raleigh to reinforce it found no soul surviving and no trace of the settlement except a name carved on a tree. When the first permanent English colony was founded at Jamestown, Va., in 1607, it is supposed that there were about 200,000 Indians in the region east of the Mississippi. They were most numerous in the eastern half of this region where various warlike and powerful tribes possessed the land. Though sometimes friendly for a time, the red men seemed to have a foreboding of the fate which awaited their race at the hands of the white intruders, and generally looked with jealousy and alarm on their growing numbers. In the year 1622, under the lead of Opecancanough, chief of the Pamunkey tribe, the Indians in Virginia suddenly and by concerted attacks fell upon the outlying settlements which extended from Chesapeake Bay back to the falls of the James River along a line of 150 miles. They burned these settlements and massacred 347 persons, including six members of the governor's council. They probably supposed that they would thus terrify all the colonists into an abandonment of their domain; but they mistook the spirit and resources of the settlers. These now numbered over 1,000 able bodied men who rallied, attacked the Indians at various points, slew many in successive fights, massacred their prisoners, braves, squaws and children alike, as mercilessly as the savages had massacred the whites, and drove the survivors back north of the Potomac. This substantially ended the Indian war in that quarter.

In 1620—two years before this, as we all remember—the Pilgrim Fathers landed at Plymouth. The Indians thereabouts had been almost exterminated by a pestilence which raged among them four years previous and were too feeble to resist the coming of the strangers. In 15 years the Massachusetts colonies became strong enough to push out parties of emigrants, who made settlements at Windsor, Hartford and Wethersfield, Connecticut. The settlers soon came into collision with the Pequot Indians who occupied that region. After the latter had murdered a number of the scattered settlers the colonists decided to make an end of the business. They had less than 200 able-bodied men, while the Pequots numbered 800 warriors. The latter had a stronghold on the Thames river, in the present town of Groton, near New London. It was on a hill, upon the top of which a circle of palisades surrounded many wigwams which sheltered the warriors and their families.

On the 4th of June, 1637, a party of 90 colonists under Capt. John Mason, attacked this fort. Its defenders outnumbered them four or five to one; but, as in all these Indian wars, it was the sturdy English pluck against the spasmodic spirit of the savage, the matchlock against the bow and arrow, the broadsword against the tomahawk, and the result was not doubtful. In this, as in many other fights, the white men adopted Indian methods in a measure. They made their attack just before daybreak, when the warriors were asleep. A firebrand thrown upon a bark wigwam kindled a blaze, which, fanned by a strong wind, swept like a prairie fire through the bark village. The braves were shot down, man by man, as they sprang out into the fire light. Their defences served only to shelter the assailants and hem in the Pequots. In an hour over 600 Indian men, women and children perished, most of the latter by the flames, and the sun rose on the ashes of the Pequot fort, without a single surviving defender. Mason lost but two of his men. The remnants of the tribe were pursued into their hiding places; no lives were spared, and the Pequot tribe was practically exterminated. This blow struck terror to the Indians throughout New England, and gave the colonies peace for forty years. But powerful Indian tribes remained in Massachusetts and Rhode Island, and in 1675, the most extensive Indian war in American annals, known as "King Philip's War," broke out. Omens of coming trouble not only with the Indians, but with the Dutch and French who were encroaching on the English settlements, had before this led to the formation of the first American confederation, in which, under the name of "The United Colonies," the Massachusetts Bay, Plymouth, Connecticut and New Haven colonies united for mutual protection. The military organization was a simple one. The unit was the "train band," so called. These bands, if of cavalry, contained 50 men, if of infantry, 70, each band having a captain, one lieutenant, one ensign, a clerk, sergeants, corporals and a drummer. The highest regimental rank was that of major. The guns were the old match-locks, soon to be superseded by the flint-locks, and each private carried a horn of powder, a bag of bullets, a knapsack or bag containing several feet of fuse, and a crotched stick on which to rest his piece. There were about 75 such train bands in Massachusetts at that time, and the governor was the "chief general."

