

660. JEFFERSON⁷ Joseph⁶ Joseph⁵ Joseph⁴ Joseph³ Thomas² John,¹ b. in Cavendish, Vt., April 12, 1812; m. Emeline E. Morey, Dec. 28, 1835, who was b. May 14, 1817. He resides, in 1874, in Ludlow, Vt.

877. Sardine, b. Sept. 15, 1836; d. Sept. 6, 1844.

878. Alvah, b. Jan. 12, 1838; d. March 4, 1838.

879. Julia, b. Oct. 8, 1839.

He m. 2nd, July 11, 1842, Calista Rice, b. Feb. 15, 1815.

880. Ara A., b. Nov. 11, 1844; an artist.

He m. 3rd, April 5, 1853, Eliza Sylvester, b. Nov. 15, 1828.

881. Nettie May, b. Jan. 5, 1864; d. Feb. 7, 1874.

882. Olive Jane, b. March 5, 1867.

663. OLIVIA⁷ Joseph⁶ Joseph,⁵ b. Jan. 8, 1817; m. Leonard Meade.

883. Mary, b. Dec. 24, 1839.

884. Aaron, b. April 23, 1841; m., Aug. 31, 1868, Lizzie Cathcart.

885. Olive, b. May 9, 1842; d. Nov. 28, 1867.

886. Albert, b. Feb. 29, 1844; d. Oct. 23, 1873.

887. Henry Walter, b. July 16, 1849; d. Aug. 14, 1852.

888. Emma Jane, b. July 31, 1852; m., April 29, 187-, Charles W. Kelly.

889. Frank, b. Oct. 3, 1855.

665. OTIS⁷ Joseph⁶ Joseph,⁵ b. Nov. 11, 1826; in 1873, residing in Fitchville, Vt.

890. Charles Franklin, b. Aug. 19, 1853.

891. Bertha Elvira.

892. Eva Elvira, b. in 1862; d. in 1863.

His wife Martha Elvira was b. June 6, 1835; d. May 10, 1871.

673. EDWARD THOMAS⁷ Thomas⁶ Thomas⁵ Joseph⁴ Joseph³ Thomas² John,¹ b. in Peru, Vt., March 5, 1836; m. May 7, 1860, Mary E. Bachellor, of South Reading, Mass. In July, 1876, a hardware merchant in Clarksburg, West Virginia.

893. Albert Edward, b. in Plymouth, Vt., Sept. 23, 1863.

894. Arthur, b. in Newton, Mass., May 20, 1866.

 676. AUSTIN⁷ Enos⁶ Isaac⁵ Thomas⁴ Joseph³ Thomas² John¹, b. June 11, 1807; he m., June 11, 1832, Julia C. Huyck, of Kingston, N. Y. His father had a remarkable genius for mechanical pursuits. He engaged in Albany, N. Y., with the first manufacture of plows in the country; afterwards in New York. He was

Vice President of the American Institute at its organization, but died at the age of forty-one years.

Austin was a bright boy, apt in school, and soon skilled in his father's business. He was in politics before he was of age. He was brought to the front on the question of State prison labor as affecting mechanical business, especially plane manufacturing. A meeting having been called, Mr. M. L. Davis, the Secretary of Aaron Burr, called upon him to speak. His eloquence carried the meeting by storm, and he became, with no design on his part, the leader of the movement in regard to State prison labor, and looked to by the working-men of New York as a champion. He was afterwards a frequent and eloquent political speaker. At an anti-Jackson meeting in Masonic Hall, presided over by Philip Hone, then Mayor of New York, he suggested that they should reinstate the Whig principles of 1776, and instead of planting hickory trees again, erect the old-fashioned liberty-poles. The suggestion was received with enthusiasm, and the name Whig adopted by the party. The first liberty pole was erected under his care at the corner of Grand street and Broadway. His political position was fine, but in 1837 he removed with the plane business (which he carried on after the death of his father) to Middletown, Conn. He was, under Harrison, for four years Collector of the district; a Member of the Legislature, serving as Speaker.

In 1857, he resigned his position as President of the Baldwin Tool Company, selling out his stock in it, and returned to New York, where he engaged in the Foreign Express and Exchange business. He was, while in Connecticut, one of the four Baldwins at various times nominated as Governor of that State, and one of the three whose party did not get the most votes.

In early life he studied law, and had some experience in teaching, and while teaching wrote a primary arithmetic which, though over forty years old, is still in use. He has paid little attention to politics since he returned to New York, but is the pleasant, genial, intelligent gentleman of the old and well-known house of Austin Baldwin & Company, 53 Broadway, still engaged in the Foreign Express and Exchange business, and representing the State Steamship Company.

895. Austin Parker, b. in 1834. +

896. Annie, b. in 1835; m. Edward T. Caswell. +

897. Radcliffe, b. in 1841; in business with his father; he m. Paulina Michel,

b. in Russia.