King Philip was the chief of the Wampanoags, otherwise called the Pokanokets, from their principal village. He was the son of Massasoit, the friendly chief who welcomed the first pilgrims. He had formed a league against the whites with the Narragansetts, who claimed most of Rhode Island and the adjacent territory. Hostilities began at first in a small way. Then the settlements at Brookfield, Deerfield and Springfield in the Connecticut Valley, were raided and burned. Hadley was saved by the courage of Goffe, the recidive, who emerged from his retreat to rally the frightened settlers and beat back the savages. The outlying settlements were abandoned by the settlers. The time had come to make another example.

In December, 1676, an army of 1,000 men, under Gen. Josiah Winslow, governor of the Plymouth Colony, moved against the chief stronghold of the Narragansetts. This was an island of six acres in the centre of a cedar swamp, in the present town of South Kingston, R. I. It had a single entrance, accessible only by a footpath, which led along the trunk of a fallen tree. Within were some 500 wigwams; and the fort was defended, as the accounts of the time say, by 3,000 warriors, but some later historians reduce the number one-half. The march of the colonists to the swamp fort was a severe one, through snow two feet deep. The severe cold had frozen the swamp, so that the assailants could attack it at various points. After a fight of three hours it was carried by Winslow with a loss of 70 men killed including six captains, and 200 men wounded, a number of whom died from exposure on the return march. The wigwams were fired and burned; from 300 to 700 warriors, as variously stated, were killed; 350 were taken prisoners and a thousand old men, women and children, more or less, perished by gunshot or in the flames. It was a savage fight and a fearful blow to Philip, but it did not end the war. In the months following Providence was attacked and fired; Warwick, R. I., was burned; the Narragansett region was abandoned by the settlers; the settlements at Lancaster, Medfield, Weymouth, Groton and Marlboro, Mass., were laid in ashes, and all settlements were kept in constant alarm. A considerable body of Indians formed an encampment at the falls of the Connecticut, now known as Turner's Falls, in the present town of Greenfield, Mass., where they had fine fishing of salmon. This camp was surprised by a company of about 100 mounted men from Hatfield, under Capt. Turner, at daybreak on the 10th of May, 1677. A hundred Indians were shot down; 140 who took to their canoes were swept over the falls and drowned, and in all some 300 perished. Turner lost but one man.

Many subsequent fights of less importance, but some of them very bloody ones, occurred; and thrilling stories of defences, escapes, and rescues fill many pages of legendary lore in those regions. But here, as elsewhere, in time the resources and spirit of the settlers proved to be too much for the Indians. Philip was shot by a faithless follower; and the war came to an end after 13 settlements had been burned, 600 log houses destroyed, 600 men of the colonies slain, being one in every 11 of the fighting men of the colonies, and many more disabled by wounds. Of the Indians who surrendered, many were sold into slavery in the West Indies; some escaped into the Western wilds, beyond the reach of the white man, and the power of the Indian tribes came to an end in all southern New England.

The succeeding colonial wars, four in number, were parts of the wars of England and France. The first of them, which began in 1689 and lasted eight years, is known on this side of the Atlantic as "King William's War." Its most noted military event abroad was the battle of the Boyne, fought on Irish soil by William, Prince of Orange, against James II, aided by a French army under Marshal Lauzan. It was Protestant against Catholic and it established the kingdom of England as a Protestant power. On this side of the ocean in this and in subsequent wars the French made allies of the great Algonquin tribe and made extensive use of them in their forays on the English settlements. Chief among these raids were the captures of Dover and Salmon Falls, N. H., and Casco Bay, Me.; burning of Schenectady in mid-winter, Feb. 8, 1690, when 60 settlers were killed and 90 captured; the capture of Port Royal, Acadia (now Nova Scotia), by a naval expedition from Massachusetts under Sir William Phips; Major Schuyler's expedition against Canada, which attacked the French settlements on the Sorel river; and the raid on Haverhill, Mass., in which 40 persons were killed or made captives, the Indians having learned that it was more profitable to keep prisoners for ransom than to burn them at the stake.

Neither side gained any territory in America in this war.

The next war was "Queen Anne's War," between England on one side and France and Spain on the other which began in 1702. This was the war in which England acquired Gibraltar, and Marlborough won the famous victory of Blenheim. On this continent, Port Royal and Louisburg were again taken and Nova Scotia became a British province.

In 1711, an English fleet with a New England contingent sailed for Quebec, while a column under Sir Francis Nicholson started by way of Crown Point and Lake Champlain against Montreal. Most of the ships of the fleet were wrecked at the mouth of the St. Lawrence. The land expedition thereupon returned to Albany and the invasion was a failure.

One of the incidents of this war was the capture of Deerfield. In the last week of February, 1704, 350 French and Indians under Captain Hertel de Rouville, came down from Canada to Colchester Point on the ice of Lake Champlain. Marching on snowshoes they passed up the then French River (now the Winooski) to "the height of land," as the old histories say, probably in Plainfield, and thence by way of Wells River to the Connecticut, and down that river to Deerfield, which was the northernmost settlement in the Connecticut river valley. They attacked the town at night, slew 47 of the inhabitants, fired the village and carried away 112 prisoners. Among these were Rev. John Williams, the minister of the village, his wife and five children. Mrs. Williams was tomahawked on the first day's journey because she was too feeble to keep up with her captors; Mr. Williams was held a prisoner for two years; and one of his daughters became and remained during the rest of her life the wife of an Indian chief. This Rev. John Williams was the grandfather of Dr. Samuel Williams, who preached for a time in Rutland and Burlington, wrote the History of Vermont published in 1794, and with Judge Samuel Hitchcock drafted the first charter of the University of Vermont.

Queen Anne's War ended in 1713, by the treaty of Utrecht. The colonists were, however, still apprehensive of Indian raids from the North and in the winter of 1724 Massachusetts sent from Northampton a party of twelve soldiers and four carpenters, under Col. John Stoddard, who built a block house of logs in the present town of Brattleboro. It was begun on the 3rd of February, and in the four months following was surrounded by a palisade of pine logs 25 feet high, enclosing an area of 180 feet square, within which were four "province houses," as they were called, with smaller cabins for the garrison. The fort was armed with one great gun and several swivels. This was Fort Dummer, so named from Lieut-Gov. William Dummer of Massachusetts. It has been called by many historians the first civilized settlement in the territory of Vermont. This was not strictly so, the first civilized occupancy of any part of Vermont having been made many years before by the French at Isle La Motte, where Capt. De La Motte built Fort St. Anne in 1665, and it is probable that at about that time a French outpost was established on Colchester Point; but it was the first permanent settlement within the present limits of Vermont—the French settlements having been abandoned—and it was the first English settlement in Vermont. As such it is most worthy of commemoration.

During the thirty-one years of peace which followed the treaty of Utrecht, the French were making rapid progress on this continent. They built Fort Niagara in 1728. They had trading posts along the great lakes, and they established more than sixty military stations, extending from Lake Ontario to the Mississippi and down the "Father of Waters" to New Orleans. They had pushed up the Champlain Valley, established a small post at Chimney Point in Addison County, and in 1731 built Fort Frederick at Crown Point on the opposite shore, which gave them command of the lake, and became the starting point of scouting and surveying parties and the base of some important expeditions in the later wars.

The progress of the French was interrupted by the third colonial war, or "King George's War." This lasted four years. Among its incidents was an expedition of 900 French and Indians, under Vaudreuil, sent from Crown Point in August, 1746, against Fort Massachusetts—the northernmost fortress of the Massachusetts colony, in what is now the town of Williamstown. The fort was commanded by Colonel Hawks, who had but 33 souls in the garrison, including several women and children. Hawks defended it for 24 hours, when his powder gave out and he surrendered on condition that none of the garrison should be delivered to the Indians—a pledge at once violated by the delivery of half of their number to the savages.
Another expedition attacked "Number Four" in what is now Charlestown, N. H. This fort was defended by Capt. Phineas Stevens, the great grandfather of Henry Stevens, the Vermont antiquarian, with so much spirit that the French commander, Debeline, after a few days' siege gave up the attack and returned to Crown Point.

The most important event of this war was the capture of Louisburg, on Cape Breton Island. This fortress was built to command the entrance to the Bay of St. Lawrence. Its fortifications cost five million dollars. It was called the "Gibraltar of America" and it was the strongest fortress on the Atlantic coast. It was besieged by an army of about 3,000 farmers, mechanics and fishermen, turned for the time into soldiers, 2,000 of them being from Massachusetts, 700 from Maine and 300 from New Hampshire. They were commanded by William Pepperell, a Maine merchant, whose only military training and experience had been gained in the frontier warfare with the Indians, which made every able-bodied man in the colonies to some extent a soldier. His friend Whitefield, the famous Methodist preacher, gave him as a motto for his flag: "Nil desperandum Christo ducere," and "Parson Moody" was the chaplain of the expedition. Pepperell landed men, dug trenches and established breaching batteries, while a fleet of armed sloops kept off the French ships which would have reinforced the garrison. After a siege of 49 days, Louisburg surrendered on the 17th of June, 1745, and on the coming 17th of June, the 150th anniversary of that event will be celebrated by the General Society of Colonial Wars by the dedication of a monument to be erected by that society at Louisburg. Louisburg was given back to the French by the treaty of Aix La Chapelle, which ended this war, in 1748.

We come now to the French and Indian War. The three previous wars were but echoes and eddies of the greater strifes in Europe; but this was strictly an American war arising out of the great American question of that time, the settlement of which was to decide, as it did effectually decide, which of those two great martial nations, England and France, which for over four hundred years had been almost as much at war as at peace with each other, and between which to this day no love has been lost, should control this North American continent.

The first shot in this war was fired in the spring of 1754 by George Washington, then at nineteen a major of Virginia militia, in a collision between advance parties of French and English, at Great Meadows in western Pennsylvania. One of its principal events was Braddock's memorable defeat near Fort Duquesne, now Pittsburg, in which the British regulars, 3,000 strong, were ambushed and shot down, "like pigeons" as an Indian chief said, by the French and their Indian allies.

Another was the battle of Lake George, Sept. 8, 1775, in which the colonial army of 3,000 men under Gen. William Johnson met and repulsed the French column of 1,800 French and Indians under Dieskau advancing from Crown Point. In the opening action of this battle, at Bloody Pond, Col. Ephraim Williams, the founder of Williams College, who commanded a Massachusetts regiment, was killed. In the main action the same day Dieskau was defeated, wounded, captured and shot by his captor; and in the final action on the same day a body of the retreating Frenchmen was attacked and cut to pieces by a force of 200 men under Capt. McGinnis of New Hampshire. Other important events were the capture of Fort Oswego, with its garrison of 1,400 men, by Montcalm; the siege of Fort William Henry in August, 1757, and the horrible massacre of its garrison by the Indian allies of Montcalm after the surrender. Stung by these reverses, the English government under William Pitt was roused to energetic action and the campaigns of 1758 were carried on by an English army aggregating 50,000 men, of which number 22,000 were British regulars, and 28,000 provincials. The results of these campaigns were the capture of Louisburg with 6,000 prisoners, by Gen Amherst; the defeat of Abercrombie with his army of 15,000, at Ticonderoga, by Montcalm with 4,000 men; the capture of Fort Duquesne by Gen. Forbes, and of Fort Frontenac (now Kingston, Canada) by Col. Bradstreet. These successes were followed in 1759 by the capture of Ticonderoga and Crown Point by Gen. Amherst; the capture of Fort Niagara by Gen. Johnson; the memorable battle on the Heights of Abraham, in which both commanders, Wolfe and Montcalm, were mortally wounded, and the consequent surrender of Quebec and of the French forces at Montreal. These victories virtually ended the war; but the Indians continued to be very hostile in the Northwest, under the lead of Pontiac, who attacked and took a number of English outposts and had their own way till the colonists rallied and subdued the savages.

The war ended in the treaty of Paris, in 1763. By this treaty France gave up to England Canada and all her American possessions east of the Mississippi except New Orleans. Spain, who was France's ally, ceded Florida to England; and the English race became the undisputed masters of this continent.

The details of many of the events thus hastily sketched are of surpassing interest and we may hope that some of them, especially the exceedingly important and interesting ones which occurred in the region of Lake Champlain and Lake George, will be less prosily described, at future meetings of this society.
